THE JOY RIDE is Princeton's most famous decorative architectural sculpture. Installed in 1913 on the Graduate College east wall by Cleveland Tower, it depicts a student with one hand on the wheel of his roadster and the other firmly grasping his female companion. A goose rushes to safety.

MONKEY WITH A CAMERA may be taking pictures of humans below. Or, suggests the new tour guide to grotesques on the campus, he may be playing with technology beyond his understanding and thus symbolic of academic endeavor.

1979 Hall, tweaking its ears, and an ape reading a book over the main entrance to Dillon Gym may be aping a professor holding an open book to the left.

More modern representations tend to be more serious—in fact they are eloquent portraits which should not be called gargoyles at all, except to be included on the tour. There is, for instance, the Head of a Football Player, at the southwest end of the Foulke Memorial Dormitory. Very similar in its soulful searching of the skies is the expression on the Head of a Soldier on Henry Hall. Both dormitories were built in 1922 by the same architect.

The inside of Blair Arch features several elaborately carved bosses, ornamental carvings that cover the intersections of two or more stone ribs. They show students and preceptors huddled by piles of books, shaking hands and burning the midnight oil. Over the arch on the side that faces the University Store there is a student leaning against a beer keg, stein at his lips, and a scholar with a skull in hand.

Many at the Graduate College. Not surprisingly, the Graduate College, said to be modelled after Magdalene College at Oxford, is sometimes called "the home of the gargoyles" at Princeton. It is lavishly decorated with dragons, roaring tigers and scholars as well as modern scenes, such as the famous "Joyride," pictured here, and a motorist being stopped by a solemn policeman.

"The Gargoyles of Princeton University" should lift the sights of those who have long enjoyed the campus oblivious to the fanciful creatures in stone looking down on them from above. —Barbara L. Johnson

In Madison, A season whose highlight will be three-evening presentations of plays based on the War of the Roses will open June 28 in Madison under the banner of the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival.

French farce, a classic British comic revue and an American comedy will round out the Festival season, which concludes December 11.

The War of the Roses will include Shakespeare's "Henry IV", Parts One, Two and Three and "Richard III." The plays have been edited by Paul Barry, Artistic Director of the Festival, into three evenings of repertory entitled "Henry VI," "Edward IV" and "Richard III." Because of the chronology, the Festival suggests that the plays be seen in order, although it is not necessary to purchase tickets for all three.

The plays will be given in nightly rotation as follows: "Henry VI" — June 28 through September 6; "Edward IV" from July 5 through September 9 and "Richard III", July 25 through September 18.

Starting Monday, July 18, the Festival will resume its Monday Night Specials, featuring dance, mime, music and drama.

After the run of the War of the Roses this summer, the Festival will present a French farce, "Let's Get a Divorce," by Victorien Sardou, from September 20 through October 16.

Garson Kanin's "Born Yesterday" will be given from October 18 through November 13 and the season will conclude with the Jonathan Miller-Dudley Moore script for "Beyond the Fringe" It will run from November 15 through December 11.

Ticket information is available by calling 201-377-4487.

"TWELFTH NIGHT"

Open Air. A production by Shakespeare '70 of "Twelfth Night" will open the 20th season of the Open Air Theatre, Washington Crossing, with performances Thursday, June 16 and subsequent presentations June 17 and 18.

The theatre has new landscaping, new seats and new public sanitary facilities, according to management. Paths and entrances have also been paved, for easier access.

be followed June 23-25 and June 30-July 2 by the Pennington Players' "The Sound of Music", and the Artists Showcase "Oklahoma!" July 7-9, 14-16.

Princeton Community Players will stage "Fiddler on the Roof" July 21-23, 28-30, and Backstage Breaks will present "Kiss Me Kate" August 4-6 and 10-13.

To conclude the season, Mercer Musical Theatre will stage "My Fair Lady" on August 18-20, 25-27. Sundays during the season are left free, in case rain dates are needed.

Detailed information is available by writing Washington Crossing Association of New Jersey (WCANJ), P.O. Box 86, Titusville, N.J. 08560.

HERE COMES 'SHOW BOAT'

To Bucks County Playhouse. One of this country's most enduringly popular musical comedies, "Show Boat" will open next Tuesday at the Bucks County Playhouse in New Hope.

The beloved operetta by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II, has several memorable songs. "Old Man River," "Only Make Believe," "Why Do I Love You?" and others are woven into a story about high-spirited Magnolia Hawkes, daughter of a riverboat theatre impresario on the Mississippi in the 1880's, and her love affair with Gaylord Ravenal, a handsome drifter addicted to gambling.

"Show Boat" stars Pat Paulsen, who has had a long and varied career, most recently as a stand-up comedian touring college campuses.

"Show Boat" was first produced by Florenz Ziegfeld in 1927 in New York. An adaptation of Edna Ferber's novel, it has continued ever since to be the most popular musical comedy of modern times. It has been made into a movie three times, and given full-scale elaborate stage productions in New York five times. It is found more often than any other show on the schedules of summer-time operetta seasons.

schedule of free events throughout the summer.

Summer Sings will be held every Tuesday evening at 8 p.m., beginning June 21 in the air-conditioned Bristol Chapel on the Westminster Campus. The public is invited to join summer session students in singing a major choral work conducted by a member of the Westminster faculty.

Summer Sings will begin with Schubert's Mass in G and "Miriam's Song of Triumph," conducted by Allen Crowell, the conductor of the Westminster Singers and the Westminster Oratorio Choir, and formerly the conductor of the U.S. Army Chorus. Handel's Messiah will be featured the next week, followed by Mozart's Requiem, Faure's Requiem and Bernstein's "Chichester Psalms." Haydn's Lord Nelson Mass and Mendelssohn's Elijah.

On July 19, for the Lord Nelson Mass, singers will be conducted by Joseph Flummerfelt, the conductor of the Westminster Choir. Dr. Flummerfelt is also chorus master of the New York Philharmonic and the Spoleto Music Festivals. Dr. Ray Robinson, president of Westminster Choir College, will lead the final sing on July 26.

A scholar and musician, Dr. Robinson has been President and professor of music at Westminster since 1969. He will conduct Mendelssohn's Elijah.

In addition to the sings, the Summer Session offers a brass concert, a handbell concert, choral concerts, and recitals almost every night. Students of all ages, from as far away as Taiwan and Australia and 15 other foreign countries enrich their private and professional interests in music by taking music workshops, studying everything from a church music course on Gregorian Chant to a music education course called "Producing Broadway Musicals."

Registration is still open. For more information, call Westminster Summer Session Office at 924-7416.

News of the Theatres

of several works, including Villa-Lobos "Concerto for Guitar" and been on a number of radio and television broadcasts.

He was the first guitarist to perform at Tanglewood Fromm Festival concerts, under the direction of Gunther Schuller, and he appears regularly as soloist with the Locrian Guitar Trio and the New Arts Chamber Ensemble. Awards to his credit are the Webb National Guitar Competition, Masterworks Music and Art Foundation Young Artist Competition and the Philadelphia Classical Guitar Society Competition. Mr. Trent is on the faculty of Trenton State and Mercer County Colleges.

His performance in Princeton is being given in preparation for his appearance at Guitare Quebec 1983, an International Guitar and Lute Festival to be held in Quebec City, July 9-16. He has been selected as a semi-finalist in the International Guitar Competitions which is being sponsored by the Festival, the Guitar Foundation of America, D'Addario Strings and the Canadian Council.

Other Conservatory faculty members who will be performing this summer are Hilary Rosenblum and Victoria Griswold, pianists. For further information about these and other Conservatory events call 924-0955.

WEEK OF INSTRUCTION
For String Players, Westminster Choir College's Conservatory Division is planning an intensive week of instruction for string players of all ages and abilities June 20-24.

The emphasis will be on the ensemble experience, with students receiving coaching in chamber music and orchestral playing. Other activities will include classes in solo repertoire, music reading, ear training, and movement. Performances by staff and students are planned for each day.

Members of the Westminster Conservatory faculty who will be teaching during the week are Dorothy Barrett, violin; Daria Kuyk, violin; Suzanne Mead, cello; Margaret Montanye, violin; Janko Ota, violin; Esther Seligmann, movement; Mary Anne

IT'S NEW To Us

HEALTH FOOD SHOP OPENS
On Nassau Street. Just in time for reunions a new shop opened on 126 Nassau Street which will be frequented by residents of all ages and students who are keenly aware of how beneficial the right foods and vitamins can be for their bodies.
Princeton Health Foods' young owner, Mr. Jeffrey Hirschfeld, and his manager, Mr. Nick Sebasto collectively have many years of experience in the health food business and feel that they have fulfilled a need in town which was previously not met.

"The whole orientation of this shop is tailored to meet the customer's needs. We are not going to let someone just wander in and out without asking if we can be of service. Service, quality and convenience is what we are featuring here," explains Mr. Hirschfeld who is also an art critic.

If the present bustle in the new shop since it opened last Friday is any indication, it will enjoy a full measure of success. Many customers were overheard thanking Mr. Hirschfeld for opening the store which sells top quality health food products, vitamins, and the purest cosmetics available on the your June receipts and you market. Items desired which will be credited on a percentage basis for future purchases. Healthy people will soon know where to go. Hours are from 10 to 9 Monday through Friday, from 10 to 6 on Saturdays and from 11 to 5 on Sunday.

Experienced in Field. The owner and Mr. Sebasto know their products well, the latter having managed a similar store on Fifth Avenue in New York for several years. Products by Rich Life, Plus, Schiff, Synergy, and Solgar are among the companies represented here as well as little-known manufacturers which make the purest of products such as Essential Organics. This small manufacturer from New Hampshire spends no money on marketing or advertising, operates at one third of full capacity in order to insure the best quality control. These products are void of synthetics and include complete disclosure labels which can often be misleading on other products according to Mr. Sebasto.

A small company from Tampa, Fla., Aubrey, has produced a line of cosmetics which are so pure that they can be eaten, though it is not encouraged! The cleansers, lotions, powders, shampoos, deodorants, colognes and perfumes are made up weekly and have a shelf-life of only nine months before the company insists that they be returned if not sold.

Princeton residents are becoming increasingly aware of the fact that foods which include large amounts of sodium, sugar and preservatives can be harmful to themselves and their children which is why the new shop is chock full of delicious snacks, preserves, breads, and non-allergic substitute milk products, herbs, and honeys for sweeteners. The raw, unfiltered honey found here comes in blueberry, alfalfa, clover, and orange flavors. Sorrell Ridge preserves are sweetened with natural honey and taste better than other preserves, according to the shop's owner.

A full line of Health Valley foodstuffs from California is on the shelves including cookies, cereal, pasta, and unsalted chips. "Mad Munchies" snacks with carob, raisins, sesame, nuts, and even pumpkin seeds will solve the hors d'oeuvres dilemma.

Parents will be delighted to know that their youngsters can now ride into town for a healthy snack such as a carob lollipop or Solben candies which have no artificial flavoring or salicylates. 100 percent natural peanut butter is a bargain at $1.59 a pound. Princeton Health Foods has a free merchandise credit program to offer its patrons. Save

NEW HEALTH FOOD STORE: Healthy people in the know will be delighted that Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Hirschfeld, at right, seen here with their new daughter, Aviva, and manager Mr. Nick Sebasto have opened Princeton Health Foods at 126 Nassau Street. The shop features the finest and purest health food products and vitamins available in the area combined with high quality service and convenience.

Prince, Head, Dunlop, and Manta. The traditionalist will still find the smaller racquet at this shop as well as the full line of the new mid and larger sized racquets which have become so desirable.

"I am very particular about the vendors with whom we deal. I am trying to offer the best quality at the fairest prices possible," explains Mr. Lanoue whose small shop is growing from the base established by the previous owner. Surely the shop's ideal location has encouraged many an ice cream devotee and grocery shopper to come in and browse. They will find a wide assortment of fine shoes for tennis and running, tennis clothing for men and women, and a smaller section for the running and aerobic gear.

Do not assume that because of limited space for display that the Competitive Sport's selection is in any way limited. On the contrary, choices in clothing and in racquets is vast. What is not in stock may be ordered within a few days. Mr. Lanoue, along with his two sons, Mark and Gregory, have every intention of serving Princeton's sports community well. Several teams, including some from the University, are now using the shop to gear up. Mark Lanoue can often be seen on the shop's quaint balcony stringing racquets which are new or in need of repair.

RACQUET SPORT CENTER: Mr. Ed Lanoue, new owner of The Competitive Sport, and his son Mark, will feature the finest gear for tennis and squash in the small shop, which is full of a wide selection of shoes, clothing, and racquets for those sports which are a favorite pastime here in town.

Reasonable Prices. "This is a nice town, the people are so friendly and welcoming and the runners are an inspiration," says Mr. Lanoue who commutes here from Far Hills. He spent 25 years working in the corporate world until he decided it was time for a change. Thus far, he has enjoyed quite a bit of success in Princeton, which may have a lot to do with his reasonable prices. Why haunt the discount stores when similar products are available right here?

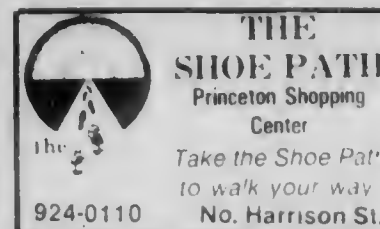

The Lanoues have not left expertise in the racquet field solely up to their personal preferences but have initiated a "Meet the Expert" promotion for the four Saturdays of this month. Last weekend, one of the busiest for the town's merchants, the Competitive Sport invited Mr. Enoch Durbin, a professor of mechanical and aerospace engineering at the University, to discuss the new tennis racquet which he designed for Princeton Sports Products. A curious crowd gathered to hear why his unique elongated racquet head has a better return, vibration free. Mr. Durbin has relocated "the sweet spot" to the middle of the racquet — which is of course trimmed in orange and black.

Other representatives of major racquet manufacturers will be seen at the shop on the next three Saturdays when refreshments will be served.

What could be a more appropriate gift for Father's Day than a new (modern) tennis racquet or a fresh new pair of tennis whites from the Competitive Sport? Now that the worst of spring home improvement chores are over, Father can concentrate on his game and could use some new equipment which may include: a tennis bag, a tennis ball caddy, shorts, sweaters, shirts (plain or with stripes), bands for the wrist and head, or several cans of new tennis balls (how do they all disappear).

The shop will have a Father's Day special next week, discounting men's clothing and shoes so now is the time to buy and save. Clothing by Fred Perry, Boast, Quantum to mention a few are bound to please the graduate as well as "dear old Dad." A large selection of Boast shirts are now in stock in several different color combinations and stripes.

ART In Princeton

At Gallery of Fine Art.
Tradition, once thought of as long established custom, takes a different form in the world of contemporary art. Because style and supporting ideology have changed so rapidly during the past fifty years, concepts that are considered traditional may, in fact, be only a few decades old. In today's art world, the past is not far away.

As a result, it comes as no surprise when essentially radical work like the paintings of Donald Locallo, on display at the Princeton Gallery of Fine Art, is thought to be a blend of traditional elements.
Despite the fact that owner Gary Snyder considers Locallo's work to be among the more advanced art that has been exhibited in the gallery, even the artist's own statement includes reference to earlier forms.

In a description of his work Locallo says, "My painting has evolved by incorporating tradition — my own traditional values and the traditional emotions as por-

TRENTON AS AN ART FORM: "Eyes on Trenton," a group display of work by Mercer County artists at the Gallery at Western Electric, create a multi-faceted portrait of the capital city. Among the featured works are J & K Place, a pencil drawing by Jack Prynoski.

trayed by all the master painters. "And, indeed, ghosts of recent masters can be found in the artist's work. The amalgam of elements of abstract expressionism, dada, and even a hint of the surreal, include visual references to the work of many of the better known painters who employed or invented these expressive and one-time radical modes.

Locallo's paintings are considered reflective of the return of the painterly style.
That is, they are thought to embody many of the characteristics of abstract expressionism as it was in the fifties. There is a heavily modelled surface, surface energy that is the result of the "painterly" approach, and an assumption that the process, itself, is as important as the result.

The artist describes his work as "... bold vignette(s) in color, evoking love and hate, peace and turmoil, isolation and confidence ... moods and energies of life using color and shapes to mold the feelings and dramatic changes that occur." These feelings are expressed using a combination of ragged line, pieces of color and shapes within shapes, all of which are, finally, enclosed within a roughly painted rectangle which contains the painting's often undisciplined energy.

The symbols are, of course, personal. And, presumably, if you speak the language of the artist, the emotions and messages are there. On the other hand, for those who are not on Locallo's artistic wavelength, the work remains interesting as a combination of young traditions that seem to be strong enough and pervasive enough to respond to contemporary artistic need and, in the process, to survive.

Views of Trenton. If you have never considered Trenton as an art form, the exhibition "Eyes on Trenton" at the Gallery at Western Electric, will come as a surprise. The mixed media group show includes more than fifty views of Trenton by as many artists and a few poets, as well. In addition to a varied visual approach to the aging city, several poems, silkscreened on plexiglas, introduce a quite different perspective.

The exhibition began as a month-long festival of the arts in Trenton that was meant to reflect the diverse character of the city. The current collection, which is a traveling exhibition, was culled from the original display. Included are sculpture, painting,

a substantial number of representational works.
Buildings, neighborhoods, and people are shown as they really are and as the artist sees them. There is stylistic range in the display and, in addition to the more literal views, there are interpretive works and some that are, in essence, abstractions.

The collection captures such familiar sights as the bridge with its famous sign, Oarsmen, backyards, the armory, South Broad Street and the monument as well as selected street corners and the capitol building. There are also glimpses into Trenton's history in "Shades of the Hermitage." The oil painting by Peggy Gummere depicts one of the city's most important older houses surrounded by many of the famous characters who have passed through Trenton during the last three hundred years. The illustrious crowd, gathered on the lawn, includes such notables as George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Hessian soldiers, Joseph Bonaparte.

Shahn's subject is the human form, and critics have described his treatment of it as "classic and contemporary, forceful, penetrating, poised and elegant." Mr.
Shahn is represented in several collections including those of the Vatican and the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, and his drawings appear frequently in the Wall Street Journal. He also illustrates books and designs stage sets.

He taught sculpture at the Tyler School in Rome, and has also taught at Boston University and the Boston Museum School, Cooper Union and the
This fall, he will teach at the Maryland Institute, Baltimore.

Princeton Shopping Center at 7 a.m., arriving in Washington around 11, and will return to Princeton between 9:30 and 10 p.m. The fee, $22 for non-members and $20 for members, includes bus fare, tips, guided tour and snacks.

The collection, by the late John Hay Whitney and his wife, Betsy Cushing Whitney, includes Manet's pastel
"Woman in a Decollete Gown," never shown publicly until this exhibit at the National Gallery.

Also at the Gallery in the Whitney group are works by Degas, Renoir, Monet, Pissarro, Corot and Courbet.
The collection includes Cezanne's "Still Life with Apples, Pears and a Gray Jug," his "Route Tourange a Montgeroult" — a late landscape —
van Gogh's "Self Portrait" and Seurat's "The Island of La

Quality, Not Quantity Marks Princeton Football Recruiting

After a recruiting season that Coach Frank Navarro termed "one of the most demanding in my experience," Princeton University has succeeded in attracting 51 or 52—depending on how you count them—football players to the incoming Class of 1987.

Though the quantity of athletes is painfully low for a football program that still struggles to make itself better than average in the Ivy League, the quality of the players who have elected to attend Princeton seems to please Navarro. "While the yield in the so-called skill areas was somewhat below last year's," Navarro said in a statement to the University's Friends of Football organization, "we did gain quality in linemen, depth in linebackers and defensive ends, and both quantity and quality in quarterbacks."

"I am certain that Princeton will field a representative freshman team next season," the coach said.

One source of the uncertainty in the exact number of players entering the new class could be the case of a defensive tackle from San Pedro, California, which also illustrates the lengths that Princeton has to go to attract college caliber players.

The player, Jerry Duhovic, is not listed in the first edition of the Class of '87 football roster, but he is touted by an assistant coach as a potential "welcome addition" to the team. What's the catch? Duhovic apparently would not commit himself until someone from the Friends group pointed him toward a summer job to help him meet the $12,000 a year cost of attending Princeton.

A Broad Search. Another question mark is Mark Hensel, a quarterback who might also help the beleaguered Tiger defensive secondary. Hensel's not on the roster but he could still show up, said one assistant coach, "if some financial aid problems can be ironed out."

Navarro and his immediate predecessors have pointed out that Princeton can no longer rely on the traditional and nearby pools of talent in New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania. The net has to be spread far. This year only 18 of the 51 players on the roster hail from those three states.

One of the big catches is from Alabama. Center Dave Sawyer, 6-foot-2, 220 pounds, was recruited by Alabama, Auburn, and Duke, among other scholarship schools, but turned them down for Princeton.

Another Alabama player, 6-foot-4 Scott Koski, is one of three recruits who Navarro hopes will create a dog fight at the tight end position.

The coach believes that the new class includes at least three varsity caliber running backs: Dave Farina, 5-foot-10, 190 pounds, Upper Merland, Pa.; Dan Papa, 6-0, 170, Yorktown Heights, N.Y.; and Sean Fitzpatrick, 5-10, 160, Westwood, Mass. The biggest dog fight could be at quarterback, where six prospects are listed: Brad Hammond, 6-2, 190, Tulsa, Oklahoma; Steve Lechmanik, 6-0, 182, Emmaus, Pa.; Gary Weisenglass, 6-2, 180, New York City; Sean Welsh, 6-3½, 190, Richmond, Indiana; Frank Kontley, 6-1, 195, Canfield, Ohio; and Brian Casazza, 6-1, 195, Smithtown, N.Y.

Fighting the Ivies. Navarro and his staff outrecruited Yale to gain the services of Chip Nuzzo of Cory, Pa., a wide receiver who has run the 40-yard dash in 4.6 seconds. Another wide receiver, 6-foot-5 Bill Adams of Atlanta, Georgia, chose Princeton despite the overtures of Penn and Dartmouth.

Penn and Cornell both recruited Mike Marinko, a running back from Chicago who is considered a top prospect for the Tigers' defensive backfield. But Marinko was persuaded to attend Princeton by Stas Maliszewski, Class of '66, who was a highly persuasive lineman on Princeton's last Lambert Trophy team.

Not all the recruiting battles with other Ivy League teams went Princeton's way. In fact, Navarro was especially concerned with the number of top prospects lost to Yale and Harvard. But, as he pointed out, Harvard and Yale will probably say they are just as discouraged about the players they lost to Princeton.

In other words summer is here, the opening kickoff at Dartmouth does not occur until September 17, and hopes for the new season can still soar to the limit of the imagination. Meanwhile clip this article, stick it away, and read it again in the fall of 1986, when these freshmen begin their senior year. See how many names are still a part of the Princeton football picture.

WOLF & CREW FALTER
At NAAs and IHA. Some of Princeton's biggest athletes, including the track team's shot putter, August Wolf, and the varsity heavyweight crew, ended their seasons and their University careers last weekend with disappointing performances.

Wolf, competing in the NCAA championships in Houston, Texas, managed to place only sixth in the event in

The Tiger heavyweight crew had high hopes as it entered the annual IHA regatta on Lake Onondaga in Syracuse, N.Y., particularly after an impressive showing on Friday when it defeated two-time defending champion Cornell in a repechage, or second chance race, to qualify for the finals on Saturday.

But Brown and Navy, both of which had won qualifying races on Thursday and were Lightweights Slip. In the junior varsity race, rowed earlier in the day when head winds and choppy waters favored heavier crews. Princeton's junior varsity finished second. The lightweight varsity, rowing in that event as a warm-up for its trip this month to Henley, England, would normally be expected to outperform the junior varsity heavies. But on this day the lightweights could do no better than sixth.

One Princeton crew recorded a first place finish in the last major weekend of college rowing. The freshman women's crew held off a charge by the University of Wisconsin to win the novice women's national championship in Madison, Wisconsin.

MAYBE ON SUNDAY

Another Tiger Turns Pro. The National Football League's Philadelphia Eagles keep trying to get a Tiger on their team. Spurned by Princeton co-captain Jon Schulteis, the Ivy League's only selection in the pro football draft who decided that playing on Sunday would conflict with his planned career in the ministry, the Eagles now have invited Princeton's other offensive guard to join their tryout camp.

The Eagles signed Rob Haywood, a 6-foot-2, 250-pounder, as a free agent. Haywood played defense in his sophomore and junior years at Princeton, and was switched to offense in his final season. Philadelphia hopes to use Haywood as they might have used Schulteis, as a player who can perform at guard or center, and handle the long snaps on punts and kicks.

PHS GIRLS ADVANCE
In State Lacrosse Tournament. The Princeton High School girls lacrosse team outlasted Moorestown Friends, 12-11, last week and has advanced to the semifinals of the state lacrosse teams. The Little Tigers (14-2) were scheduled to play their nemesis Montville this week on a neutral field.

before the shot got off, charging Friends with a defensive foul: blocking the free-shooting space in front of the goal.

"Our defense rose to the occasion," commented Jones. "There was a lot of pressure on us."

Jones cited Pat Hucks and Nadia Glucksberg for their defensive play. On offense, she observed that Fraker had played a "super game" and Hoff had played well.

Fraker led in scoring for PHS with four goals, while Hoff had three, Sweeney and Gabrielsen two each and Blair one.

TWO TEAMS ARE TIED

For Lead in Men's Softball. After the opening weeks of play in the Princeton Men's Softball League, Conte's Bar and Princeton Italian-American Sportsmen Club are tied for the lead with 6-1 records.

Four teams are tied for second place at 5-2: Princeton Nautilus, Mike's Tavern, Hinkson's and C-Square C. Trailing in the 12-team league are Downtown A.C. and P.M.C. both at 3-4; Princeton Army-Navy and Buffalo Wings, both at 2-5; and Stefanelli's and Marita's Cantina, both winless in seven starts.

A newcomer to the league this season is Princeton Nautilus. The team is comprised of players from last year's Mike's Tavern squad—Ken Bruvik, Mike and Dave Shillaber, Jim Lennon and Nort Parker; from players from the old Center Sports team—Jack, Jeff and Jaime Petrone, Greg Kline, Pat Kahny, and Dave Sweeney; and newcomers from Princeton area high schools and American Legion baseball teams—Judd Petrone, Brent Robinson, Scott Porreca and Kevin Phox. It is coached by Jeff Petrone, assisted by Nort Parker.

The leading hitters for Nautilus in the early going are Parket, Mike and Dave Shillaber, Kahny, Jaime and Jack Petrone. In slugging, Jaime Petrone has clouted three triples and Dave Shillaber a pair of homers.

Games are played at Community Park, Valley Road and Marquand Park Fields on Tuesday evenings, starting at 6:15. This Sunday, each team will be involved in a double header at the same fields. The first game starts at 2. Two weeks later on the 26th there will be another round of doubleheaders.

MIKE'S TAVERN LEADER

In Women's Softball. The Princeton Women's Slow Pitch Softball League completed its second week of play, with Conte's Bar edging Andy's Tavern, 3-2, and Mike's Tavern rolling over the Army-Navy Store, 19-4.

In a close contest, Conte's Bar scored a run in the top of the first inning, when Monica Greenland's triple drove in Carol Ann Mazzella. Andy's Tavern evened the score in the bottom of the inning, as Cindy Nielsen drove in Donna Woodruff.

Conte's took a 2-1 lead in the top of the second, when Fran Johnston singled home Jackie Rock. Andy's tied the score in the fifth, when Nielsen (3-for-3 overall) drove in Susan Packer. Mary Foxx banged from the old Center Sports team—Jack, Jeff and Jaime Petrone, Greg Kline, Pat Kahny, and Dave Sweeney; and newcomers from Princeton area high schools and American Legion baseball teams—Judd Petrone, Brent Robinson, Scott Porreca and Kevin Phox. It is coached by Jeff Petrone, assisted by Nort Parker.

In the other game, defending League and Playoff Champion Mike's Tavern defeated Army-Navy Store in a contest that saw the 15-run rule invoked. (A game is ended after five innings if one team is ahead of the other by 15 or more runs, and the home team has batted in the fifth.)

Army-Navy scored in the top of the first, when Theresa Folliny batted in Sally Strain. Mike's turned the game into a rout when it tallied three runs in the second, seven in the third, three in the fourth, and six in the fifth. Pacing the 22-hit barrage were Kathy Shillaber, Dee Pearce, Debbie Ficarro, Sallie Toscano (3-for-3), Grace Durland, Clare Baxter (4-for-4), and winning pitcher Lorraine Duthie (3-for-3).

Army-Navy got a run in the third, as Jill Bonin drove in Karen Piper, and added two more in the fifth, on hits by Nina Tocco, Piper, and Liz Armstrong.

The standings:

	W	L	Pct
Mike's Tavern	2	0	1.000
Andy's Tavern	1	1	.500
Conte's Bar	1	1	.500
Army-Navy	0	2	.000

2 GOLDS FOR BUSHNELL

In State Track Meet. In the annual NJSSAA Track and Field Championships held Friday and Saturday at Rutgers Stadium in Piscataway, Princeton High's Bill Bushnell won two state crowns, winning the 3200 meter on Friday and the 1600 meter the following day in a dead heat.

Stephen Fletcher set new group and state records in winning the 110 high hurdles in a career best time of 13.7 and in the Group II shot put competition but it wasn't enough for the Little Tigers to win the Group II state team.

title. Asbury Park claimed the team title with 39 points, followed by Clifford Scott High School with 31. PHS finished with 24.

All three hope to compete in the Meet of Champions this Wednesday at South Plainfield. Bushnell intends to fly out to California the following day to participate in the prestigious Golden West Invitational.

Bushnell was not pressed hard in winning the 3200. His time of 9:29.8 was 12 seconds faster than the 9:41.5 posted by Manchester's Pierre L'itinnier.

Young heaved the shot 55-0 feet to win that event by a foot over Don Bulger of Pequannock. Young was not particularly happy with his effort. "It's going to take over 60 feet to win that one (the Meet of Champions) next week," he predicted, noting that Jim Gilligan of Toms River had won the Group IV shot put crown with a toss of 60-1.

In the girls competition on Friday, Kerri Phox of PHS finished third in the long jump with a leap of 16-6 1/2. The winning jump measured 18-1 1/2.

Bushnell in Dead Heat. Bushnell had predicted he faced much stiffer competition in the 1600 meter event and he was right on the mark.

In one of the day's most exciting races featuring several lead changes, Bushnell moved in front of Lawrence High's Jon Hersch at the start of the bell lap. Down the final straightaway, Lamont Hill of Penns Grove took the lead but Bushnell forged back into contention in the last 20 yards and together the two hit the tape. Both were timed in 4:20.4. After a conference by race officials, Bushnell was declared the winner. Like his time in the 3200 the previous day, Bushnell's clocking in the 1600 was his career best.

New Mark for Fletcher. While Bushnell had hoped to break 4:24 in the 1600 meter and just missed, Fletcher was hoping to set a personal best in the 110 high hurdles.

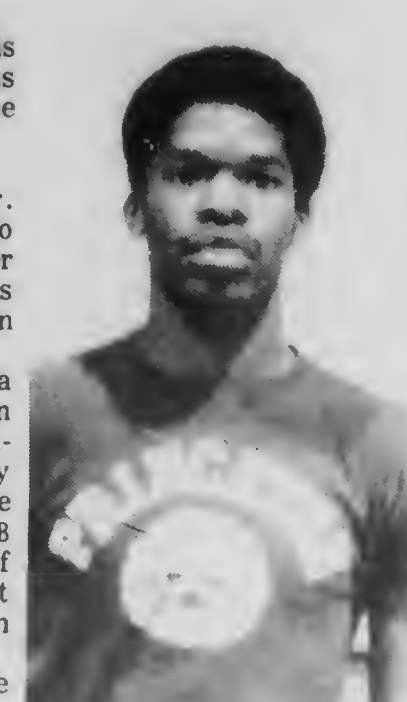

His 13.7 was not only a personal best but better than the previous Group II standard of 14.2 set by Lou Henry of Asbury Park in 1981 and the previous state record of 13.8 set by Marvin Booker of Camden in 1981 and tied last year by Tony Davis of Scotch Plains.

Fletcher admitted that he wasn't smooth in hitting four hurdles and knocking over a couple more en route to his win but he is satisfied that the technique he feels has been lacking has returned. "If the competition is there I know I can run 13.3, maybe faster," said Fletcher.

Fletcher and his father, Lamont, his coach, had been concerned about getting invitations to national track events for more experience against top flight hurdlers for Stephan, who hopes to be able to earn a berth on the 1984 U.S. Olympic team. Now that Fletcher has cut his best time from 13.9 to 13.7 in eight days, Fletcher Sr. commented, "We're hoping for some national invitations."

For comparison, the second-place time in the Group II was a 14.2 by Asbury Park's Kraig Sanders—the same time that Kevin McGorty of Westfield ran to win the 110H in the Group IV division.

In the girls competition Saturday, Princeton High's Gail Woolston finished third in the 400 with a time of 58.8. Jackie Bobien of Clifford Scott won the event in 55.8.

PHOX PICKS KANSAS

Will Play Football. Princeton High senior Terrence Phox, who has lettered in football, basketball and track for the Little Tigers the last three years, has signed a letter of intent to enter Kansas Wesleyan in the fall where he will play football for the Coyotes.

The 6-1, 185-pound quarterback on the PHS football team, Phox was named to the All County, All Mercer County and All Colonial Valley Conference teams. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Phox of 11 Birch Avenue.

Said Kansas Wesleyan football coach Jon Bingesser on hearing of Phox's decision, "We are happy to have Terrence as a member of our Coyote team."

Phox also intends to play basketball at Kansas where coach Jerry Jones commented, "Terrence has the ability to have a fine career here at Kansas Wesleyan."

Princeton University's Palmer Stadium Sunday, the New Jersey Women's Track and Field Coaches Association will host America's premier girl's prep track and field championship. "The Silver East Invitational."

The meet will feature some of the top female high school athletes from across the country. Starting time is 2 p.m. and admission is free for schools, athletic clubs and associations, civic organizations and senior citizens.

PHS PLACES TWO

On CVC Baseball Team. Two players from Princeton High School have been named to the First Team All Colonial Valley Conference team selected by the team coaches.

Seniors Ralph Carnevale, the Little Tigers' slugging catcher who batted .429, and smooth fielding center fielder Terry Phox, who ended with a .300 average, were named to the first team. Ewing and Notre Dame with four selections each led in the balloting.

Chris Hoover, senior first baseman for PHS, was named to the CVC second team. He was second behind Carnevale in batting with a .327 average. Junior Dino D'Angelo, a pitcher-infielder, and sophomore Gavin Hulsman, a pitcher-outfielder for the Little Tigers, received honorable mention. Hulsman was the top pitcher this season for PHS with a 3-1 record.

CVC Track Team. The coaches' selection for the first team CVC track team includes three Princeton High performers—each named the best in the league in two events. Bill Bushnell was named in the 1600 and 3200 meter events. Stephan Fletcher in the 110 high hurdles and 440 intermediate hurdles and P.J. Young in the shot and discus.

Named to the CVC second team from PHS were Mike Schwab, 800 meter; Ken McKellar, 110 high hurdles and high jump; and Eddie Rice, long jump. Steve Schwab of PHS received honorable mention in the 800 meter.

FOUR FROM HUN NAMED

To All-Prep. All State Team. The Hun School baseball team, which lost the Class A prep school state championship game to Peddie, had three of its players named to the All-Prep All State team. Lawrenceville School had the most with four.

Named from Hun were pitcher Pete Stam, who had nine of Hun's 13 wins (the lost 3); second baseman Martin Summers, who led the Raiders in hitting with a .409 average, and centerfielder Paul Pintella, who led the area in home runs with seven and capped a fine career at Hun with a .380 average.

Four from Hun were named to the Division A first team: outfielder Chris Hunninghake and Stam, Summers and Pintella. Junior pitcher Rich Stout, who hurled the area's only perfect game this season, and senior first baseman Dean Forman were named to the Division A second team.

Named to the Division B second team were first baseman Erik Ott and outfielders Mike Blaxill and Erik Schweibert. Blaxill is a junior.

7-2 record into its dual meet meeting with Princeton High last week, but the Cardinals were no match for the undefeated Little Tigers (8-0) who coasted to an 85-46 win. PHS, in winning, claimed the Colonial Valley Conference crown with a 7-0 league mark. Princeton's big winners all season finished off with a competitive workout. This program is open to any swimmer regardless of AAU, PASDA affiliation. For information and fees on the competitive swim program, call the Recreation Office at 921-9480.

Other first-place winners for PHS were Mike Schwab in the 800, where he had a 1:59.6 to Steve Schwab's second-place time of 2:01.7; Elliott Liverman in the javelin, Ken McKellar in the high jump and Eric Hupp in the pole vault.

KRAFT TO LEAD
Community Tennis Program. The Princeton Community Tennis Program will be under the new direction of Steven Kraft when it begins its 28th season of group tennis classes on June 20.

Kraft, recently the coordinator of national junior competition for the United States Tennis Association, reports, "We are gradually reworking our teacher training process and written instructional guides so that the needs of today's players can be met more effectively. The focus of our teaching will shift from racket-work as an isolated technique to whole-body awareness and development."

Specific new features include small-group afternoon classes, an acceleration program, a tournament team for ranked junior players, and the first Father's Day Classic Tournament for men 40 and over. The Program will continue to offer its all-day camp for juniors, directed by Kraft.

Registration is now open for juniors, adults and seniors. To register, call 924-4343 or stop in at the PCTP office, 71 University Place.

COURTS AVAILABLE

At Indoor Tennis Center. The Mercer County Park Commission has announced that season courts at the Mercer County Indoor Public Tennis Center in Ewing Township are still available for the 1983-84 season.

They are available for a 30-week period which begins in October and ends in May.

There are six courts available during prime time for the 1983-84 season. They are available Wed. at 9 p.m. to Friday at 4:30 and 6 p.m., and Sunday at 3 and 4:30. For information on available courts and fees for season courts, call the Park Commission Office at 989-6531. A free stroke analysis clinic will be held on Saturday from 9 to 11 at the Center. For details, call Dave Mennel at 586-9850.

SWIM WORKOUTS SET

At Community Park Pool. Lorraine Wood, Community Park swim team coach, has begun conducting workouts at 3:30 at Community Park Pool. Youths between 6 and 17 are invited to participate in the program.

Starting June 20, the swim team will practice in the mornings from 9:30 to 10:45, Monday through Friday. More workouts earlier in the morning.

There will also be an open workout from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. and from 7 to 8:30 p.m. for swimmers who need a highly competitive workout. This program is open to any swimmer regardless of AAU, PASDA affiliation. For information and fees on the competitive swim program, call the Recreation Office at 921-9480.

THE MARGIN OF VICTORY

Five Seconds in Bike Race. Gunther Hoyt of the Princeton-based Century Riding Club was a five-second victor over CRC teammate Joe Weingart in the N.J. Time Trial League's 10-mile for the Fall 1983 season will be Sunday at Allentown. Hoyt held next Saturday, June 18, at was timed in 25 minutes, 241 on the Washington Road seconds, Weingart in 25 fields. Rain date is the minutes, 29 seconds.

State Champion Mary Martin of CRC won the women's event in 26:27 while Marie Bologna, another CRC rider, was second with a personal best of 27:58. Other CRC times were a 28:26 clocked by Carol Tate and a 29:07 by Lesley Bienen.

PHS NETMEN WIN

For 21-2 Record. In a league match last week, the Princeton High School tennis team ran its record to 21-2 with a 5-0 whitewash of Ewing in a Colonial Valley Conference match.

The Little Tigers won everything in straight sets. In singles play, Jacob Leschly defeated Adam Dauer, 7-5, 6-2; Safi Baheal won the second singles, 6-1, 6-1, and David Frockop triumphed, 6-4, 6-3, over Tom Lowen.

In doubles play, Rob Dunham and Keith Goldfeld were 6-1, 6-1 winners, while Andy Phillips and Tim Kingston defeated Jeff Brown and Tom Buker, 6-0, 6-2. Ewing's record is 13-7.

DEADLOCK GAINED

SEASON WRAP-UP

For Traveling Teams. The Princeton Soccer Association's Traveling Teams have concluded their spring season. The '69 team, coached by Maurice Harding, played five games, drawing with West End Express and the Hamilton Chargers but losing to Bordentown, the West End Warriors and Lawrence.

The Princeton '70 team was 2-1 in league play, losing to Hopewell in the first game but defeating Hamilton, 6-0, and Lawrence, 4-2. Three games were cancelled because of rain. The '70s also finished sixth out of 12 teams in the German-American Club Tournament with wins over Neptune and Medford. During the winter, it had a 9-5 record in Indoor Soccer League play. Frank Wayno is the coach.

The '71 Tigers, coached by Bill Fogler, defeated Mercer 3-1, Bordentown, 2-0, and Lawrence, 1-0, but lost to Montgomery, 4-2, and West End, 6-5.

The '71 Panthers under coach Jerry Muller were 2-3, splitting with West Windsor, losing twice to Montgomery, B, and defeating Hamilton-B.

The '72s under coach Dick Ragsdale and assistants Don Meyers and Michael Hollander, redeemed four earlier losses with a 6-0 victory in their final game over Bordentown. The '73s, under Alan Bilanin, also suffered a losing season, and are seeking to add good players to next year's team. The '74 team, however, marked its first season with one win, three draws, and one loss. Their coach is Charles Scozaro, assisted by Shelly Saidman and Craig Battle.

Collins, And Opponents Gearing Up For Another Round over Inn Addition

On the one hand, these are the people who took away the sculpture of the man eating his lunch and replaced it with the kiosk at 1 Palmer Square. They kicked out Skirm's, the little tobacco shop, and replaced it with some fancy boutique selling women's perfumes. They gave the boot to Brophy's and sent the Nassau Deli out to lunch permanently. They gave the Boy Scouts the impression that they couldn't sell their Christmas trees on the green in front of the Nassau Inn.

On the other hand these are the people chosen by Princeton University, from a flock of potential buyers, as the ones most capable of managing and expanding Palmer Square in a way that would be at once profitable and also consistent with the long-range goals and idiosyncratic personality of Princeton.

Now these same people—the Collins Development Corporation—want your support this Thursday night, when they appear before the Regional Planning Board seeking final site plan approval for a planned expansion of the Nassau Inn that would bridge the roadway of Palmer Square East, next to the Post Office and the Inn and consume the sliver of parking lot now located there.

If the Planning Board can come up with a quorum of its members, and if the heated discussions of the Inn proposal and the Palmer Square development in general do not become too protracted, then a vote may be taken that will determine the fate of the Inn addition, the first phase of Collins' proposed development in the Borough. If you think it's easy to be a developer in Princeton, then attend Thursday's meeting. It begins at 7:30 in the meeting room of the Valley Road Building.

James Harvie, manager of the Collins project, certainly does not think it is easy. "People can get a little fussy around here," he said, in obvious understatement, as he prepared to answer some of the criticism raised concerning the Collins project. "But people should remember that it wasn't this spring that we dreamed up Palmer Square. We negotiated to buy Palmer Square three years ago. Two years ago we purchased it and went to the Planning Board for preliminary site plan approval. One year ago we had second thoughts about certain aspects of the projects and we went through the whole process all over again. Now we're getting ready to put the plan into action and people are coming out of the woodwork to try to stop a plan that's been approved not once but twice."

"People in this business come up to us and say, 'you're developing in Princeton? Are you nuts?'"

Quiet Closing Planned For Littlebrook School

Constructed 26 years ago as one of the monuments to the post-war baby boom, the Littlebrook School this Friday will go the way of many other products of that era: It will close — not with a bang or a whimper, but with the gentle release of several hundred helium-filled balloons.

"We're planning nothing elaborate," said George Petrillo, Littlebrook's last principal. "It will be the typical end of the year ceremony except, instead of everyone moving up a year, everyone will be moving out. This time we'll be saying goodbye."

This year's fourth and fifth graders will be entering the middle school in the fall — the middle school will now begin with the fifth grade instead of the sixth. All other Littlebrook School children will end up at Riverside School. So will Mr. Petrillo, who will take over for the retiring principal there, Gene Berlinger.

The Littlebrook facility itself has been largely rented out by the Board of Education. The new tenants are expected to include the Lewis Clinic, a school for children with dyslexia; the Sandbox Tech and Nassau Cooperative nursery schools; and the Lakeside Montessori Center, another private nursery school which will rent the nine rooms in the back wing of the building.

with similar plans for the Dinky station on University Place in Princeton.

"I don't know if it will ever happen," said Borough Mayor Robert Cawley at his weekly press conference. The Borough had commissioned architect J. Robert Hillier to fashion some "development specs," in the mayor's words, which could then be submitted to developers for bidding.

But the development was complicated, Mr. Cawley noted, by the configuration of the land around the Dinky station and the need for the University, the Borough, and the railroad to do some "land swapping" in order to create a parcel that would support the station and a commercial development, along with the necessary parking facilities.
This project, apparently, is not even on the track.

of another baby boom, but it probably does not. The children enrolled in nursery schools frequently have parents who live outside Princeton but who work in Princeton. Enrollment projections continue to suggest that neither Littlebrook nor Johnson Park, the elementary school closed a year ago, will be needed to educate Princeton children, at least not in the foreseeable future.

So, at 12:15 on Friday the children will have their last assembly and release their balloons with notes requesting the finder to write to the children to tell them where the balloon finally came to earth.
Actually, said Mr. Petrillo, that has been done before by the Littlebrook children.
"They didn't go too far — we got responses from Griggs-

$2 MILLION SOUGHT

To Save Farmland. The Princeton residents who hope to save the farm and woodlands owned by the Institute for Advanced Study and targeted for a major housing development have until July 26 to come up with the $2 million necessary to buy development rights from the Institute.

This week the residents, whose group is known as Preserve Open Space for Princeton or PROSPER, took one step toward reaching that goal. In a meeting Tuesday with the Mercer County Freeholders, the group was promised a letter from the Freeholders stating their intention to move ahead with an ordinance that would enable the county to tap the resources of a $50 million farmland preservation bond issue. The ordinance is necessary to create an agricultural development advisory board, through which such funds must be channeled.

PROSPER representatives, including James Sayen and Lawrence Norris Kerr, believe that, if they can raise $1 million from the bond issue, then they can drum up the other million from private sources. That may explain why the group is called PROS-PER.

Realignment of Route 92 Closer to Princeton Angers Homeowners along Herrontown Road

The Montgomery Township Planning Board has given its approval to a 400-unit residential development north of the Princeton-Montgomery boundary and east of Route 206.

As approved, the development will lie right in the path of what had been chosen as the alignment for S-92—also known as the 92-bypass. It will push the route of the long awaited bypass closer to Princeton and on top of the ridge off Herron-town Road that forms the boundary between the two municipalities.

Herrontown Road residents are upset at the action of the Montgomery Planning Board last Monday night, but they are furious at the State Department of Transportation and Commissioner John Sheridan. At the hearing Monday night, Carlton Homes, developer of Montgomery Woods, produced a letter of agreement between the developer and the DOT.

The letter was signed by the Commissioner and dated June 6. It deems a right-of-way to the DOT for S92 on the Princeton side of the development, and in its language, makes it look as if all other alignments for the Bypass have been ruled out.

Resident Reacts: "It's a sham, a boondoggle, a ridiculous decision," spatters Laurence Glasberg of 581 Herrontown Road. He points out that ever since 1972 the proposed route for 92 has been on an alignment preservation map at the DOT which is supposed to put people on notice as to where the road will be located. That alignment lay on the Montgomery side of the steep ridge that forms the boundary between the two
municipalities.

TOPICS Of The Town

"In terms of ecological studies and engineering surveys it was the most appropriate, most cost effective alignment," Mr. Glasberg says. In the intervening years, a number of people have purchased land and built homes after consulting with the Bureau of Location at the DOT.

Mr. Glasberg himself purchased 23 acres in 1981 and sited his home based on information from the DOT. "None of us opposed the highway," he says. "We knew it would help Princeton and that Princeton wanted it. We were in constant touch with the Bureau of Location and the DOT on the matter."

What makes Mr. Glasberg particularly incensed is that the Princeton Township Engineer, also in constant contact with the DOT on the location of the bypass, was told by Russell Stevenson of the Bureau of Location on Monday morning that no decision had been made, that engineer studies had not been completed and that Princeton would have an opportunity to provide input before a conclusion was reached.

And yet the letter of agreement, dated several days earlier, was produced that very night between developer and the DOT. It seems to have determined the location of the roadway.

Glasberg says that because of the difference in elevation between the intersection with Route 206 and where 92 will cross the river at Kingston, a cut of 50 to 60 feet through solid rock will be required.
This will increase the cost of building the road $8-$10 million, he says, and every taxpayer should object strongly.

Noting that Montgomery is eager to increase its ratables, he fumes at a developer who has "such clout with the state" that he is able to have the state change a long standing highway alignment.
"There is no other valid rational reason for moving that road," he claims.

The Princeton Planning Board sent a letter in March urging an alignment further into Montgomery to avoid the ecological damage and increased cost of traversing this steep slope. Princeton Township Committee supported the Planning Board with a letter of its own.
Mr. Glasberg went from the Montgomery Planning Board meeting straight to Princeton Township Committee on Monday night to alert members to what was happening on the northern border. Mayor Winthrop Pike has requested a meeting with Commissioner Sheridan on the subject and has written him that the blasting that would be required for this new alignment would be detrimental to houses nearby and might incur additional costs in terms of law suits.

LOOKING AHEAD...

At Princeton Schools. Apparently not content to scrutinize just the immediate problems in running a school system, the Princeton Regional Board of Education is preparing to gaze into the future, with the circulation this week of a long range planning report that has been in the making for the past two years.

The report will be circulated to staff late this week, and will be introduced to the press at a conference with Superintendent Paul Houston on Monday.
On Tuesday night at 8 in the high school conference, the entire Board of Education will begin to consider the report.

"We hope that it will give us some sense of the community vision on what the district should be doing in the next 10 years," said Superintendent McGoldrick.

SEWER MEETINGS SET

In response to State Rep. They discussed the subject at last week's meeting of the Regional Planning Board. They talked about it further at the Borough Council meeting two days later. The Sewer Operating Committee was scheduled to meet this Wednesday to ponder the matter further and to prepare for yet another meeting, this one set for next Wednesday, June 22, with the State Department of Environmental Protection and its administrator of water quality management, Arnold Schiffman.

The subject, of course, was sewers, and the flurry of meetings were all a result of the state's announcement last month that it would cease approving new sewer extensions that would flow into the Harry's Brook trunk sewer. Borough Mayor Robert Cawley, meanwhile, continued to insist that the Borough's sewer rehabilitation work was continuing on schedule. He noted that at last week's meeting the Borough Council accepted a low bid of $169,000 for additional sewer work, most of which will be directed at the Harry's Brook side of the system. Residents living close to that trunk line remained unconvinced that a solution was in sight.

The meeting this week, Mr. Cawley said, was to "discuss the sewer rehabilitation trust fund and where we stand with rehabilitation." The mayor clearly feels that Princeton is on schedule. "There's no question in my mind that, if there weren't vocal residents, we wouldn't have gotten the letter" from Mr. Schiffman.

The vocal residents include Mrs. Olivia Applegate of 98 Ransom Road, which runs parallel to the Princeton-Kingston Road between Poe and Roper roads. The Harry's Brook line runs through that neighborhood and Mrs. Applegate has made several compelling presentations documenting the gushing of effluent from the overloaded system.

Review Promised. Mrs. Applegate was on hand again at the Regional Planning Board last week, which also heard from Health officer Patrick Hansen and Borough engineer George Olexa. Mr. Hansen stated that he had heard many complaints, in addition to those of Mrs. Applegate. Mr. Olexa emphasized that work on the sewer rehabilitation had begun and that Princeton was not in violation of the consent order that had lifted the sewer moratorium in 1981.

The Planning Board, which had contemplated making about the future. The Gershon some sort of official recommendation concerning sewer allocations, stopped short of that action. Chairman Hans Sander said that the discus-

Calling All Cars

All New Jersey motorists whose vehicles are due for registration renewal in July or later must have the vehicle inspected in those months, says Clifford W. Snedeker, director of the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles. The temporary odd-even system, under which only vehicles with license plates ending in an odd number were required to report for inspection in 1983, will come to an end on June 30 of this year.

Although New Jersey is returning to annual inspections on July 1, the requirement is not retroactive for vehicles previously exempt from inspection during the period from January 1 through June 30. Those vehicles need not report for inspection until their next, regular registration renewal month in 1984.

Vehicles that were exempt from August 1 through December 31, 1982, do not have to report until their regular registration renewal month this year. "In July, we'll only be inspecting those vehicles due that month and the same goes for all other months," Mr. Snedeker said. "Your license plate number no longer determines when or if you'll be inspected. The sole determination is the month when your registration is due for renewal as indicated on your windshield inspection sticker."

sion would continue and that the board would review the sewer situation with the Township and Borough engineers as each new developer appears before the board.

All those meetings and the promise of all that review notwithstanding, Mrs. Applegate continued to take a dim view of the officials' response to what she considers a worsening problem. "All those contractors' names on paper and all those estimates of work to be done are fine," she said, "but until you see them out there digging in the street it won't be done."

Despite the sewer moratorium, she added, the flow of sewage through the Harry's Brook line "has increased tremendously in the last five years. It's getting worse and worse everytime it rains." Citing a long list of small developments that have popped up in recent years, Mrs. Applegate said, "We thought the officials were minding the store, but they weren't."

Nor was she optimistic about the future. The Gershon building and the Laidlaw, Adams & Peck buildings, both now under construction on that action. Chairman Hans Nassau Street, will funnel more waste into the Harry's Brook line. So will the proposed Collins Development, in the amount of 56,000 gallons per day, according to Mrs. Applegate. "The fact is," she said, "no one really knows how bad this trunk line is. When they start digging up the streets they may find that the problems are worse than anyone expects."

APPROVALS GRANTED
For Seminary Housing. The Princeton Theological Seminary has won Regional Planning Board approval for a plan to build 23 houses and 12 townhouses on Ross Stevenson Circle off Mount Lucas Road. The houses will be occupied by faculty members and their families.

The Seminary's application for construction of a two-story research institute on Stockton Street also was approved by the planners.

The Planning Board, meeting at its regular meeting last Tuesday, June 7, also approved Susan Hillier's application for a one-year extension on her subdivision application for Ridgeview Road, the proposed Baldwin Lane. The board also granted the American Boychoir School approval for construction of a single family house at 19 Lambert Drive for use as the headmaster's residence.

METERS PAINTED
On Prospect Avenue. All but four of the meters on Prospect Avenue were spray painted so it was impossible to read them. The paint was still fresh when the vandalism was discovered at 6:24 Tuesday morning by Ptl. William Fitch.

GOING FOR BROKE—AND $1.5 MILLION: Alan K. Hegedus, left, director of the 1983 United Way-Red Cross campaign, confers with assistant director Robert P. Clagett. The two men lead a band of volunteers who hope to raise $1.5 million, 15 percent more than last year and double the goal of just seven years ago.

vandals. A weary Chief Michael Carnevale commented, "Needless to say, the meters on Prospect have experienced a good deal of abuse."

RECORD GOAL SET
For United Way Campaign.

The goal of the 1983 United Way-Red Cross campaign of the Princeton area communities will be a record-breaking $1.5 million, according to campaign chairman Alan K. Hegedus. This represents nearly a doubling of campaign contributions in only seven years and is a 15 percent increase over last year's goal.

Mr. Hegedus, executive vice president of North American Philips Lighting Corporation, said that the goal, while a record-breaker, is regarded as realistic and necessary. "The goal reflects the potential of the campaign of more than 1,000 volunteers of the potential that throughout the fall fund can be raised in the campaign raising months of September and the growing service levels through January."

If the campaign is successful, it will mark the eighth consecutive drive and the gifts, personal gifts, Princeton fourth million dollar-plus University, mercantile, effort. The first campaign to professional offices, education exceed one million dollars was (public and private), financial in 1980 when $1,063,000 was raised. Campaign officials believe that the booming office construction throughout the greater Princeton area will help give this year's campaign a credible chance of success.

Mr. Hegedus brings to the drive his experience as last year's assistant chairman and also earlier efforts on behalf of General Electric's United Way campaign in Cleveland, Ohio. He will be assisted by Robert P. Clagett, who is employed by Western Electric as general manager of research and development. Mr. Clagett has had wide exposure to the United Way through his involvement with the United Way of Tri-State and through previous work with the United Way in Columbus, Ohio. Both men serve on the United Way Board of Trustees.

These men and 14 other volunteers will lead an army assessment of the campaign of more than 1,000 volunteers of the potential that throughout the fall fund can be raised in the campaign raising months of September and the growing service levels through January.

the nursing home operated by Princeton Medical Center, were also smashed while parked in the front lot at Merwick.

In one the right front window was broken but nothing was taken; after smashing a left front window, the glove compartment and console of a second car were ransacked. Police report nothing missing from the car.

Two Spring Street residents joined the list of victims. One lost a $200 8-track stereo when the passenger's side front window of his car was smashed while it was parked in the nearby Tulane Street lot.

The second victim lost a brown leather jacket valued at $250. The left front window of his car was smashed between midnight and nine Thursday morning while it was parked in the Witherspoon Street yard. Inside, police found a piece of concrete slab wrapped in a towel.

Windows Down. A Teaneck resident made it easy when he left his car unlocked on Green Street with the windows down and his wallet lying on the front seat. He lost $50.

In three cases, the tires of parked cars were the target. Both front tires of the car of a Princeton resident were slashed while it was parked overnight in the Park and Shop lot on Hulfish Street. An East Windsor resident claimed $40 in damage when the front tire of his car was slashed while it was parked in the Palmer Square East lot, and a number of tacks were pushed into the left front tire of a car parked overnight in the Hulfish lot, causing it to go flat. The victim is from Princeton.

DOG IS SOUGHT
In Attack On Other Dog. "We're concerned. If he attacks a dog like this, he may attack a person," commented Township Chief of Police Anthony Pinelli this week, as he reported that police are searching for a dog that critically injured another dog.

According to police, around noon Friday, a large, dark dog with tan on his chest, believed to be a rottweiler (a breed developed in Germany that has a short black coat and tan face markings) attacked a tall, slender saluki chained on a Balsam Lane property. Chief Pinelli described the attack by the larger dog, estimated at 80 to 90 pounds, as "vicious."

Neighbors told police they saw a boy approach the dog which he called "Curtis." The boy and the dog then got in a two-door white sedan operated by a woman who then drove off.

Chief Pinelli requests anyone who may have any knowledge or information about the attack to call Township police at 921-2100.

DRIVER IS STOPPED

Faces Seven Charges. Stopped early Tuesday morning on Princeton-Kingston Road after he was observed driving in a careless manner, a Princeton resident was later charged with seven offenses by Township Ptl. Robert Buchanan.

David H. Brown, 27, 7 McCosh Circle, was held in custody on $10,750 cash bail charged with driving while intoxicated, careless driving, no driver's license in possession, possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of controlled dangerous substance, possession of a loaded .45 caliber pistol, and possession of hollow point bullets.

Brown was first observed by off-duty Ptl. John Sealey around 1 o'clock in the morning. The investigation was continued by Ptl. Buchanan who, after stopping the driver, observed that the driver had been drinking.

A Morrisville, Pa. resident, was charged with driving while intoxicated after he was observed at 3:39 Sunday morning riding on the shoulder of Princeton-Kingston Road by Ptl. Anthony Gaylor.

The driver, Joseph A. Garner, 62, was later released in the custody of a friend and faces a hearing in Township court.

THREE ROOMS ENTERED
On University Campus. Three dormitory rooms on the Princeton University campus were entered last week, two in Patton Hall.

Taken from an unlocked room in Patton were a 6-string guitar in a black case valued at $450 and a 35mm camera valued at $85. A Nikon camera, lens and flash attachment with a total value of $900 were taken overnight from a locked student's room in the same building. Police said there were no signs of forced entry, despite the door being locked.

Taken during a six-day period from a student's room in Lockhart Hall were a set of pearls valued at $400. Police report they were removed from a velvet jewel case. There was no forced entry.

Westcott Home Ransacked. A home on Westcott Road was entered and ransacked between 9:30 and 11:30 Monday morning.

Entry was gained through an open, ground-floor window after the intruder first removed a screen. Chief Michael Carnevale said that the interior had been ransacked, "but as this point we don't know if anything was taken." The investigation is continuing, he said.

Nancy White, Director of Corner House Since its Founding, Planning to Retire in Fall from a Life of Community Service

"In this past year," smiles Nancy White, "I've had just a few minor decisions to make: to remarry, where to live and what to do with my career!"

She made them all: marrying Jack Worthington, former manager of the Princeton University Store, moving from a large house to a tidy condominium and, finally, deciding to retire in September as executive director of Corner House.

"Now, look what's ahead: I move into our new house in September, train a new director in September, retire formally in late September and leave on a six-week trip to Japan on October 8."

A very solid pro, with a public life of social service and a private life shadowed by tragedy, Nancy White will clearly be able to handle it all.

She is the first director of Corner House, invited in 1972 by a local intergovernmental committee to become head of a new agency which would deal with kids and drugs.

"We were on the corner of Witherspoon and Henry for eight and a half years," Nancy recalls. "The hospital allowed us to use that building and we called ourselves 'Corner House' because it was a neutral kind of name."

"We are still dealing with drugs and kids, we're still concerned, also, about drug and alcohol problems as indications of other problems within an individual and a family."

Corner House clients are mostly adolescents and their families, but some are young adults. Present offices for the staff of eight are in the Valley Road Building.

The invitation to start Corner House came while Nancy was still directing the Council of Community Services, a job she had held since 1966.

"In '66, the Council was looking for its first professional director, and it was a wonderful opportunity for me. My training had been clinical" (graduate degree in social work from Simmons, following graduation from Smith) "but I'd absorbed community organization work through my family, while I was growing up."

Nancy's father, a social worker, was the first probation officer in the first Juvenile Court in the country, in Boston. She recalls with pride and affection how he used to visit families in the North End of Boston, becoming fluent in Italian, and even looking up relatives of his young people when he visited Italy.

Nancy White

Her mother was an active volunteer in Melrose, Massachusetts, where Nancy grew up, so a career in social work — of course.

The Council of Community Services job was important for another reason. It was offered shortly after the death of Ed Gryzbek, Nancy's first husband, wounded in the Battle of the Bulge in World War II and confined to a wheelchair for the rest of his life.

"I always felt tremendous pride in the way Ed handled his disability. He never became an 'invalid,' he read voraciously, was a fascinating conversationalist, always interested in what others had to say, never dwelling on his problem."

So, after his death, she needed to be busy, and the Council offer was that "wonderful opportunity."

Nancy was already busy. She was a Neuropsychiatric Institute volunteer with a regular case load — because of her professional training — a member of the board that set up the Homemaker Service, and a founder of Princeton's Unitarian Fellowship, now the Unitarian-Universalist Church.

Unitarian-Universalism goes back even farther than social work in Nancy's lineage. Her great-great-grandfather was a Universalist, her father's family were Unitarians. One family treasure is a crockery wash-basin said to have been used by the Unitarian theologian Joseph Ballou on a visit to Nancy's family.

At the Unitarian Church following Ed Gryzbek's death, she met Milton White, Princeton University physicist, and after their marriage, began the travels that have since brought so much joy to her life. They went to Egypt and the Red Sea, to Europe, to the wild beauty of Kenya.

"I'm happiest when the scenery is beautiful. I love mountains, rivers, the fjords of Norway. My chief interest is people, but also conservation, and I feel the tension that sometimes exists between these two interests. What I feel very strongly about is keeping open space for everybody to enjoy."

In the fall of 1979, Dr. White died suddenly of a heart attack while playing tennis.

She continued to live in their Crestview Drive home, planting wild-flowers in the woods — "the deer ate my heart's-tongue fern" — and going out to her woods every spring morning to see what had blossomed overnight. She knows she will miss all that in her compact condo, but leaving the house behind means more time for travel with Jack.

"He's a travel bug like me ..."

It's not going to be easy to leave Corner House, either, and Nancy hopes to work with the new Corner House Foundation.

"The staff has been evaluating what we are, and what we want to be, and the new director will carry this on. My own greatest satisfaction has been in developing an agency I know has helped many young people and helped make a significant difference in the lives of those who have come here.

"We've had over 3,500 people over the last ten and a half years."

"So, there will definitely be community involvement for me, after I retire. I HAVE to be active."

But first — the beauties of Japan.

Princeton Shopping Center. A Princeton resident lost approximately $60 when a thief removed her wallet from her handbag in a shopping cart, and at approximately the same time a Gallup Road resident reported the theft of two wallets from her unzipped handbag. One, police said, contained credit cards, the other $110 and personal papers. The victim told police that she remembered being jostled while shopping. She discovered the theft when she went to pay her bill.

Some nylon rope, locking rings and a trapeze were stolen last week from the Project Adventure site located on a Princeton High playing field. Valued at $141, the items were stolen during the weekend.

Four bicycles were stolen last week in the Borough, including a man's 12-speed Fuji model and a two-piece $30 Kryptonite metal lock which is supposed to prevent such thefts. The victim, a university student, told police the bike had been locked to a railing in front of Frick Lab off Washington Road.

Although it was secured with a chain lock, an $80 bicycle owned by a Princeton resident was stolen overnight from the side of Dillon gym on the university campus, and a 10-speed yellow Schwinn bike was stolen from the basement of the Cottage Club on Prospect Street where it had been secured with a chain lock. Its stolen owner valued it at $230.

The 10-speed bike of a Princeton resident was stolen between 5:30 and 8:15 in the evening while it was parked last week-unlocked-on Witherspoon Street near Nassau.

INVESTIGATION RESULT
Two Charged in Robbery.
Two Princeton residents have been charged following a police investigation into a strong arm robbery at 3:58 in the morning on June 4 during reunion weekend when three teenagers were assaulted and robbed of $87.

Dean Pannell, 22, of Clay Street, was charged with theft and simple assault and is scheduled to appear in court here July 6. His companion, Timothy Kennedy, 18, of Edwards Place, was charged with receiving stolen property and faces a September 7 court appearance. Police said that Kennedy had been given part of the money allegedly stolen by Pannell.

The incident took place on Nassau Street across from Palmer Square near the taxi stand. At the time, the three victims, whom police said had been drinking, told police they felt they knew their assailants but did not know their names. The police investigation was conducted by Sgt. Timothy Huizing and Det. Randy Sutton.

Leigh Ave. Man Charged.
Twenty-year-old Timothy Foster, 12 Leigh Avenue, has been charged with assault and criminal mischief.

Foster is alleged to have smashed the windshield of a car on Witherspoon Street during an altercation last week with his girlfriend and a third person identified as Jameel Howard, 31 Race Street. Foster is alleged to have assaulted Howard, who was not seriously injured. He was later released and faces an appearance in Township Court in September.

GIRL IS CHARGED
With Drunk Driving. A 15-year-old Princeton girl has been charged by Township police with operating a car while intoxicated and with being an unlicensed driver.

A car with just its parking lights on was observed being operated in a careless manner on Valley Road near Jefferson by Ptl. Robert Buchanan around 2 a.m. Saturday. He followed the car down Valley to Ewing Street to Oakland where he ordered the driver to pull over.

As a result of his investigation, the youthful driver was charged and later released to the custody of her parents.

Juvenile Officer Jerry Offredo, as the result of an incident Monday afternoon in John Witherspoon School.

The youth allegedly threw a JWS student to the floor and punched him three or four times. The incident took place inside the school.

The high school student was later released to his father, pending completion of the investigation. Det. Offredo, who arrested the youth inside the John Witherspoon School, commented that it appears as if the incident started off as a game but quickly developed into something more serious.

Det. Offredo added that JWS officials in the past have complained of students from the high school cutting through the school as a short cut.

LIONS GIVE SCHOLARSHIP: My Thai, a senior at Princeton High School, is the recipient of the annual Princeton Lions Club Scholarship award for $2,000. TRUCK DAMAGED
By Fire. A large, garbage disposal truck operated by Higgins, Inc. of Kingston was extensively damaged by fire last week while it was in the Princeton Shopping Center.

The fire erupted in the engine area and spread to the passenger compartment. Police used powder extinguishers from two patrol cars in an attempt to put out the fire and were aided by two fire trucks and five firemen which arrived on the scene. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

VANDALS VISIT HOME
On Rosedale Road. Residents of a home on Rosedale Road were awakened by firecrackers at 2:18 Sunday morning but did not realize what else had been done until they awoke in the morning.

They discovered obscenities written on the lawn, a fence post light pulled from the ground, several bags of peat moss slashed open and the contents strewn about, a basketball net torn and several flower pots knocked over.

Police said the victims had no idea who was responsible.

ONE FOR TWO
For Scam Artists. Two scam artists claiming to be from the water company batted one for two last week on Wiggins Street.

Thursday afternoon, the two went first to the residence of an elderly person and told him they were from the water company and wanted to check his meter. Police said while one was accompanied by the victim, the other stole $180 from a drawer.

Shortly after, the two went to another house in the same area only this time the intended victim called the water company. As he did so, the two suspects fled from the house.

Police described one of the suspects as a white male in his 40s with a stocky build and square jaw; the second was a white male in his 30s with a slim build.

Commented Chief Michael Carnevale, "This is a situation that should put residents on notice. When someone comes to your home and says they represent a utility company, demand to see proper identification."

Chief Carnevale, when asked, replied that he did not believe the scam was the work of outsiders but was done by someone from this area on a whim.

week, three area drivers were fined $65 each for careless driving.

They are Sabitino A. Russo, 58 Cleveland Lane; Leslie Gibbs, 202 Loetscher Place; and Charles N. Hart, 25 Princeton Avenue, Hopewell.

INTERNSHIPS AVAILABLE
For Youth at Watersheds. Eleventh and twelfth grade or college age students are encouraged to apply for Summer Program Junior Instructor and Naturalist Intern positions at the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association.

Applicants for these Princeton Youth Fund sponsored positions must be Princeton residents, have at least a "B" average in science courses (or demonstrate an equal amount of enthusiasm), have transportation to the Watersheds Reserve located in Hopewell Township, enjoy working with youngsters, and enjoy exploring the outdoors. Position responsibilities will begin on July 5 and end August 19.

Both the Junior Instructor and Naturalist Interns will participate in a four day training-preparation session and safety and program set-up.

The Junior Instructor will, under the supervision of the professional educator staff, spend the next six weeks helping to conduct a Summer Environmental Education Day Camp for area youngsters entering grades 1 through 9.

The Naturalist Interns will, after their training session and under the guidance of the Watersheds' Program Director, develop a trail guide for the newest Stony Brook Trail, lead family group nature hikes, and implement trail improvement projects.

For application information call Program Director Pamela Paquette at 737-3735.

DAY CAMPS OFFERED
At Watersheds Reserve, The Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association invites area youngsters to explore the local environment during one of its four summer environmental education day camp programs. Participants will find adventure in the outdoors while observing wildlife in a variety of habitats.

Those entering grades 7, 8 and 9 will meet from 9-4, July 11-15 and 18-22 for "Outdoor Challenge" where environmental study combined with outdoor skill activities will challenge newcomers as well as veterans of the camp.

"Ugly Bugs, Prickly Plants and Slimy Fish" will be conducted from 9-3, July 25-29 and August 1-5 for those youngsters entering grades 5 and 6. This session has been extended to two weeks to allow for more intensive habitat explorations on the Watersheds' 535-acre Reserve as well as more field trip opportunities.

Third and fourth graders will enjoy "Mud Marvels and Pond Paddlers" from 9-3, August 8-12 if they like uncovering interesting life forms in fields, streams and ponds.

Planned as a "March of Generations," the event did indeed draw people of all ages. There were little ones in strollers or riding on the shoulders of their parents, and there were the elderly who joined the march on Nassau Street to save a few steps. Many carried balloons and posters with slogans such as "Arms Race or Human Race?" and "No Nukes is Good Nukes."

At the end of the march, they gathered in Marquand Park for hot dogs, music and speeches. The Rev. Robert Moore, executive director of the sponsoring Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament, spoke briefly. "When I was a 13-year old in Indiana I remember hearing about the Cuban missile crisis," he said. "On the outside I was as macho as

FETE NETS OVER $100,000
Many Enjoy Activities, the 30th Annual Medical Center at Princeton Fete was truly a "Heavenly Fete."

After many rainy weekends, the sun shone divinely and brought the crowds to the Princeton University Fields last Saturday to enjoy the food, shops, games, auction and 10-K race.

Through the hard work and generosity of hundreds of community volunteers and businesses, preliminary figures show the Heavenly Fete grossed more than $213,000, about $10,000 more than last year. The net figure is expected to be about half of that amount or more than $100,000, a sum that will be used to purchase capital equipment for the Medical Center. This year's Fete was co-chaired by Hillary Potter and Carol Wojciechowski.

The festivities began on Friday night when over 600 people, a sell-out crowd, attended the dinner and dance under the tent. The Don Young Band provided the music and the heavens lit up with fireworks sponsored by WHL.

The Pearly Gates opened at 9 a.m. on Saturday morning with runners gathering for the 10km race sponsored by Princeton Bank. This year's race had a record number of entrants, with 771 runners finishing the race. The overall winners were: Brian Harshman (31:47), Tony Gerrity (32:17), Charles Valan (33:13), Nora Hendricks (39:15), Barbara Elias (40:31) and Gordon Bakaulis (41:10).

The 86 degree temperatures attracted many to the booths selling 15,000 cans of soda, 46 half kegs of beer, wine and mineral water. In addition to the drinks, the lure of appetizing food booths helped to sell 5,000 hamburgers and hot dogs, 2,400 pieces of barbequed chicken, 4,000 clams, and many dishes of fish and chips and tacos. The Amison of Trenton. The meat strawberry shortcake was a raffle, sponsored by David-sell-out as were many ice-cream treats.

The Lane of Shops, with their variety of handcrafted items sold out of popular Noah's Arks and Hairy Fairies. The kitchen boutique reported a run on lemon dill and champagne mustard. A food processor, knife set and cookware donated by Cuisinart were popular items in the silent auction. Hundreds of plants found

I don't think we ever thought we'd come as far as we have in a year.

That march will be on the 20th anniversary of the "I have a dream" speech of Martin Luther King.

Upcoming Events. The Coalition has planned a number of additional events for the summer months. There will be a film festival on July 10, Mr. Moore said, and in August Princeton will be host to a group of anti-nuclear bicyclists from Europe and Russia and to a group of Nordic Women for Peace. On August 6 and 9, there will be a commemoration of the dropping of the first atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and on August 27 the Coalition will organize bus loads of marchers for a massive national march in Washington for "We turned Congress around. Jobs, Peace and Freedom."

He told the gathering that the purpose of the anti-nuclear campaign was to "lift the burden" of being scared about the future of today's children and to make sure they have a future. He said that the march was a celebration of the achievements on the part of the Coalition in the year since it organized a 12-car train load of protesters for the Rally in New York City last June 12.

Referring to the vote by Congress for a bilateral freeze on nuclear weapons, he said, "We turned Congress around."

CHANGES IN FACULTY
At Princeton University, Faculty appointments, promotions and resignations have been approved by the board of trustees of Princeton University.

Albert J. Raboteau, a visiting associate professor of religion at Princeton in 1982-83, has been appointed to full professor in the Religion Department. He has been a professor of history and Afro-American studies at the University of California, Berkeley, and a member of the faculty there since 1975.

Albert J. Raboteau

Psychologist Barry L. Jacobs, a member of the Princeton faculty since 1972, has been promoted to professor in the Psychology Department. His major research has been in the physiological and behavioral roles of brain chemicals at neurotransmitters in mammals.

Philip White, an instructor in economics at Princeton for the past year and an economics theorist, has been promoted to assistant professor for a term of three years. J. Michael Steele, an expert on probabilistic algorithms, will join the Statistics Department as a full professor. He is currently a member of both the Statistics and Computer Science departments at Carnegie-Mellon University.

Two faculty members were named to endowed chairs. Cyril E. Black has been named to the James S. McDonnell Distinguished Professorship of History and Intl. Affairs. He succeeds economist Sir W. Arthur Lewis, who is retiring from the faculty June 30. Interested in modern history, particularly Russian history since 1700, Prof. Black has also been concerned with problems of comparative modernization, which led him to collaborative studies of modernization in Maitland Jones has been named to the David B. Jones Professorship of Chemistry, succeeding Walter Kauzmann, who has held the chair for two decades. Prof. Jones has been a member of the faculty since 1964. An organic chemist, his research focuses on reactive intermediates. He served as master of Stevenson Hall, a campus dining and social facility from 1974-1981. Assistant professor of geological and geophysical sciences Robert F. Stallard has been named to the Dusenbury Preceptorship. Preceptorships are endowed junior faculty positions awarded to outstanding assistant professors for the furtherance of their teaching and scholarship.

any day, Monday through Friday, are needed to volunteer at the Red Cross. Vacations during summer months create shortages of volunteers who are relied upon to assist in providing life-supporting services in the community.

The programs in need of volunteers are Meals on Wheels and Blood Services. Meals on Wheels volunteers are needed to assist a driver with the distribution of meals to shut-ins, convalescents, handicapped and the elderly in the Princeton area communities. Blood Services volunteers are needed to assist scheduled bloodmobiles held at local industries. A Blood Services volunteer is not involved in the actual collection of blood.

For further information about how to volunteer for either of these services, call the Princeton Area Chapter at 924-2404.

COMMUNITY DAY SET
In Hopewell, Hopewell Community Day will be held again in Hopewell Borough on Saturday from morning to night at the Princeton Bank grounds, Route 518, Hopewell.

This year, as last, the "Phillie Phanatic," the official mascot of the Philadelphia Phillies, will be present from late morning to early afternoon to entertain adults and children alike. Chairman Barry Davison expects this year's event to be the best ever.

Among the day's many features are The Hopewell Challenge, a regulation run that begins the day; the Blawenburg Band; a Talent Show; Wheels of Chance; a Dunking Booth; Games for Kids; Rides for adults and children; a Flea Market; many Crafters exhibits; Petting Zoo; Jazzercise demos; Firemen's Competition; special events at the Hopewell Museum on East Broad Street (518); a book sale and finally, a dance band for everyone's enjoyment in the evening.

The beneficiary of this year's Community Day is the Food Pantry Project of the Hopewell Council of Churches. This project provides food for families and individuals in need.

STAFF IS HONORED

At Princeton University, thirty-eight members of the non-academic staff at Princeton University were honored at a reception given by President William G. Bowen last Monday.

The employees were recognized for having completed 25 years or more of service to the University during 1982-83. Each veteran employee received a captain's chair with a reproduction of the Princeton seal and an inscribed bronze plate attached.

Area staff members who were cited, and their departments, are, from Princeton, the Donald Baird, 20 Edwards Place, research paleontologist, Department of Geological and Geophysical Sciences; James H. Babour, 17 Green Street, warehouse supervisor, Plasma Physics Laboratory (PPL); Dirck L. Dimock, Hibben Apartments, principal research physicist, PPL; David T. Harrie, 24 Autumn Hill Road, senior research engineer, Center for Energy and Environmental Studies; Also, Mildred Klotzbach, Magie Apartments, gift processing administrator, Development Administration; Irene R. Long, 165 Penn Lane, division budget officer, PPL; Robert W. Motley, 7 Hamilton Avenue, principal research physicist, PPL; Harry E. Riddell, 252 Riverside Drive, assistant controller for payroll, insurance manager, Controller's Office;

Also, Marion E. Sandvik, RD 1, technical secretary II, Department of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering; Hedvig Selberg, 7 Maxwell Lane, applications programmer, PPL; H. Elizabeth Skaar, Washington Road, office assistant IV, Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures; Kenneth E. Wakefield, Cherry Valley Road, engineer, PPL; Elizabeth C. Wooden, 634 Rosedale Road, buyer, PPL; and Albert J. Wright, 42 Murray Place, expediter, PPL.

From Princeton Junction, Joseph W. Hengeli, unit supervisor, PPL; from Plainsboro, Anthony J. Sivo, technical associate, Department of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering; from Rocky Hill, Elmer G. Perantoni, Crescent Avenue, shop foreman, Grounds and Building Maintenance; and from Hopewell, Robert E. Majeski, 19 Crestview Drive, unit supervisor, PPL; and John R. Piggott, View Point Drive, associate director of the Computer Center.

Also from Lawrenceville, Thomas J. Devine, 811 President Avenue, technician VI, PPL; Harold G. Johnson, 19 Jill Lane, engineer, PPL; Milton Pelovitz, 14 Balsam Court, project engineer, PPL; and Ellis D. Simon, 30 Stonicker Drive, engineer, PPL.

DRIVE IS UNDERWAY
For Disaster Funds, The Princeton Area Chapter,

American Red Cross, has launched an emergency fund campaign to enable the American Red Cross to continue relief services for the many victims of disasters throughout the United States.

During the past ten months, $33 million has been expended in a series of major disasters. National goal for the fund campaign is $12 million.

The 1983 disasters included a hurricane in Hawaii, floods and tornadoes in Mississippi, Illinois, Arkansas, Missouri, Alabama and Louisiana. Mudslides occurred in Utah and Nevada. Texas was struck by tornadoes, storms ravaged the West coast and an earthquake hit Coalinga, Calif.

Contributions should be made out to American Red Cross and designated, "Emergency Disaster Fund." They should be sent to American Red Cross, Princeton Area Chapter, 182 North Harrison Street. For further information call 924-2404.

CHILD BIRTH TOPIC

Of Rocky Hill Talk. The Mary Jacobs Library in Rocky Hill will present a program on "Preparing for the Joy of Childbirth" on Thursday at 7:30. Linda C. Dudek will discuss the Bradley Method of husband-coached, natural childbirth. This program is free and open to the public. For further information, call the library at 861-7073.

INTERNS SOUGHT

For Summer Theater. NewStage at Intime, Princeton's summer theater housed on the Princeton University campus, is now accepting applications for its internship program. NewStage interns do not need any prior experience in the theater — just enthusiasm and a willingness to learn about all aspects of running a small theater. If an applicant has an interest in a specific aspect of the theater (sets, lighting, costumes, box office, publicity), NewStage will attempt to pair up the intern with the appropriate staff member.

Because of the nature of the theater business, the internship will not be a 40-hour week, 9-5 commitment, but will be scheduled between the intern and NewStage. Internships are particularly suited to those who may have other summer commitments but free hours in evenings and on the weekends. For information call 452-8181.

REGISTRATION DUE
For YWCA Specials. Registration is in full swing for the summer offerings of the YWCA. Most classes start the last week in June.

Some highlights are, Ann Harwood's Summer Cooking with Herbs and Flowers, three sessions starting Tuesday, June 21, from 6-9 p.m.; Anna Hill, Elmer G. Perantoni, Willingham's Resume Writing Workshop, June 28, at 7:30; a sculpture walk on the Princeton University campus, conducted by docents of the Princeton Art Museum, Thursday, June 30, at 9:30;

Also, Marjorie Meriam's Herb Workshop and Luncheon, Wednesday, June 29, at 10 a.m. at Honey Hollow Herb Farm, Washington's Crossing, and an antiques forum, Thursday evening, June 30, at 7:30, for which participants are encouraged to bring in their own antiques and "mystery objects" for discussion and identification.

For further information on these and other offerings of the Adult Department, call the YWCA Adult Department director at 924-5571.

GARDEN PROGRAM SET
For Youngsters. The YWCA will offer a new summer program for nature buffs in 4th-6th grades.

Called "A Patch of Green," the program is designed to teach youngsters how to design and landscape a garden, how to plant a variety of shrubs and flowers, and how to prune and take care of trees. Larry Benson, president of Treeco, will head the program. Under his supervision, the youngsters in the program will design and install a permanent garden at the YWCA.

A Patch of Green will be offered Wednesday afternoons, June 29-August 24, from 3 to 5. Space is limited, and advance registration is required. For more information, call the YWCA, 924-5571.

While There is Time.

To the Editor of Town Topics: The historic elm tree in the Palmer Square Park and Shop lot is looking particularly healthy and beautiful this spring.

It does not know that it is going to be cut down to make way for a parking garage. There are so few of these lovely old trees left that everyone should come to admire it while there is time.

Enough Already

To the Editors of Town Topics:

should show that, in the week preceding this pivotal meeting, Collins did receive important boost from three sources. Borough Mayor Robert Cawley, who sits on the Planning Board, issued a financial analysis showing that the proposed Collins development could add more than $300,000 a year to the Borough's income, through increased taxes and rental of the land for the Chambers Street parking garage.

The mayor pointed out that Collins also would make one-time payments of more than a half million dollars as a contribution to the sewer rehabilitation trust fund, improvements in intersections, and a contribution for a mini-pumper for the fire department. In addition, Collins would pay an as yet unspecified amount for the air rights over Palmer Square East. The Borough has hired an appraiser to determine the fair market value of those rights.

When asked why he was presenting the economic analysis, the mayor responded, "I wouldn't make the comment if I thought the plan was bad." The project, he added, would represent a 15 percent increase in the total valuation of the Borough. "A 15 percent increase is a heckuva lot of money," Mr. Cawley said.

Another boost for Collins came from William H. Walker II, a Princeton architect who served on the Regional Planning Board from 1970 to 1979 and who is presently an alternate on the Environmental Design Review Commission. As a member of Borough Council he helped produce the master plan of 1967. He chaired the Central Business district subcommittee that formulated the CBD master plan of 1974, and he participated in some discussions leading to the master plan of 1980.

"Collins has not come to the Borough with his own downtown development plan and tried to ram it down our throats," wrote Mr. Walker in a letter to the Planning Board. "He is trying to follow and satisfy the guidelines established by us...in our plans of 1967, '74, and the '80s. As an architect I don't agree with some of his architectural details and I think his public Relations has been nil... But we will never get the 'ideal' solution. With another developer less amenable to constructive suggestion, we could get something much worse."

If Mr. Walker's comments cheered the Collins people, then they must have been overwhelmed at the response to the plan of William H. Whyte, one of the eminent advocates of the creative use of open space in urban landscapes. Mr. Whyte, a University graduate and former resident, was brought to town by Collins earlier this year to study the project's open spaces, and to help rearrange residential units planned for the Hulsfish area to meet Planning Board criticisms.

The end result, wrote Mr. Whyte in a letter to Mr. Harvie, should rank Palmer Square "among the best center-of-town spaces anywhere in the country. The mistake many communities make is to strive for one monumental, imposing central space. They usually don't get used very much, for they are out of scale with the individual. A series of smaller spaces usually works out much better. Each can be designed to be in character with the uses best suited to them."

Mr. Whyte remained somewhat critical of open spaces in the condominium development, but called the latest plan "an improvement" and added that the overall plan should "give new vitality to a very fine old town."

For all that good news, Collins still came under fire from critics, on a wide variety of issues: —The choice of Palmer Square East for the Nassau Inn expansion, John Van Plan-tinga, a member of the Planning Board, thought that the bridge over the roadway was a degree of excellence in their own lives and in the areas they manage, according to firm principals Ralph Copleman and Linda Albert, who will conduct the workshop.

In addition to a review of the concepts developed in "In Search of Excellence," the session offers what Mr. Copleman and Ms. Albert term "learning guarantees." One of these is a procedure for getting a clear picture of the overall effectiveness or "excellence" of an organization. Another is a method for blending "excellence criteria" into the career plans of individual executives.

Some areas in which they offer expertise are strategic planning, performance appraisal, transition management, meeting effectiveness, team building, and management development.

DENTAL OFFICE MOVES

To Professional Park. Gilbert A. Falcone, D.D.S., has moved his dental office to Princeton Professional Park, 601 Ewing Street. The office has been designed by a California firm to use the solar heat and light patterns of the building.

Dr. Falcone is a graduate of Temple University School of Dentistry and a staff member of Princeton Medical Center. A Fellow of the American Academy of General Dentistry, he was for many years the dentist for the Princeton schools and designed the Borough dental program.

Laura S. Bardach has joined Dr. Falcone's practice. Dr. Bardach graduated from Columbia University with an M.S. in human nutrition and a D.D.S. She also has her certificate in family dentistry from the University of Connecticut.

Dr. Bardach is a faculty member at Columbia University, Department of Preventive Dentistry where she does research in nutrition and dentistry. Dr. Falcone and Dr. Bardach will offer comprehensive dental care, including nutritional evaluation and counseling, home care instruction, new alternatives in periodontal treatment, cosmetic bonding and bleaching, joint treatment and restorative crowns and bridges.

PERSONNEL NOTES

Shirley B. Putnam of Princeton Junction has joined the Princeton office of Weichert Realtors.

Mrs. Putnam comes to Weichert after a career in real estate sales and brokerage with a Schenectady, N.Y., firm. She has a degree in nursing and has worked as an organizational consultant. A member of St. Paul's Church and the Princeton Newcomers Club, she does volunteer work for Princeton Medical Center and the American Boychoir School.

Several promotions and new assignments have been announced at Gallup & Robinson, Inc. Floyd M. Poling and William H. Van Pelt Jr., both vice presidents, have each dangerous planning precedent. "If the Planning Board approves this bridge, anyone else could do it." Because of the decision to place the expansion on that small site, Mr. Palmer Square West which Van Plantinga maintained, backs up onto an alley, Collins was stuck with a plan Palmer Square East has no that required small rooms separate pathway for delivery ("some are like the inside trucks and service vehicles, cabin on the F deck of the The mass of the bridge, he admitted," he said) and the ded, would lead to further development of the bridge gestion of the street.

Inn Addition

Just Another Street? When asked how congested he thought Palmer Square East sites were considered for the Inn expansion," he said, but every other street in Princeton. "The critical issue, in the Collins representative's mind, was that 'the people in support of the project are those closest to it.'"

The bridge between the old and new portions of the hotel was not added without thought, Mr. Harvie maintained. "The bridge is what makes this project. We want to create one hotel, with new rooms in harmony with the others. You need to connect the two parts of the hotel, you can't just tell a guest he's staying in some bigger than the existing rooms, but we didn't want to make them too much bigger, because we didn't want people to think of a new part of the hotel versus the old part."

Traffic. Mr. Van Plantinga pointed out that, unlike Van Plantinga maintained, backs up onto an alley, Collins was stuck with a plan Palmer Square East has no that required small rooms separate pathway for delivery ("some are like the inside trucks and service vehicles, cabin on the F deck of the The mass of the bridge, he admitted," he said) and the ded, would lead to further development of the bridge gestion of the street.

Just Another Street? When asked how congested he thought Palmer Square East sites were considered for the Inn expansion," he said, but every other street in Princeton. "The critical issue, in the Collins representative's mind, was that 'the people in support of the project are those closest to it.'"

The bridge between the old and new portions of the hotel was not added without thought, Mr. Harvie maintained. "The bridge is what makes this project. We want to create one hotel, with new rooms in harmony with the others. You need to connect the two parts of the hotel, you can't just tell a guest he's staying in some building down the street."

Finances. Barbara Sigmund, Democratic candidate for Borough mayor, voiced concern over Collins' financing and whether or not the company will be able to bear the load of the development. "The terms and conditions of the participating banks are not spelled out," she said. She pointed to a copy of a letter from Collins' lead banker, the J. Henry Schroder Bank & Trust Company, which looked as if it had been dashed off on a rental typewriter on a plain sheet of paper. The letter, to Planning Board chairman Hans Sander, said Schroder was "prepared" to lend Collins $80 million, subject to municipal approvals and "terms and conditions" between Collins and the banks.

"On this thin thread," said Mrs. Sigmund, clearly skeptical, "hang the hopes of our central business district."

Mr. Harvie acknowledged that the letter had been dashed off at the last minute, when representatives of Schroder and other participating bankers were meeting at the Nassau Inn and suddenly were faced with the need to prepare a letter for Mr. Sander. As for the contingencies, Mr. Harvie added, "no one is going to issue a loan commitment to us until the Planning Board gives its approval."

The Collins company itself, Mr. Harvie added, was doing well financially. Constitution Hill, which was hurt by high interest rates, the same as every other real estate project, sold a dozen or so units in the last few months and was expected to be sold out by next year. The space at 1 Palmer Square, vacated by several tenants who couldn't afford the higher Collins rents, was on the verge of being leased.

Mr. Harvie said that a new delicatessen and restaurant, serving three meals a day, was about to sign a lease for the first floor space formerly occupied by the Nassau Deli. He acknowledged that the company had erred, especially from a public relations viewpoint, in removing tenants without having new tenants ready to take their places.

Another snafu was giving the Boy Scouts the impression that they couldn't sell their trees in Palmer Square. That was miscommunication, the Collins people insisted. As for the kiosk, Mr. Harvie would still build it but he would not have painted it yellow and green, the original color scheme which was soon changed.

And the Seward Johnson sculpture of the hamburger eater, Mr. Harvie said in response to that criticism, is simply back at the atelier being cleaned up for its eventual and imminent return to the Palmer Square plaza. "We want to do things right," said Mr. Harvie, who may soon find out if the Planning Board agrees.

OBITUARIES

The Rev. Dr. John A. Mackay, 94, president emeritus of Princeton Theological Seminary and a former moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the USA, died June 9 at Meadow Lakes Retirement community, Hightstown.

Dr. Mackay was born in Inverness, Scotland and graduated in 1912 with an M.A. degree with first class honors in philosophy from the University of Aberdeen. He studied theology at Princeton and received a B.D. degree in 1915.

As a recipient of The Theological Fellowship upon graduation, he studied for a year in Spain under Miguel de Unamuno and others. In 1918 he was awarded the Litt. D. degree from the University of San Marcos in Lima, Peru.

He married Jane Logan Wells in 1916 and together they went to Lima as educational missionaries. They founded the Colegio Anglo-Peruano, which today is Colegio San Andres, one of the leading Protestant schools in Latin America. Dr. Mackay was principal of the school for a time.

In 1925 he was invited to occupy the Chair of Philosophy in the National University of San Marcos, with headquarters first in Uruguay and later in Mexico. He worked under the auspices of the South American Federation of YMCAs as a special lecturer in religious and cultural subjects. Fluent in Spanish, he was invited to lecture in leading universities in Latin America, and throughout his life he maintained a keen interest in Hispanic thought and culture.

In 1932, Dr. Mackay joined the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the USA where until 1936 he was secretary in charge of the work in Africa and Latin America. In 1936 he returned to Princeton Theological Seminary. He served as president of the Seminary and professor of ecumenics for 23 years until his retirement in 1959.

During his life, Dr. Mackay was closely related to the ecumenical movement of the Christian Church as well as to theological education. In 1953 he was named moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the USA, the highest elected officer of the denomination. He was one of the first to challenge McCarthyism of the 1950s with a strong statement issued as a "Letter to Presbyterians."

He was past president of the American Association of Theological Schools, chairman of the International Missionary Council, and president for a five year term of the World's Presbyterian Alliance, now called the World Alliance of Reformed Churches.

Following his retirement, Dr. Mackay and his wife lived in Washington, D.C. for 10 years, where he was active in church and educational pursuits. In 1964 the government of Peru bestowed on him the honor Palmas Magisteriales for his work in education in that country.

He founded the theological quarterly "Theology Today" in 1964 and was its editor until 1967. He was the author of 13 books, three in Spanish and 10 in English.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by three daughters, Isobel Metzger of Princeton, Elena Reischer of Kingsville, Tex., and Ruth Russell of Columbus, Ohio; a son, Duncan A.D. Mackay of Washington, D.C.; a brother, the Rev. William R. Mackay of Inverness, Scotland; 11 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

The service was held in Miller Chapel of Princeton Theological Seminary. Burial was in Princeton Cemetery.

Daniel Johnson Sr., 67, of Princeton Avenue, Rocky Hill, died June 7 in Princeton Medical Center.

Mr. Johnson was born in Cedar Grove and had lived in Rocky Hill for 43 years. He was a construction superintendent and a member of the New Jersey National Guard.

Surviving are his wife, Pinina Watson Johnson; a son, Daniel Jr., at home; two brothers, James Wyckoff of Bordentown and Willie Wyckoff of Camden; and three sisters, Sarah Still and Dorothy Wyckoff, both of Camden, and Betty Outlet of Bordentown.

The service was held in the Martin Luther King Chapel of the First Baptist Church, the Rev. Edward Smith, pastor of First Baptist, and the Rev. Alfred A. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Pennington, officiating. Burial was in Princeton Cemetery.

Robert Chenick, 35, of Riverside Drive, died June 8 of cancer at his home.

Mr. Chenick was born in New York City and had lived in Princeton since 1961. A 1966 graduate of Princeton High School, he received a BA degree from the University of Oregon at Eugene, Ore. A former employee of Princeton Medical Center and the Princeton University Store, he was a Navy veteran and a member of Big Brothers and Sisters Association of Mercer County.

Surviving are his parents, Betty and Albert Chenick of Princeton; two sisters, Anne Freeman of Chapel Hill, N.C., and Laura Korn of South Orange; a niece and a nephew.

A memorial service was held at Nassau Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Donald M. Mackenzie Jr. officiating. Burial was in Princeton Cemetery. The family requests no flowers be sent. Memorial contributions may be made to Big Brothers and Sisters Association of Mercer County, 42 Arctic Parkway, Trenton, 08638.

Arrangements were under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

COALITION FORMED

With Hunger As Focus, The Princeton Hunger Coalition has been organized by representatives from a number of Princeton groups involved in combating hunger.

A meeting of such groups was suggested to the Princeton Clergy Association by the Hunger Committee of the Nassau Presbyterian Church, and was endorsed by the local clergy. Thirty people, representing 14 groups, responded to the call to meet.

The representatives described to each other the ways their groups work to alleviate hunger, both at home and around the world. The projects described ranged from food collection for hungry families in Princeton to participation in national drives, such as the CROP Walk.

Several church groups participate in hunger-related projects in Trenton, including the Soup Kitchen, the Forum Project, and the Crisis Ministry. While some churches have well-organized ongoing programs, others are looking for ways to become more involved in fighting hunger.

It was determined that there was a need for a Hunger Coalition to support the existing efforts and possibly to plan for additional all-Princeton activities. A steering committee was appointed, consisting of Adrienne Anderson from the Nassau Presbyterian Church, John Conrard from the Hunger Project and the Nassau Presbyterian Church, Paul Douglas from the Society of Friends, Joan Forscher from the Jewish Center, and Terry Grove from Church World Service-CROP.

Plans are underway for assembling a resource list for groups interested in hunger-related activities, for supporting the CROP Walk scheduled for October 16, for publicizing the already existing hunger projects in the Princeton area, and for organizing a Hunger Study Day on October 15.

BULLETIN NOTES

The Rev. Allen Gartner will conclude his ministry as pastor of Lutheran Church of the Messiah this Sunday. A single service will be held at 10:30, followed by a farewell salad luncheon. Sunday School children and their families are also invited; there will be hot dogs, desserts and games for the youngsters.

The Rev. Mauro Brion, a native of the Philippines and director of the Association of Bible Churches of the Philippines (ABCOP) will speak at Western Road Church on Sunday evening at 6:30.

The Rev. Mr. Brion is a graduate of Febias College of Bible in Manila. He served as a missionary on the island of Marinduque in the Philippines for two years. Following that time he was pastor of two churches. He is presently serving on the board of directors of Febias College of Bible.

Robert Armstrong will speak on current events in Latin America and particularly El Salvador at the Princeton Unitarian Church Sunday at 8 in the Little Theatre. The talk is under the sponsorship of the Social Concerns Committee.

Mr. Armstrong is a specialist in Latin American affairs and is on the staff of the North American Congress on Latin America. He lived in El Salvador for two years and has written a book on events there. The public is invited.

The Spicer family will give a concert Sunday at 6:30 at Nassau Christian Center, Nassau and Chambers Streets. The Spicers are said to be one of America's finest families of Southern gospel music.

For more information call Jesse Owens, pastor, at 921-0981 or 452-2828.

The Prince of Peace Lutheran Church will begin its summer schedule this Sunday. From now until Labor Day, the worship service will be held at 9:30 and will be followed by fellowship over coffee and tea beginning at about 10:30.

For information call the pastor, the Rev. G. Frederick Schott, 799-1753 or 799-1783.

The Princeton United Methodist Church will initiate its Fun Sunday summer program for children ages 4-12 on Sunday, June 19. Children watch films, play games, do arts and crafts projects and have a snack while their parents attend the worship service.

The worship service and the Fun Sunday program will be held at 11 on June 19 and at 10 on June 26 and all Sundays until after Labor Day.

Doris Donnelly will be the guest preacher this Sunday at the 10 a.m. service in the chapel of the Princeton University Chapel.

Dr. Donnelly teaches courses in spirituality and sacramental theology at Princeton Theological Seminary. She is a consultant on adult education for the Roman Catholic Diocese of Trenton and is the author of two books, "Learning to Forgive" (Macmillan) and "Putting Forgiveness into Practice" (Argus).

Rochelle Beth Meyer, aged 13, daughter of Walter and Linda Meyer of West Windsor, will be called to the Torah as Bat Mitzvah on Saturday at the Jewish Center. She is a seventh grade honor student in the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District.

DOGWOOD -- Expect leaf spots and blights to be prevalent again this year due to record rainfall and cloudy skies. Dogwood DECLINE has been apparent this year throughout the Northeast. Although numerous fungi have been isolated from declining trees and researchers agree that these organisms are secondary. The main culprit is ENVIRONMENTAL STRESS, with extensive drought and severe winter weather during the past few years now taking its toll. For best results in the future, remove dead branches and maintain optimum growing conditions to increase tree vigor, especially fertilization of the trees.

BOXWOOD -- Extensive dieback has been reported this year. In most cases winter injury was involved. Since the early-winter months were unusually warm, branches on many plants remained succulent and were damaged by the rapid temperature fluctuations in January and February. To prevent entrance of wood decaying organisms, remove as many dead limbs as possible. If Cankers are noticed, prune them out and spray the plant 3-4 times with copper at 10 day intervals.

Places to avoid when planting trees: under power or telephone lines; close to a house or building -- may damage siding, clog gutters or loosen roofing; close to home foundations -- allow a minimum of 30 feet. Please call WOODWINDS (924-3500) for all your tree care needs.

Every amenity imaginable has been included in this exquisitely detailed Georgian Brick Colonial by the present builder-owner. Magnificent oak doors open to the gracious skylighted hall. The spacious living room with marble fireplace and wet bar closeted behind double doors, opens out to terrace. Light and airy, the dining room features a wall of windows overlooking pool and terrace and lovely silk wallcovering. Solid cherry panelling, display case, built-ins and fireplace enhance the study. Everything the most discriminating gourmet could desire is provided in the kitchen/breakfast room: work island with built-in food processor; vegetable sink; well-planned work and storage areas; Thermador double self-cleaning electric ovens (1 with built-in microwave); Thermador counter top 4 burner stove with grill; warming ovens and light. French tiled floor, cherry cabinets, Corian counter tops along with large windows provide a beautiful room to work, dine and relax. Two powder rooms, large closets by entries. A graceful curved stairway leads to second floor. Master suite consists of bedroom with fireplace, two dressing rooms, very large closets and two baths. Guest suite has a lovely sitting room overlooking pool, bedroom and bath. Another large bedroom and bath adjoins study and children's wing where there are two more bedrooms, laundry, bath, utility and cedar closets, access to deck and back stairs.

On one side of the pool is a covered terrace, perfect for entertaining. Barbecue grill, mini kitchen, dressing rooms and bath. A portico on the opposite side leads to a two-story caretakers cottage - living room, dining area, kitchen, 3 bedrooms and 2 baths plus family room. Beyond the iron fenced, brick pillared terrace is a lovely park-like yard. 6 plus acres. 3 car garage with electric door openers plus garage for bicycles, etc. Solid brass hardware, random width floors, built-in stereo system, double glazed Pella windows, heatilator fireplaces and solid oak doors (or oak and cherry where needed to match decor of room) throughout the house. No utilitarian or cosmetic detail has been overlooked in this unique house featuring the timeless assets - good design and good taste.

Custom Homes By

The site is naturally rolling and covered with native dogwoods and large shade trees.

Eleven custom homes will be built on lots of at least three quarters of an acre, in a cluster plan with seven acres of common open space.

William Bucc Builders, Inc., are local builders with a fine record of building quality custom homes in the Princeton area. They will build from their plans or yours. All lots are fully developed with public water, sewer and underground utilities of electric and gas.

Princeton Day School Honors Three Retirees For Years of Dedicated and Talented Teaching

Commencement and closing exercises at Princeton Day School last week paid tribute to three retiring teachers who have taught a combined total of 89 years.

But though that number gives rise to encomiums for dedication, loyalty and lots of hard work, it does not itself begin to tell the story of the contribution of this threesome to the life of Princeton Day School and to its predecessor schools, Miss Fine's and Princeton Country Day. The three are Sally Patterson, first grade teacher for 36 years, Margaret (Mag) Gilbert, lower school music teacher for 34 years, and Fowler (Mike) Merle-Smith, who has been both a teacher and an administrator at middle and lower school levels.

Mrs. Patterson began teaching first grade at Miss Fine's School in 1947, mostly doing remedial work at first while her own three children were young. "I love first grade," she says. "It is a very important time." Her grandmother, whom she admired, was a teacher, but not at a young level, and her mother, who started teaching when she was 14, was another role model.

Mrs. Patterson herself began "helping out" at a school in Washington, while her husband was in the Navy, and for a while she taught in a school her mother started. She remembers Miss Fine's as being "tiny" compared to PDS today. Miss Fine's was located in the "old" Princeton Inn building where Borough Hall stands now. A kindergarten through 12th grade school for part of her being, she hopes to be back at PDS for tutoring Princeton Country Day (boys, as needed).

Through widowhood, a fire that ravaged her home in Kingston (she and her son Jamie lived with the McClures until it was habitable again), and even a robbery, Mrs. Patterson has remained an unyielding, optimistic person. "She has an incredible acceptance of what life deals of Mrs. Patterson, as he does out," says Sarah Schweibert, for all three teachers. "A head of the lower school.

quiet, self-effacing person of great warmth, a very sensitive individual who is always adapting to make the right program for the child," Mr. McClure says.

Mrs. Patterson is also known for the "incredible courage" of her come-back after several years ago from a paralyzing viral illness she has created 33 similar to polio. Given no such operettas, only three of chance of living in the original which have been published, diagnosis, and thin to the point of emaciation, she nonetheless retired in which to put this worked her way back through arduous leg exercises and shape.

Mrs. Gilbert had written original musical skits and shows since her own high school and college days in the south. Early in her teaching at Princeton Day School, she found material that wasn't, as she puts it, insulting to the intelligence of a second grader. Her genius lies not only in the writing of original work but also in a unique ability to get very young children to understand and experience all that goes into the putting on of a theatre production.

Although high expectations and mastery of many elements through discipline and drill are involved, the key precept to Mrs. Gilbert's teaching is that enjoyment comes before literacy. Years later students still remember the words of the songs they sang as fourth graders in "The Great Buttermilk Plate Robbery" or "Aesop's Fables" or "The King Who Had a Problem."

In addition to the operettas, there were also the Christmas Pageant, a tradition dating back to the time of Miss Fine herself, the Hanukkah ceremony Mrs. Gilbert instituted, the Thanksgiving

Assembly and the "crazy" Halloween Parade—all benefited from her lively music and acute sense of theatre. And she managed to cajole the faculty into putting on four musical shows which uncovered talents many did not know they had.

"I've had a wonderful career," Mrs. Gilbert says. "There are very few people who can write their stuff and be able to see it performed right away. I am very fortunate."

A Gentle Man. A Scholar. Mike Merle-Smith was brought to Princeton to head what was then called the junior school for the merging Princeton Day Schools (the 's' was later dropped). In a transition year without a headmaster, he served on a committee of four that ran the new school and made crucial decisions on educational policy and the completion of the facility on the Great Road.

Mr. McClure says that it was Mr. Merle-Smith particularly who kept asking the right questions, "lovely, gentlemanly, sensitive questions that were difficult to answer—and he never stopped doing it. He was in a sense the educational conscience of the school, and much of the present middle school bears his stamp."

After serving in the Navy in the Pacific in World War II, Mr. Merle-Smith entered Princeton with the Class of 1948 but graduated in 1952. His first teaching was at the Punahou School in Hawaii where he and a fellow sailing enthusiast decided to build a boat and sail around the world. Their adventures aboard Mahjong, a 52-foot yawl built to their specifications in Hong Kong, were

'ARTHUR' & 'VICTOR'
At Kresge Auditorium, Summer Cinema '83, the seventh season of McCarter Theatre's summer-long series of weekly double-feature film presentations at Kresge Auditorium on the Princeton campus, opens this Wednesday through Sunday with the comedy combination of "Arthur" and "Victor, Victoria." "Arthur" will be shown at 7:30, with "Victor, Victoria" following at 9:20 p.m.

In the 1981 "Arthur," Dudley Moore plays the title role, that of an alcoholic rich boy who stands to inherit his family's fortune only if he marries an equally rich society girl (Jill Eikenberry). Just as he has resigned himself to his fate, Arthur falls hopelessly in love with a poor but dishonest waitress (Liza Minnelli). Watching over his fate is his implacable valet (Sir John Gielgud). The father-son relationship that develops between Moore and Gielgud is the comic centerpiece of the film.

Blake Edwards' "Victor, Victoria" is a lavish, ribald musical comedy about mistaken identity, role playing, love, innocence, and sexual confusion. Julie Andrews, an out-of-work opera singer, hooks up with a homosexual cabaret performer (Robert Preston). His plan is to dress her as a man and promote her as the world's best female impersonator. The ruse works until she falls for macho Chicago gangster (James Garner) who believes she's a man, and questions his own sexuality.

Summer Cinema's second week (June 22-26) will combine last summer's surprise hit "An Officer and a Gentleman" and Lawrence Kasdan's "Body Heat," and

'12th NIGHT' TONIGHT
At Washington Crossing Park. The verbal magic and bawdy wit of William Shakespeare's classic comedy, "Twelfth Night," will open the season at Washington Crossing Park's Open Air Theatre this Thursday for a three-day run.

The production is presented by the Shakespeare '70 Susan Tapper, director, and company whose work on area stages and cable TV is widely known. "Twelfth Night" stars Rick Bossman as Feste, Bob Erath III as Sir Andrew, Betty Coleman as Olivia, Maureen West as Maria, Chris Erath as Sebastian, Colin Jenei as Fabian, Tom Curbishley as the sea captain, and Kilty Peace as a lady. Rounding out the cast are Michael Mezei.

"Twelfth Night" is under the direction of John F. Erath, professor of English at Trenton State College. Gale Erath is designing the costumes and Gerald E. Gaurnieri is producing and designing the sets.

Performances will be held on Thursday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Tickets can only be purchased at the box office on the evening of the performance. The Open Air Theatre is located in the center of Washington Crossing Park in Titusville, north of Trenton on Route 29.

'MUSIC' TO OPEN
At Open Air Theatre. Rehearsals are underway for the production of "The Sound of Music" by the Pennington Players, opening next Thursday, June 23, at the Open Air Theatre, Washington Crossing State Park.

Susan Tapper, director, and Richard Loatman, musical director, have cast Jan Moule as Maria and Harry Clark as Captain Von Trapp, with the roles of the children being played by Rick Davis, Kristin Chebra, Kathy Guthrie, Chris Hanson, Leigh Jonaitis, Mary Lee Marson, and Sarajane Smith. Nancy Jackson will be seen as the Mother Abbess, Priscilla Orr Treadwell as Elsa, and Jack Fidel as Max.

Sister Margaretta will be portrayed by Janice Latella, Sister Berthe by Diane Guenther, and Jean Bos as Sister Sophie. The nuns will be played by Robi Carlson, Mary L. Johnson, Lona Marchetti, Kristina Muehleisen and Francine Papero, with Betty Henninger playing both a nun and Frau Schmidt. Joan Ducko will appear as a nun and Ursula. Others in the cast include Mark Adams as Rolf, Brad Cazwell as Franz, Jim Kennedy as Baron Elberfeld, Bruce Seaman as Zeller and Ed Teti as Admiral Von Schieber.

Judy Lehrhaupt and Jack Rees, who are co-producing the show, have chosen Marie Miller as costumer, Chris Bishop as set designer, Gerry Oravsky as property mistress, and Gary Garofano as stage manager.

The production will be seen in the Open Air Theatre of Washington Crossing State Park on June 23, 24, 25 and 30, and July 1 and 2, with rain dates of June 26 and/or July 3. Tickets for the show may be purchased at the gate.

DANCERS CHOSEN
For Princeton Ballet. Seventy-two dancers competed earlier this month in the auditions for the Princeton Ballet II. The senior company accepted 16 members and 3 as senior apprentices. The junior company, for dancers between the ages of 12 and 15, gained 21 members and 6 apprentices.

Area residents chosen to perform in the senior company include Anne Woodside of Princeton, and Hillary Jackson, Elizabeth Brienza, Laura Keys, and Kathleen Klopfer, all of Princeton Junction. Lucinda Paxton of Princeton and Pamela Levy of Plainsboro were named to the senior provisional troupe.

Those selected for the junior company include Christy Morrison, Catherine Lo Monaco, Lisa Snyder, Alicia Diaz, Caroline Kahn, Lydia Breck, and Alysa Weisberg, all of Princeton; Heyun Paek and Martha Wendel, both of Lawrenceville; and Elizabeth Markarian and Gretchen Lowe, both of Belle Mead. Chosen as junior apprentices were Gregory Gordon of Princeton and Emily Kline of Belle Mead.

The auditions were conducted by Patricia Sweeney Triplett, a principal dancer currently on leave from the Pittsburgh Ballet, and Edward Stewart, a former member of the Pennsylvania Ballet who is now artistic director of the Annapolis Ballet in Maryland.

Princeton Ballet II, the non-professional wing of the Princeton Ballet Company, was founded in 1963 by Audree Estey. It provides young dancers with the opportunity to study and perform under the direction of Judith Leviton and Dermot Burke. Ballet II dancers perform their own repertoire and frequently join the professional company in large-scale productions such as "The Nutcracker," which will be performed for the 20th consecutive year this December.

DANCE CLASSES SET
At Art People Place, Joy Vrooman will teach dance classes this summer at the Art People Place, 102 Witherspoon Street. Classes will run for eight weeks, beginning June 27.

Monday through Thursday from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. she will teach a stretch and placement class; Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7:45 to 9:15 she will lead modern dance classes. Ms. Vrooman has an MFA in dance and is currently training in dance therapy. She has been working in this area for the past two years as a teacher, choreographer and dancer and is a 1983 recipient of a New Jersey State Council on the Arts choreographer's fellowship.

For further information and registration call 921-8579 or 924-8777.

'BUS STOP,' AGAIN
On Stage in Princeton. Imagine the scene: Princeton in the 1950s. At McCarter Theater, then functioning in part as a tryout house for plays trying to make Broadway, playwright William Inge paces nervously backstage as actors polish their lines for his new play, a sensitive drama about a group of travelers stranded in a Kansas café during a snow storm.

Somewhere else in town, one imagines, a theater critic is preparing to head over to McCarter and is wondering, "How can someone hope to make it to Broadway with a play called 'Bus Stop'?"

"Bus Stop" made it all right and now it will make its return to the stage in Princeton, as the opening play in the summer theater program of NewStage at Intime. The production, directed by Sherry Long at Theater Intime on the University campus, will open next Thursday, June 23, and run through July 3.

Nowadays people don't wonder how a play called "Bus Stop" can be a hit. Now they wonder who plays the part that Marilyn Monroe had in the movie. That's Cherie and at Intime Lynn Dorsey will fill that role. The rest of the cast, made up largely of students and actors living in the Princeton area, includes Charlie Brown as the cowboy, Bo; Mary Martello as the café owner, Grace; Shannon Daley plays Elma, a waitress; Larry Capo portrays the shady Professor Lyman; Mark Donnelly is Bo's sidekick, Virgil; Steve Horner appears as Sheriff Will; and Ray Rental is Carl, the bus driver.

Subscriptions Available. Mark Hopkins, a veteran of the Mason Gross Theater School at Rutgers University, serves as stage manager of the NewStage production of "Bus Stop." Brendan Moran has designed the one-unit set and Maria De Santos designed the costumes.

Director Long, who came to Princeton from the Midwest to work at McCarter Theater, directed last season's opener, "Scapino!" She currently teaches drama at the arts high school in Newark.

Performances of "Bus Stop" are at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The entire summer series also includes "talking with," a contemporary play of 11 women characters; "March of the Falsettos;" and Harold Pinter's "Betrayal." Subscription tickets are available at a significant discount over single ticket prices.

Information can be obtained by calling the box office, 452-8181, Wednesdays through Sundays, from noon until 6 p.m.

In Princeton

FRENCH QUARTET DUE
For First Concert: Opening the free Princeton University Outdoor Summer Chamber Concerts this year will be a French quartet, Le Quatuor Rosamonde, which will play Wednesday, June 22, at 8:30 in the Main Courtyard of the Graduate College. In case of rain, the concert will be in Alexander Hall.

This group, winner of the 1982 Evian Competition, is in the United States for its second season at the Yale Summer School of Music to study with Eugene Lehner, Raphael Hillyer, and the Tokyo String Quartet. The performers, all trained at the Conservatoire National Supérieur de Musique de Paris, are Agnes Sulem and Thomas Tercieux, violins; Jean Sulem, viola; and Rudolf Kuhn, cello.

FIRST IN CHAMBER SERIES: La Quatuor Rosamonde will perform Wednesday, June 22, at 8:30 in the main courtyard of the Graduate College as the first in this summer's Princeton University Outdoor Summer Chamber Concerts. If it rains, the concert will be held in Alexander Hall.

For their program they have chosen to play Mozart, K. 589; Henri Dutilleul, "Ainsi la Nuit"; and Schubert, opus 29.

Parking for the concert is in the Graduate School parking lot off Springdale Road. The audience is advised to bring blankets to sit on since no chairs are provided. If the weather appears threatening the day of the concert, one may learn whether the concert must be held in Alexander Hall by dialing 452-5977 after 4 p.m. for a recorded message.

The four additional groups scheduled to perform this summer include The Composers String Quartet, July 6; members of The New York Camerata, July 12; The Eastern Brass Quintet, July 19; and The Colorado String Quartet, August 24.

Those wishing to contribute to help offset the cost of this series may do so at the event or by sending a tax-deductible check payable to The Trustees of Princeton University, to Summer Chamber Concerts, Woolworth Center, Princeton University, 08544.

POPS CONCERT PLANNED
With Premiere: The Garden State Symphonic "Pops" Orchestra invites the public to attend the world premiere performance of Oregon composer Webb Young's Symphony No. 1 on Thursday evening at 8 at the State Theatre, Livingston Avenue, New Brunswick.

In addition to Mr. Young's symphony, which combines the traditional with the experimental, the program includes selections by Rossini and Tchaikovsky. The orchestra will be conducted by George Manahan, Exxon arts endowment conductor of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra and the music director for the New Amsterdam Symphony Orchestra; Opera Omaha; and the Garden State Symphonic Pops Orchestra.

The Garden State Symphonic Pops Orchestra was founded in January 1980 by Jack Bergacs of Woodbridge to promote a professional symphony orchestra in the greater New Brunswick area. Ten months later, New Brunswick's Mayor John A. Lynch proclaimed the Pops Orchestra New Brunswick's official orchestra, with the State Theatre as its permanent home. For the past few years, the musicians have presented a number of music events at the State Theatre.

This year's program will feature the first of Webb Young's three major orchestral works to be presented to the public. Mr. Young began his musical career in popular music, as a guitarist, a leader of his own groups, and an arranger of his songs. He received his BA in music from the University of California where he also pursued graduate studies in composition. He also studied composition at the Aspen Music Festival and School and in the composer's workshop at the Juilliard School extension program. He plays the violin and piano as well.

Tickets may be obtained through the mail from the "Pops" office, 146 George Street, New Brunswick, 08901, (201) 246-8314. Tickets sell for $10, $8 and $5.

OPERA OUTINGS SET
By Choir College Division. In celebration of the centennial season of the Metropolitan Opera, the Westminster Conservatory is sponsoring trips to Saturday matinee performances at Lincoln Center, New York City, in the fall.

The "Opera Outings" include round trip bus transportation, background information on each opera, and information about restaurants in the Lincoln Center area.

OUTDOOR CONCERTS SET
By South Brunswick. The South Brunswick Cultural Arts Commission and the Recreation Department will sponsor a Music-in-the-Park series this summer. Four free outdoor concerts will be given at the West New Road Park Amphitheatre.

The first concert on Sunday, June 26, will feature "Saphire" with hot top 40 rock and roll. "Metal Fury" will perform Sunday, July 10, with the best of heavy metal rock and their own material. Smooth country rock and bluegrass is the specialty of "Wood 'n' Strings" on July 24, and "Down to Earth," will return August 7 with their own special blend of jazz-rock fusion.

SHE DREAMED SHE CONDUCTED THE NJSO: Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woolfolk of Princeton, who placed the winning bid, Janet Yokum will have a chance to conduct the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra in one work at the Pops Concert on Sunday, July 3, at the Princeton University fields. Here she rehearses her conducting technique under the watchful gaze of George Manahan, associate conductor, who will conduct the rest of the program of classical works and Americana favorites.

The concert site is located on West New Road between Routes One and 27 in Kendall Park. Rain dates will be the following night. The concerts will begin at 7 and continue until sundown. Participants should bring blankets.

Anyone who wishes to help out with the concerts may call Tim Schwindinger at 297-2706. For further information call the South Brunswick Recreation Department at 329-40000.

JAZZ FESTIVAL PLANNED
In Trenton. The Trenton Times and Trenton Music Performance Organization (TMPO) will present a free outdoor jazz festival on Saturday in the park adjacent to the Capital Place One building at Warren and Lafayette Streets in Trenton. TMPO is the producer of this free concert celebrating the 100th birthday of The Trenton Times. Seven jazz performances will be Elsewhere this year, Mr. Arnold made his debut with Sir Georg Solti and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and with Andre Previn last month singing the Brahms Requiem in Pittsburgh. He performed Rachmaninoff's "The Bells" in Atlanta with Robert Shaw—a conductor well-known for his annual summer concerts in Princeton.

Mr. Arnold sang at the White House on the occasion of a state dinner for Prime Minister Thatcher in 1980. He lives in Roosevelt.

INDIAN MUSIC SET
At University. A program of South Indian Classical Music will be presented Friday at 8 at Murray-Dodge Hall on the Princeton University Campus. Sponsored by the university's International Center, the performance will feature vocalist N.C. Satyanarayana accompanied by violin and mridangam (a two-headed percussion instrument).

With his Princeton appearance, Dr. Satyanarayana begins a four-month, cultural exchange visit to several U.S. cities where he will give classes as well as perform.

Until recently the head of the Government College of Music and Dance in Hyderabad, Andhra Pradesh, India, Dr. Satyanarayana is well known as a teacher of the vocal literature in his native tongue, Telugu, and as a performer on All India Radio.

Though there is no charge for admission, donations will be solicited to help defray the artist's expenses during his U.S. trip. For more information, call the International Center at 452-5006.

IT'S NEW To Us

FINE MEN'S CLOTHING
At Harry Ballot. Anyone who passed by the Harry Ballot and Company Clothier at 20 Nassau Street during reunions had a good chuckle! A rather buxom mannequin was dressed in an eye-catching turn-of-the-century ladies bathing costume used in the 1981 Triangle Show. The amusing display which welcomed former graduates back to Princeton heralded the warm summer days ahead. Look no further to find the most handsome summer wear for men, because it is all right here at Harry Ballot's. The clothiers, who have been assisting well-dressed Princeton men since 1930, is owned by Mr. Abe Wendroff and his son, David. The shop has been buzzing with customers during the last few weeks. Gifts for graduates from all of the schools in the area as well as a fine selection of Father's Day presents are of the best quality available and the prices here are most reasonable.

Several handsome items are made exclusively for the shop, such as custom-made dress shirts, 100 percent cotton at $18 and $22.50. One of the most popular garments sold this year has been the all cotton safari jacket at $77.50, cool alternative to traditional clothing ranging in size from 36 to 46. The safari jacket or perhaps a handsome new blazer for summer would make a most thoughtful gift for your favorite father this weekend. Harry Ballot and Co. has a wide assortment of linen, all cotton or seersucker ones from which to choose. The colors run to the taste of most Princeton men, not too flashy, yet a change from the grey and navies of the winter months. The linen jacket can be found in four shades of tan, navy, hunter green and a few shades of blue.

THIRTY YEARS OF QUALITY: Mr. Abe Wendroff, owner of Harry Ballot and Co., seen here in his shop at 20 Nassau Street, has been offering Princeton residents fine men's clothing for the past 30 years. The clothiers will begin its annual summer sale on Monday. Handsome suits, custom-made shirts, neckwear and a variety of Father's Day gifts can be found here.

Complete Outfitters. Your man can buy his whole wardrobe for travel and fun this summer at this store from under clothing and hosiery to raincoats. An excellent tailor is employed by the shop so that anything purchased there will be ready to wear when you leave. Nothing is more time-consuming than rushing from store to tailor to cleaners.

Most men avoid shopping whenever possible, which is why Father's Day is the perfect opportunity to give him a gift which he has needed for years. Summer is a time to visit friends and take a few trips so why not pick up a good-looking new lightweight bathrobe for him this summer? The shop carries several types in seersucker, cotton, and cozy terris for poolside life. All-cotton pajamas, shorties or long ones, are good gift ideas. Brushed cotton plaid shirts and madras ones with short or long sleeves will keep him cool during the next few months, as will the traditional khaki shorts which come in sizes 30 to 44. Stunning walking shorts in solids or plaids are well-priced. For travelers heading north or the sailor's delight, a cotton tweed sweater, not too hot, but lending some warmth on cool evenings, is a fine gift. These come in two colors, heather blue or a tan and white tweed.

Neckwear is abundant at Harry Ballot's but not so much as to overwhelm the shopper. Bow ties in stripes or silk Foulard and regular ties including cotton in solid colors are the classic gift for father. These will compliment the the family. There is a shop in Trenton which is well worth the trip if the shopper wants top quality sports clothing and greatly reduced prices. Any mother who has ever seen a list of necessities for camp and groaned will be heartened by the Ewing Bazaar at 1680 North Olden Avenue. This no frills general clothing store, similar to the Army-Navy type shops, is not fancy, but has more inventory of Lee jeans and almost every other designer brand, Izod shirts, Adidas activewear, and athletic shoes than one could imagine.

The low overhead, no frills, but good service concept of marketing is the brainchild of Mr. Allen Wachtel and his partner, Mitchell Delson, who now have six stores in New Jersey.

"Stores like this just don't open anymore. We have a huge inventory, active clothing for every member of the family, including babies, so the family only has to shop in one place instead of several. Most merchants don't want to stock garments in such large quantities. We can afford to do this because of our ample space and low overhead, thus passing our savings on to our customers," explains Mr. Wachtel, a native of Forest

CASUAL CLOTHING CENTER: Mr. Allen Wachtel, owner of the Ewing Bazaar in Trenton, has good news for his customers - top quality brand-name casual clothing for the whole family at super prices. Jeans and cords by Lee and Levi and other top designers, Adidas and Nike shoes and clothing for active wear, Healthtex clothes for young children, and fine boots by Timberland and Frey are among the huge inventory found at the no frills Bazaar where prices are greatly discounted.

Hills, N.Y. who now lives in Lawrenceville. As a child he spent many afternoons at the tennis courts watching the great players and dreaming of his future retail business.

"I used to work after school opening boxes of clothes. I just couldn't wait to get into the retail business. I've always loved it," he explains with enthusiasm. Mr. Wachtel spent several years learning like shirts complete the look. Mr. Wachtel sells more shoes than most independent shoe stores in the area. Thousands of boots for riding and western wear sold at $20 to $30 less than the retail price attract many an active hiker.

What Mr. Wachtel and his partner are most proud of besides their considerable success is the service one finds in their stores. Most of his staff are "old-timers" who "really know what they are talking about when it comes to apparel." A few employees have been working there for the past 40 years. The Ewing Bazaar invites customers to come in and compare prices and enjoy the savings.

The front part of the shop is devoted to children's clothing, such as colorful Healthtex overalls, shorts and matching T-shirts for little boys and girls from 3 months size up to 6X. The uniform of the day for older children seems to be the Adidas shorts and shirts which are as durable as they are colorful.

Young campers and their parents will find that they can be completely outfitted at this store. Prices are more than reasonable for back packs, duffel bags, trunks, tents, canteens, mess kits, hiking boots, and the all-important sneakers by Nike, Converse and Adidas.

Sweat Suit Selection. We all prefer to wear comfortable sweats on cooler days. The Ewing Bazaar sells an abundance of such apparel in a rainbow of colors or the standard grey or navy which many prefer. Pastel sweat suits at $20 for women can be matched up with a boy's Izod shirt or a pair of shorts or bright colored jeans and women will have something to wear almost anywhere this summer.

Designer jeans at the Ewing Bazaar are priced at $29.99 and come in several styles including the chic new stripes by the French designers. Silk-

A Japanese Garden

By Charles Peterson

Let us create for you the peace and tranquility of a Japanese garden. No area is too large or too small that it can't be turned into a "mirror of nature," the ideal of every Japanese garden.

With simplicity the key, we can build ponds and cascades where falling water will impart a tranquil mood. An arching bridge can reflect in the water or lead the viewer on a relaxing walk. The graceful branches of weeping trees can add serenity to your garden. A Japanese lantern, carefully placed, can illuminate your path or reflect nearby branches. Stepping stones and meandering paths can add an aesthetic touch and also offer a firm surface for leisurely walking.

If the naturalness and beauty of a Japanese garden appeals to you, please call Charles Peterson at Peterson's Nursery, 924-5770, for an appointment.

PHS Girls Lacrosse Team Ends Super Season One Victory Shy of Winning State Tournament

Perhaps it was too much to ask of any team. To upset an undefeated (17-0) team and then come back three days later and upset another 17-0 team, one which had been uniformly described by opposing coaches as "awesome."

The Princeton High School girls lacrosse team accomplished the first half of its miracle assignment when it nipped Montville, 7-6, early in the week. The Little Tigers outscored the Mustangs, 5-2, in the second half to hand Montville its first defeat and avenge two losses earlier in the season to Montville—its only two losses of the season.

In slipping past second-seeded PHS advanced to the NJSIAA state final round against top-seeded Moorestown. The Quakers had advanced by defeating Collingswood, 12-5, in the semi-finals. In the championship game against Moorestown Friday at Trenton State College, PHS was unable to overcome an early 6-0 Moorestown lead and bowed, 10-7. For the Quakers, who lost 12 through graduation, and who lost by one goal in double overtime to Collingswood in the title game last year, it was their first state championship in four years.

Deserve to Be Second. Commented PHS coach Joyce Jones of Moorestown after the game, "They're probably one of the best teams in the state; they deserve to be state champions. We deserve to be second," she quickly added.

Their defense and experience playing together—they knew where the next player would be," were factors that Jones felt tipped the game in Moorestown's direction. "It took us a while," continued Jones, "to analyze what they were doing. By then, they had that lead. All of the coaches said Moorestown was awesome; I think we were just as awesome. We just didn't win."

Although the Little Tigers didn't win, just being there was perhaps their finest accomplishment. It was the first time, Jones pointed out, that a team from central or northern New Jersey had played in the state championship. "In the last seven years since they've had a state championship game, it's always been between two south Jersey schools," said Jones. "This is the first time we've made it to the finals. To me, things go in threes. The only one thing left is—to win!"

It appeared after the opening minutes that this year's title game was going to be a monumental mismatch. Attacking early with precision Princeton responded to Jones's exhortations in a hurry. Forty-five seconds into the half, Gabrielsen scored on a free position shot and Lisa Blair followed with a similar shot to cut the margin to two.

Then after Beth Delaney scored again for Moorestown, Gabrielsen countered with her third goal to keep the Quaker margin at two. Moorestown scored the next two goals and when Allen scored her second goal with 3:36 left to play, the Moorestown fans started to whoop it up in the stands.

PHS refused to roll over, however, and scored the game's final two goals in the last two minutes. Sweeney adding her second with 1:38 to play and Blair, who will enter Princeton University this fall, her second with 55 seconds left. The loss was Princeton's third in 18 games.

Hat Trick for Blair. In the NJSIAA semi-final game with Montville, Blair scored all three of her goals in the second half to trigger a PHS surge in its comeback win. Two were back-to-back which gave PHS a 7-5 lead.

Sweeney also had three goals for PHS and Anna Navarro one as the Little Tigers, which had twice led Montville at the half only to lose both in the second, found themselves ahead of the Mustangs in the second half for the first time. The PHS defense contributed by holding Amanda Veal, the high scorer for Montville, scoreless in the second half, after she had scored three goals in the first half.

"This was a total team effort; an achievement beyond words," said a jubilant Jones after the game. From this year's fine squad, Jones will lose 10 seniors, including five starters.

Webster homered again in the 6-4 triumph, while Tim Ramsey belted a triple and Phox had three doubles for Post 76. Peter DeTuro also doubled for the victors, Phox got the win, Bobby Rumsey the loss.

The Italian American team also won a pair, defeating the Elks twice, 18-10, and 6-4. Mark Peyton tripled, Keith Howland stroked a pair of doubles and Martin Kinney and Marvin Ford also doubled to lead I-A to its big win. John Haber, Grant McCune, Joley Hamlet, Payton, Howland and Kinney contributed singles.

Freeman Johnson was the difference in the 6-4 victory as he tripled and drove in three runs. Rubin Steiger doubled and drove in a run and winning pitcher Jerry Dismukes also doubled.

For Dismukes, who limited the Elks to three hits, it was his 20th career win.

MIKE'S, CONTE'S WIN

In Women's Softball, The Princeton Women's Adult Slow Pitch Softball League concluded its third week of play with two one-sided victories, as unbeaten Mike's Tavern (3-0) routed Andy's Tavern, 16-0, and Conte's Bar hammered Army-Navy Store 12-1.

Mike's scored three runs in the first inning, three in the second, two in the third, five in the fourth, and three in the fifth, before the game was stopped under the 15-run rule. Leading Mike's 17-hit attack were Michelle Morgan (3-for-4), Debbie Ficarro (2-for-3), and Grace Durland (2-for-3), including the League's first home run. Fletcher Lorraine Duthie got the win, fashioning a two-hitter.

For Andy's (1-2), Susan Packard banged a triple, while Ann Dowgin had the other hit.

Conte's (2-1) scored five runs in the first three innings and seven in the last two on 14 hits, paced by Heather Ward (2-for-4), Laine Ivan (2-for-4), Monica Greenland (3-for-4), and Missy McCloskey (2-for-4). Winning pitcher Carol Ann Mazzella tossed a four-hitter. Winless Army-Navy got its long run when Theresa Foltyn doubled and was driven in by Jill Bordin.

The Princeton Recreation Department has announced a recreational softball program for women, to be held each Wednesday night at 6:30 p.m. at Community Park. For further information, call the Recreation Office at 921-9480.

AUCTION ITEMS DONATED

By Tennis Greats. Arthur Ashe, John Newcombe, and Don Budge have something in

Arendas Honored
Dan Arendas, the West Windsor resident who excelled as an outfielder for the Princeton University baseball team this spring, has been awarded the William J. Clarke trophy for his freshman year performance.

Recently named to the university division all state team, Arendas led the Tigers with 31 runs scored, 13 extra base hits, three home runs, and six stolen bases. He batted .311 during the season.

A graduating senior on the same Princeton team has received an honor of a different sort. Steve Korish, the righthanded pitcher, was selected in the ninth round of the professional baseball draft by the Texas Rangers. He was scheduled to report to that team's Tri-Cities, Washington, farm club in the Northwest League.

common besides winning Wimbledon: all are supporting the Youth Tennis Foundation of Princeton.

Their donations will be some of the most-prized items to be auctioned June 26 from 5 to 8 at Windrush Farm on the Great Road just north of Cherry Valley Road.

In addition, a number of top teaching pros are also supporting the Youth Tennis Foundation which offers year-round tennis instruction and an extensive scholarship program.

Dennis Van der Meer, an acclaimed tennis teacher, has donated a week's tennis camp at either of his two locations, Hilton Head or Sweet Briar. Princeton-area teaching pros Doug MacCurdy, Lew Brewer, Bill Humes, and Larry Tabak have assembled special lesson packages for auction.

One auction item will send four tennis enthusiasts for a day at the U.S. Open where they will attend the Arthur Ashe Cup Award luncheon and receive personally autographed copies of Ashe's "Tennis Clinic." John Newcombe will be looking for two area tennis players to take advantage of his gift of a week at Newk's Tennis Ranch in New Braunfels, Texas, and Don Budge, the first winner of the Grand Slam of tennis, has donated a week at his junior tennis camp in Maryland.

Other top prizes include a week at the Lawrenceville junior tennis camp under the direction of John Conroy; tickets to the semi-finals and finals of the U.S. Open; a Prince ball machine, condominiums for a week in Eluthera, Bahamas, Vail, Hilton Head; and houses in Nantucket and St. Croix.

For more information, call the YTP Office, 71 University Place, at 924-4343.

FOUR ARE TIED

For Men's Softball Lead. After ten games in the Princeton Men's softball league, four teams are tied for first place: Princeton Nautilus, Conte's, Mike's Tavern and Hinkson's Stationery.

Nautilus finished the week 3-0, after wins over C. Square C., 13-5; Stefanelli's, 8-5; and Army-Navy, 21-6. In the three games Nautilus had 47 hits.

Leading hitters in the C. Sq. C. game were Mike Shillaber (Triple, 3RB), Judd Petrone (HR, 3RB), Pat Kahny (2-2), and Ken Bruvik (2-3). In the Stefanelli's victory Shillaber again led the way with 2 hits, including a triple. Also contributing were Dave Shillaber and Jeff Petrone, who combined for four hits.

In the Army-Navy victory, Nautilus rapped 21 hits. Leading the way with three were Scott Porreca and Pat Kahny. Contributing two each were Brent Robinson, Jack Petrone, Kevin Phox and Jeff Petrone. Jack Petrone paced the attack with 3 RBIs and a homerun. Jeff Petrone, Pat Kahny, Dave Shillaber and Kevin Phox each had 2 RBIs.

On the mound, Greg Kline upped his record to 7-1 with two victories. Jim Lennon, pitching his first game, got the win in the Stefanelli's game.

HOPEWELL RACE SET

10K Challenge Saturday. The fourth annual Hopewell Challenge road races will be held Saturday morning in conjunction with Community Day. More than 500 runners are expected for the 2-mile and 10-kilometer events.

The 10-kilometer promises to be a real challenge for Princeton Day School coach Eamon Downey, who is seeking his third straight win. Downey set the course record of 33:12 last year. John Parker of Pennington and Kevin Cahill and Mike Anello from Hunterdon are expected to challenge Downey this year.

A duel is developing in the women's division, where last year's winner Lorrie Butterfield is expected to return after setting the course record of 37:38 in 1982. Nancy Briemann of West Windsor, ranked number three in New Jersey this year, will be back, as will high school cross-country stand-out Stacey Billotta.

Both races start and finish on Lafayette Street behind Princeton Bank. The 2-mile starts at 8:45 a.m. and the 10-K at 9:15. For more information and entry forms call 466-2660.

STATE RECORD SET
By Fletcher in Hurdles. When you break a record set by a world-renowned track performer you're in fast company. Right?

The numbers keep falling for Princeton High School senior Stephan Fletcher, who set a new state record last week in the 110 high hurdles while competing in the NJSSA Meet of Champions held at the South Plainfield Recreation Center.

Fletcher blistered the distance in 13.6 to defeat his rival from Asbury Park, Kraig Sanders, who was timed in 13.8.

The time of 13.6 is a new state record, bettering the meet mark of 13.8 set by Barry McClain of Trenton High and the state standard for the event, 13.7, set by world renowned hurdler Renaldo "Skeets" Nehemiah.

Ironically, Fletcher had considered giving up on the 110 hurdles earlier in the season when he went through a period of frustration at not being able to break 14 seconds.

"I was in the 14s all season," recalled Fletcher. "It was frustrating and I didn't even want to run the hurdles any more." But after switching to the 200 and after a discussion with his father and coach, Lamont, who is coach of the girls track team at PHS and who was an outstanding hurdler for the Little Tigers in the early 1950s, Fletcher decided to concentrate on the hurdles again. His goal, he said, is to bring his time down to 13.3.

Two PHS teammates also joined Fletcher in competing in the Meet of Champions. P.J. Young finished fifth in the shot put with a toss of 56-2 and Bill Bushnell was sixth in the 3200 meter with a time of 9:19.4.

In the same meet, Trenton High's Wendy Veroen set a national high school girl's record in the 200 meter dash with a time of 23.0 flat. The previous mark of 23.19 was set in 1980 by Sherl Howard from California.

Third in Golden West, Fletcher's times in the 110 hurdles had qualified him to enter the prestigious Golden West Invitational Track and Field Meet held Saturday in Sacramento, Calif. There, Fletcher finished third in the 110 hurdles with a clocking of 13.93. The winning time was 13.81.

POOL PROGRAMS SET

For Totals to Senior Citizens. Community Pool swim evaluations will be held at the pool June 22-24 from 10 to 11:45 a.m. for a program which offers basic swim lessons to children ages 5 through intermediate swimmer.

The fee is $5 per child; the first session will run June 27-July 22. Those interested in taking lessons should come to the pool to be evaluated for class placement.

The Recreation Department also offers a competitive swim program which offers a variety of swimming programs including membership on the Community Park Swim Team. Those interested should come to Community Pool Monday morning at 9:30.

Swim Programs for Seniors.

The Recreation Department has two daily fitness programs for senior citizens season ticket holders. Lap swim sessions will be held Monday-Friday from 10 to noon, June 13-August 26; Senior Dip, a new program for older adults to exercise or enjoy a dip before the crowds, runs Monday-Friday from 11 to noon.

The cost of a senior citizens (60+) season pool permit is $20. Interested persons should call the Recreation Department at 921-9480.

The Wading Pool is now open from 10 to noon. The special morning sessions are open to season ticket holders only; however, only the children need season passes.

ALL-IVY TEAMS NAMED

In Men's, Women's Lacrosse. All-ivy teams have been selected in men's and women's lacrosse with Princeton placing two men and three women on the top squads.

Representing the Tiger men are a pair of seniors, attackman Gerry Ronon and midfielder Bob Flippin. Two others were named to the second team, senior midfielder Mike Wiczorek and sophomore defenseman Jerry Rizzieri. Another midfielder, David Chang, received honorable mention.

Princeton's women's team, which advanced to the second round of the NCAA tournament before losing to top-seeded Temple, placed two seniors and a freshman on the first team.

Senior Natalie Boocock was a unanimous choice as one of three attackers; she had made the first team as a freshman, and the second unit the previous two years. Senior Kari Dolan claimed one of the three spots on defense, and freshman goalie Katrina Sorenson claimed the final spot on the first team.

Second team nominees included senior Debbie Emery on defense, while attacker Patti Owens gained honorable mention. Playing a difficult schedule the women's team finished with an 8-6 mark, 4-2 in the league. The men managed to stay above .500 with a 7-6 record, but ended 3-3 in the league, which was won by Cornell and Penn.

PDS Teachers

chronicled in a National Geographic magazine. The experience gave him a feel for peoples and places of the world that he has since transmitted to the fifth grade Ancient Civilizations course at PDS.

After eight years as head of the Middle School, Mr. Merle-Smith stepped down to teach fifth grade English-history. He finds 10-year olds particularly appealing in their openness and receptivity, and the learning process itself—the acquiring of skills for the reading and writing about history—interest him as much as the ideas and concepts.

An Enabler. As one who has always had difficulty writing himself, Mr. Merle-Smith is particularly gifted helping those who have learning difficulties, and who today might be called dyslexic. He is known for his great patience and the quiet faith he places in each child. He is also one of the most thoroughly respected members of the PDS faculty, loved for his wise counsel and advice and his "basically perfect" instincts.

Sally Patterson
A responsive teacher, a courageous person
"If you could clone him, you would," says Mrs. Schweibert. "My best teacher," says an eighth grader who was once in his home room. "Everyone liked him, and no one fooled around with him. Even though he was always really serious, and we were working hard, it always seemed OK."

Mag Gilbert
She personifies lower school music

Relinquishing full time teaching because of a health problem, Mr. Merle-Smith will be at PDS next year as an adjunct teacher in the hall, giving help in reading and writing and doing advising.

At the year end faculty party, Sanford Bing, acting headmaster and head of the Upper School, remarked that these three retiring teachers are not people that can be replaced with others of identical or even similar talents. New teachers will come with abilities and skills that are uniquely their own, but none that are replicas of Sally Patterson, Mag Gilbert and Mike Merle-Smith. "It is the end of something important," Mr. Bing said gravely.

Crime Watch Call Results in Arrest Of Two Burglars

A phone call from a member of a neighborhood crime watch group led last week to the arrest of two thieves who had burglarized a Littlebrook Road home.

Township police were quick to praise the importance of receiving such calls. "It's the second time people in that neighborhood crime watch have been instrumental in the apprehension of burglary suspects," Chief Anthony Pinelli commented.

The alert resident called police at 12:15 Thursday afternoon to report a suspicious car parked on Littlebrook Road and she supplied police with the license registration. A police check revealed that it had been stolen from Falls Township, Pa.

As Sgt. David Potts sped to the location, he spotted the car on Princeton-Kingston Road near Locust Lane. When he attempted to pull it over, the car sped away. At the intersection of Nassau and N. Harrison Streets the suspect car was involved in a motor vehicle accident and its two occupants fled on foot.

One was apprehended by Sgt. Potts on Aiken Avenue; the second by Ptl. John Petrone Jr. behind the First National Bank of Princeton Branch, 370 Nassau Street. Assisting in the arrest, said Chief Pinelli, were Ptl. Mark Emann and Township detectives, members of the Borough police department and three tree surgeons who had been working in a tree nearby.

The suspects were identified as Tony Thomas, 21, and Kevin Queen, 19, both of Trenton. In their car, police said, was a quantity of television and stereo equipment.

That afternoon it was ascertained that a Littlebrook Road home had been burglarized and approximately $2,900 worth of articles stolen, including two TV sets, two stereo amplifiers, a turntable and tape deck.

Although the owners of the home were away at the time, a tenant, police said, identified the articles as having been stolen from the home. Later charged with theft, Thomas and Queen were taken to Mercer County Correction Center when they were unable to pay ten percent

G'BYE, LITTLEBROOK! They sent up balloons last Friday, each balloon bearing inside, mixed with the helium and a tear or two, the name and address of a Littlebrook child. It was the final day of the final year of Littlebrook School, the latest victim of Princeton's declining enrollment.

Lack of Quorum Forces Planning Board To Postpone Collins Hearing until Monday

The issue has generated as much controversy as Princeton has seen in recent years and it was scheduled to come to a head at the meeting of the Regional Planning Board last Thursday night. So then, what finally happened to the controversial proposal of the Collins Development Corporation to construct an addition to the Nassau Inn in Palmer Square?

Nothing, at least not yet. Despite the best efforts of Planning Board secretary Pearl Pilon, who made phone calls over the weekend and each evening in an effort to muster the forces for the final battle, the board could not produce a quorum. The meeting—and presumably the final vote on site plan approval for the Inn addition—is scheduled for next Monday at 7:30 in the Valley Road building. The meeting was postponed only after considerable jawboning between the concerned parties. Planning Board officials insisted until Wednesday that they would most likely have the meeting.

The Collins attorneys, meanwhile, were telling reporters and others that if the board did not meet, then Collins would exercise its legal right and claim approval on the grounds that the Planning Board had failed to act on the matter within the time limit allowed by the law.

Committee to File Appeal With Montgomery Township Over Route 92 Alignment

Township Committee will file an appeal with Montgomery Township this week objecting to the Montgomery Planning Board's approval June 6 of a 400-unit development that threatens to move S-92 to a new alignment astride the Montgomery-Princeton boundary.

Mayor Winthrop Pike made the motion at a Township Committee meeting filled with anxious residents of the Herrontown Road area whose homes and properties would be adversely affected. He was urged to do so by Committeewoman Barbara Cantrill, and the 4-0 vote (Committeewoman Gail Firestone was absent) was roundly applauded by the residents.

Mayor Winthrop Pike told the audience that although DOT Commissioner John Sheridan wrote Township Committee on May 23 saying he "looked forward" to working with Committee and the Township Engineer in regard to the routing of S-92, an agreement was signed June 6 between DOT and Calton Homes by which the DOT received 20 acres for $2 for a right-of-way in an alignment which skirts the proposed development.

Although Commissioner Sheridan has said that the alignment is not yet "graven in stone," Mayor Pike said he felt it "unlikely" that it will be changed, because the cost of acquiring the land when the development is in place could be several million dollars. Citing the diabase ridge, the steep slopes, and the thousands of tons of rock that will have to be carted away if the cuts are made, the mayor questioned whether the money that is not spent on acquiring land would outweigh the costs of building the roadway.

He also recalled "the considerable fuss" and law suits against Kingston Trap Rock by residents whose homes were damaged from blasting a few years back. "There's a gas pipe line up there—I hope the engineers know how to blast without fracturing it," he added.

Laurence Glasberg, who owns 23 acres and a large home between Herrontown Road and the Princeton-Montgomery boundary, reiterated his position that scheme 1, the "preserved alignment," was much more acceptable from the

Trenton Roundup

Automobile drivers were the focus of legislative action in Trenton this week.

Governor Thomas Kean signed a bill designed to help buyers whose new cars turn out to be "lemons." Under the new law, the buyer of a car will be entitled to a comparable replacement car or a refund if the manufacturer or dealer cannot repair the car so that it meets the warranty in "a reasonable number of attempts." This is defined as "four or more tries or a total of 30 days" when the car is out of service because of repair-work for defects covered by warranty.

Car owners must report defects within the warranty period or within one year of delivery date, whichever comes first.

A plan was introduced into the State Senate eliminating the 11-year-old "no fault" automobile insurance program. Sponsors claim it would cut the average insurance premium in half. New Jersey has the highest automobile insurance in the country.

Inspection of cars by private garages may go into effect next month. The cost is expected to be $12 to $15 per inspection. The present public inspection system would remain. It is estimated that about one-third of the state's drivers will choose the private garage system.

It is expected that the bills providing for private inspection will be passed this week, following a compromise between Governor Kean, who favors the dual system, and Democratic members of the State Assembly who oppose it.

The Assembly has approved a bill increasing the maximum jail term to four years for causing death by automobile. Sponsors believe it will reduce fatalities caused by drunk drivers.

There are resources, the report states. A cash management program now in effect is described as "most impressive" by the Committee. Space is leased, bringing in about half a million in current income. Tuition from out-of-district students could bring in others, would be required, and the administration will "have to see that they are being followed." The additional administrative cost would be $50,000, the report estimates.

Mergers with other districts are not recommended. "Educating for a changing world will be expensive," the report warns. "We think the Princeton community is willing to bear that expense."

BUS DRIVER VICTIM
Of Armed Holdup. A suburban Transit bus driver was robbed at gun point last week by a lone passenger who escaped with $90 in fares and an additional sum of money taken from the driver.

The gunman was the last passenger on the bus, according to police, when he pulled the cord to get off at the intersection of Mt. Lucas Road and Ewing Street. As he approached the driver, he pointed a small caliber pistol at his head and demanded money.

After the gunman had fled from the bus, the driver drove to Princeton Shopping Center where he called police at 1:15 last Wednesday afternoon from a service station. Police searched the area but were unable to locate the suspect.

He is described as a black male, about 23 years old, 5-9 to 5-10, thin, wearing a dark brown, see-through cap, dark brown sweater-type pullover shirt, blue jeans and sneakers.

Police report that the suspect had gotten on the bus in New Brunswick. He took a seat in the rear and had waited until all the passengers had left before attempting the holdup.

ANOTHER WEEK

More Parked Cars Looted. The smashing of windows and looting of parked cars in the Borough continues, as Chief Michael Carnevale reported seven more incidents last week, three in a private parking lot off Prospect Avenue.

The left front vent window of the car of a Kingston resident was pried open while it was parked overnight in the Prospect lot and after the thief failed in an attempt to remove a radio from the car, he took a suitcase containing items valued at $890. Among them: camera, binoculars, watch, clothing and backpack.

The right front window of a Volkswagen parked in the same lot was smashed and the victim, a resident of Prospect Avenue, reported the theft of a $240 car stereo and a $10 flashlight. Another resident of the street told police that someone had broken the radio antenna and damaged a front fender of his car, which was parked in the same lot.

Two cars were entered while parked on lower University Place last week. The BMW of a Princeton resident yielded $175 in articles after its passenger side window was broken last week. Included in the theft were an athletic bag, a sweat suit, sneakers, sunglasses and a needlepoint kit.

Two more mid-week incidents involved cars parked in the Palmer Square lot off Hurlish Street. Part of a car block was thrown through the left front window of the car of a Maryland resident and a Nassau Street store owner told police that the passenger side window of his car had been smashed and the interior ransacked. In both entries, police said nothing of value was taken.

When asked if police felt the wave of vandalism to parked cars was the work of one person, he replied that it was possible but declined any further comment.

TEXTILE BLDG. ENTERED
On Prospect Avenue. The Textile Research Institute, 601 Prospect Avenue Extension, was entered last week and robbed of equipment valued at approximately $2,800.

Police said that a pane of glass was removed to open a door between 6:30 in the evening and 8 the next morning. Taken was equipment which included a film processor, calculator and Mettler balance.

Chief Anthony Pinelli reported that there had been an unsuccessful attempt to remove other equipment that was secured by power cords.

A home on Roper Road was entered during the weekend and there was evidence, police said, of it being lightly ransacked. It is not known if anything was taken.

The home was entered by first cutting the screen of a living room window and then opening the window.

The center glass door of five such doors in the west entrance to Epstein's in the Princeton Shopping Center was found pushed in at 1:10 Saturday morning but police report that nothing seems to have been disturbed and it is unknown if anything was taken.

The building was checked but police were unable to locate any suspects.

Council Wants Neighbors' Opinions About John Street Basketball Court

If you live in the neighborhood of John and Clay Streets, what do you think about the blacktop basketball court on John Street?

Borough Council would like to hear your views, and has scheduled a meeting for next Monday, June 27, at 8 p.m. It will be held in Borough Hall in the downstairs conference room. Council president Barbara Hill will preside.

In past years, residents have told Council they are unhappy about the way the court and the adjoining streets are used in summertime as a meeting place for young people. The level of noise is high and late, residents report.

In response, Council last year sent more police squad cars to the neighborhood and locked the basketball court after dusk — although the lock was often sawed off. Now, Council members would like to know whether these measures helped. If not, do neighbors have any other suggestions?

It is possible, Council members say, that the Borough-owned land where the basketball court is, might be used for something else. For example, the Housing Authority, which operates the Clay Street apartments, needs a community room for Clay Street residents, and space where shop work can be done.

The Borough, on its part, would like more housing units. With Housing Authority money, and a possible Small Cities grant, it might be possible to fill the Authority's needs for more space and provide more housing as well. "Even a couple of units would help — we have a long waiting list," Ms. Hill says.

She points out that there is another basketball court about two blocks away at Community Park, so that basketball players wouldn't suffer if the John Street court were eliminated.

last week from a room in the Nassau Inn between 8:30 in the morning and 6:30 p.m. Police report no signs of forced entry.

Taken were a gold ring with a large ruby valued at $1,000 and a $300 gold ring. Police identified the occupant of the room as a resident of Pittsburgh, Pa.

An attempted entry into a Nassau Street apartment was reported Thursday morning. Police said that screwdriver marks were visible on the apartment door but that no entry had been gained.

TRENTON TRIO CHARGED
In Theft of Rings. Three Trenton juveniles, 17, 16 and 15, have been charged with the theft of five rings valued at $50 from a Princeton jewelry store. Chief Michael Carnevale declined to reveal the store but said that it was not on Nassau Street.

Police became involved after receiving a call at 12:26

One of the intended victims in the bus terminal identified the three suspects as those who had tried to pick the pockets of two victims.

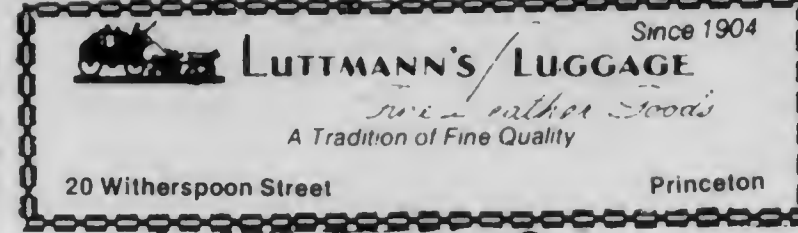

The youths were then taken to police headquarters, where they were found to be in possession of the rings, described as inexpensive gold wedding bands.

TRIES TO BEAT LIGHT

Accident, Ticket Follow. As Dean S. Friderich, 22, of Merrick, N.Y. approached the traffic light at Bayard Lane and Hodge Road last week, it changed from green to red.

Instead of stopping, police said, he tried to beat the light, increased his speed to 40 to 45 miles an hour and struck a car operated by Torry J. Luce Jr., 50, of Skillman, in the side as it emerged from Hodge.

Mr. Luce was treated at Princeton Medical Center for a separated shoulder. Mr. Friderich was ticketed by P.D. William Clark for a red light violation.

Hits Parked Truck. Lawrence J. Perks, 43, 55

Cuyler Road, was issued a summons for careless driving last week, after he failed to observe a delivery truck on Bayard Lane and collided with the rear of the parked vehicle.

The truck driver, Mitchell E. Morrison of Spotswood, told Sgt. Thomas Procaccino that he was standing on the truck's tailgate about to jump into the roadway when the collision occurred. His hazard lights were blinking, he said.

The accident took place about 200 feet south of the Cleveland Lane intersection. Police wrote in their report that they will request a re-examination for Mr. Perks.

Passenger Is Injured. A 21-year old passenger was injured in a mishap last week on Caldwell Drive.

Barbara Laznovsky, 81 Bertrand Drive, was taken by the First Aid Squad to the Medical Center for treatment of a fractured shoulder. She told P.D. Virgil Angelini that she had been a passenger in a car operated by Charles T. Pope, 25, of Brookline, Ma. They had been involved in an argument, she said.

According to a report from the Rescue Squad, Miss Laznovsky was running and hanging on the side of the car which was traveling at an estimated 20 miles an hour when Mr. Pope stopped abruptly in front of 21 Caldwell and she was thrown to the roadway. There were no police charges.

Princeton resident lost $80 and jewelry worth $40 when she left her purse unattended while at a party Saturday night at a home on Library Place.

More bicycles were stolen. A $250 model belonging to a student was taken during the weekend from Spelman Hall despite being locked to a railing with a chain, and a Princeton resident reported the theft of a $250 bike on Friday from in front of a Witherspoon Street restaurant. It was unlocked.

A silver, 10-speed bicycle valued at $200 was stolen Thursday from the east side of Princeton High School — it also was unlocked — and a university student told police that the rear tire, seat and water bottle were stolen from his bicycle while it was locked to a bike rack in front of 65 Prospect Avenue. The items are valued at $81.50.

When a Princeton High student went to retrieve his unlocked bike Thursday night after attending graduation ceremonies at the high school, he discovered it had been stolen. He was on his way home on Lytle Street, police said, when he noticed it in the possession of another person.

being blamed for a fire that damaged a box spring and mattress and bed in a room at the Nassau Inn. Fire Chief William Rodweller said that he found the underside of the bed engulfed in flames when he entered the room after responding to a police call at 7:03 Sunday evening. The room's occupant told police that she was watching television when she heard a popping sound near the rear of the bed. The lights went out and she saw flames coming from under the bed.

Det. Ronald Holliday, Sgt. William Fitch, Ptl. Anthony Federico and Ptl. Dennis McManimon responded along with the firemen. The occupant was not injured.

Police report there was a small of smoke in the store at 12:06 Thursday morning when a starter in a florescent lighting fixture apparently overheated. No damage, just smoke, police said.

YOUTH IS CHARGED

With Criminal Mischief. As a result of an ongoing investigation by the Township juvenile officer, a 16-year old Township youth has been charged with criminal mischief which took place during a party held May 29 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Krauthamer, 47 Broadripple Drive.

According to Det. Jerry Offredo, the Township Juvenile officer, the youth has been charged with damaging the front door of the Krauthamer home with a log which he took from a woodpile in the front yard. He was later released to his parents.

Det. Offredo reported that other suspects are involved and the investigation is continuing.

Charged with Shoplifting. A 15-year old Township juvenile was charged with shoplifting last week, after he allegedly stole a package of cigarettes and a package of Bic lighters from Thrift Drugs in the Princeton Shopping Center. Ptl. Howard Sweeney

New Post Office

The new main post office promised for Princeton will probably be completed within the next year, Postal Service officials said this week.

The building, to cost between $2 and $2.3 million, will be constructed in the Carnegie Center complex off Route One. From Princeton, post office customers will follow Alexander Road to the present post office, continue to the intersection of Alexander and Roszel Road and turn right into Roszel. The building will be on the southeast corner of Roszel — which will be extended — and a new road to be called Carnegie Road.

The contract was awarded last week to Ken-Rad Construction Co., Inc., Tinton Falls. The firm was the lowest of 14 bidders.

responded after an employee called police at 2:20 Thursday afternoon, reporting he had a shoplifter in custody. Pending further investigation, the youth was released to the custody of his parents.

FURNITURE TOSSED

Into Jefferson Road Pool. Several pieces of lawn furniture and a bronze statue were tossed into a swimming pool at a Jefferson Road home between 1 and 3 Sunday morning.

Police said that it was not known if any damage was also done to the pool liner as a result of the vandalism.

IN BOROUGH COURT

Seven Speeders Fined. Seven Princeton area residents were fined for speeding Monday in Borough traffic court.

Fined $60 each were Daniel R. Fuhrman, 265 Princeton Inn College; Mathew B. Richter, 1163 Stewart Road; Terrence J. McCormick, 5E Lakeview Terrace Apartments; and Michael Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike, Edwin Schmierer, Township engineer Robert Kiser, Mr. Oleksa as Borough engineer and Township Administrator James Pascale went over charts and figures.

"Our charts show we have not violated Condition Eight in our agreement with the state," Mr. Oleksa stated. "That Condition stipulates we make no connections that exacerbate the existing overflow problem."

"We haven't done anything wrong. Is this a public relations ploy, we wonder? It's clear to us we have taken out more (infiltration and inflow) than we have allocated, and that's what the agreement says."

"We assume they did not investigate to find out how much we have already removed from the Harry's Brook area."

GRAPHIC ARTISTS TEAM UP FOR BENEFIT: In the basement of Trinity Church, Donald Fox, printer, left, and Rod Paine, artist and designer, teamed up to produce the invitation and promotional material for the Princeton Child Development Institute's Jazz Benefit. The festival will be held Sunday, June 19, at Princeton Day School and will be kept hopping by Ed Polcer, Maxine Sullivan and Eddie Condon's All Stars.

RETIRES ARE HONORED
By University, Princeton University has honored 58 members of the non-academic staff who are retiring after 10 or more years of service. A reception was given by President William G. Bowen in honor of the retirees who have given 1,235 years, collectively, to the university.

HOT FAMILIES SOUGHT
For Italian Youth. Thirty

Italian students are coming to Princeton July 27 and will be here through August 24 as a part of an educational travel program called ASPECT (American Study Project for Educational and Cultural Training).

ASPECT representatives seek 30 host families to participate in the project. The students will study English and have discussion groups with area teens in the morning. Afternoon activities will include field trips to places of cultural interest, family picnics, soccer matches, hikes, potluck suppers and other activities.

For information call Miriam Savat or Elizabeth Channin at 896-2398 or 896-2242.

NATURE WORKSHOP SET
For Youngsters. The Mary Jacobs Library in Rocky Hill will present a four week nature sensitivity workshop for children beginning Monday at 10 a.m. with Jana Schmidt.

"Exploring Nature" will be held for ages 5 through 7 on Monday, June 27, July 11 and July 18.

Children from ages 8-10 may attend the Wednesday workshop on June 29, July 6, July 13 and July 20, also at 10 a.m. Registration is required and children may sign up for a single session or all four.

This program is free and open to the public. For further information and to register, call the library at 924-7073.

NEW COURSES OFFERED
By YMCA. The Princeton YMCA is offering two new courses for its eight-week summer session starting June 27.

STAFF EXPANDS
At Family Service. Four new counselors have joined the staff of Family Service at the agency's Princeton and Hightstown offices.

Family Service has also announced that applications are available for a post-graduate clinical internship program to start in September.

Beverly Almgren, a graduate of Radcliffe, Brown and Rutgers, will do individual, couple, family and group counseling at the Princeton office. She has completed an internship at Corner House in drug-related family problems, and led personal growth laboratories at Trenton State.

Melissa Bailey, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Tulane with a master's from Princeton and a master of social work from Bryn Mawr, did her internship at Corner House and the Catholic Welfare Guidance Clinic in Trenton. She is the author of "Family Therapy and Drug Abuse," an article to be included in a forthcoming book on the treatment of drug addiction.

Brinda Brees, a magna cum laude graduate of Ohio Wesleyan, holds a master's degree in social work from Rutgers. She served counseling internships at Marlboro Psychiatric Hospital and the employee assistance program of Ethicon, Inc. With Ms. Bailey, she will work in the Hightstown office of Family Service.

Valerie Brown, a summa cum laude graduate of Post, holds a social work masters from Hunter College. A specialist in alcoholism treatment, she is senior staff member of the outpatient psychiatric clinic at the John E. Runkle Hospital, Berkeley Heights, and will be on the adjunct staff in Family Service's Princeton office.

July 15 is the deadline for applications for the post-graduate clinical internship program. The purpose of the program is to give professionals who have completed graduate training, an opportunity to sharpen their counseling skills. Selected candidates handle a limited counseling practice at the agency under close supervision.

Interested professionals should submit a resume and a statement of background and interest to Paul Kurland, Ex-

"Is Tomorrow Now?"
To the Editor of Town Topics:
If zoning problems appropriate to Collins Development Corporation and the Institute for Advanced Study, and to Routes 206, 92 and 95, from some of the economic have shown us anything at all — perhaps they have shown all of us living in the region, (including Kingston, Rocky Hill, Griggstown, Lawrenceville, Pennington and Hopewell) — that: Princeton Borough and Township residents have no one to question and to answer but themselves for what is happening here now?

For one thing, it would appear: (1) that we ourselves are generally no longer humble and hardworking here; and (2) that state and local legislation regarding local growth has not kept pace with population pressures and changing values of our people, area, and the times?

Apparently, in this way, as in so many other ways, our legal system no longer "protects" us; but, we have also not been willing to work for it either? (Perhaps, other New Jersey towns such as Summit and Princeton Junction may benefit from our trials and tribulations here?)

For example, can't we learn and to Routes 206, 92 and 95, from some of the economic have shown us anything at all — perhaps they have shown all of us living in the region, (including Kingston, Rocky Hill, Griggstown, Lawrenceville, Pennington and Hopewell) — that: Princeton Borough and Township residents have no one to question and to answer but themselves for what is happening here now?

For one thing, it would appear: (1) that we ourselves are generally no longer humble and hardworking here; and (2) that state and local legislation regarding local growth has not kept pace with population pressures and

For example, again, may I suggest that the next time our hard-working Planning Board meets (Monday, June 27th), that unless we can come in a serious state of mind — that we just stay home and pay our taxes?

However, on the other hand, it would appear also, that some local residents are now genuinely trying to work for legislation so that we can control creatively, realistically, and unselfishly, the future growth of our once humble, hardworking, talented, and beautiful area?

In summary: if we do not work steadily, seriously, and modestly, for some sort of local and long-ranged legislative process here and now (May and June, 1983) — as we should have done 17-to-20 years ago (1963-1966) — then perhaps we have no one to answer to but ourselves (and our children) for what develops here now (1983-1985) and tomorrow (2000-2020)?

People of the Princeton area: is tomorrow now?

To the Editor of Town Topics:
It is very easy to clutter up space: Just hand over the initial millions and then fill in the cracks. Leave town quickly as the rush hour traffic will soon bog you down too. Bulky bridges seem like the only solution to those who can't seem to think further, but if the citizens of Princeton had their way, they know that there can be better solutions for a college town inn. Please think twice, even thrice Mr. Collins.

For Adult Day-Care
Elderly residents of Princeton who meet the income requirements, will be eligible to join a two-day-a-week day-care program to be established in early fall at Redding Circle.

The Family Service Agency announced this week that it has received a grant of $23,000 for the program from the State Division of Youth and Family Services under Title XX. Participants must be eligible under Title XX; that is, individuals must have an income no higher than $10,000 a year.

The program is designed for elderly people living alone or with members of their families. It will give these men and women a chance to get out and socialize twice a week in an organized program. Transportation will be provided if it is needed. Details will be announced as the program is formed.

RETIRES CITED

By Board of Education. Twenty-one teachers and staff members of the Princeton Regional Schools—including five with more than a quarter century of service—were honored by the Board of Education at its business meeting last week.

Those retiring after more than 25 years with the Princeton schools include the following people, whose accomplishments were described in tributes written into the Board's minutes:

Nellie Hunter, John Witherspoon School principal William Johnson wrote that "Nellie Hunter, Princeton Regional Schools educator for 34 years, retired at the beginning of the 1982-83 school year. She was a dedicated member of the teaching profession and gave of herself to her home town willingly and very effectively."

Ethel Thomas, High School principal John Sakala wrote that "Dr. Thomas has given 32 years of dedicated service to the parents, students, and staff of the Princeton High School community as a teacher of English and as a guidance counselor. During her tenure, Ethel has continuously enriched herself through travel, through participation in professional organizations, and through study at the university level."

"Ethel's service has not been confined to the Guidance Office. The corridors, the cafeteria, and the classrooms have been her centers of operation. Ethel has been a valuable liaison with the business, professional, and cultural communities. Because of Ethel's diligence, students have been apprised of college opportunities, scholarship availability, and career possibilities."

George Povillaitis. "In his 28 years of service as a teacher of biology, driver education, health education, physical education, and as a coach," Mr. Sakala wrote, Mr. Povillaitis' "gracious manner and his equanimity in times of adversity have been an inspiration to all."

"During George's tenure as an instructor of physical education, the curriculum changed drastically with the inclusion of the lifetime sports program and Project Adventure. George readily adapted to these changes and cooperated fully so that these programs could be implemented effectively."

Helen Povillaitis, Mr. Sakala wrote that Mrs. Povillaitis "has been a model of efficient dedication in her role as secretary and as attendance coordinator during her 28 years at Princeton High School. Her duties have been discharged with alacrity and accuracy. In addition, Helen has been greatly involved in professional organizations."

"In recent years there have been many changes in the attendance policy. In order to expedite these changes, Helen has given much beyond what was required."

Zane Long, Eugene Biringer, principal of the Riverside School, wrote that "Zane Long retires from the Princeton Regional Schools after 27 years of dedicated teaching. He was born on a cattle ranch in Kansas, where he had his early education in a one-room schoolhouse."

"One of the specific things both boys and girls will remember about Mr. Long is their first introduction to woodworking tools in the 'Technology for Children Program.' Many a happy child left school as the proud owner of a colonial wooden bench, a horn book, or cobbler's bench."

Others honored upon their retirement included Jean Friedman, who began her career as an elementary teacher in 1937 and who joined the Princeton staff in 1959. Littlebrook School principal George Petrillo wrote that, "Jean exemplifies the dedicated teacher who gives generously of her time and talent to her profession. She is one of the first to arrive in the morning and one of the last to leave at the end of the school day."

Also Ruth Lotz, who served 21 years as a guidance counselor; Janice Dragnet, 21 years as a school nurse; Sidd Kramer, 21 years as an elementary and middle school music teacher; Edith Caponi, 21 years in the school food services; and Margaret Pazdan, 20 years as school nurse at Littlebrook and seven years before that as a volunteer at the school.

Also Elizabeth Annich, 19 years as an elementary teacher; Dr. Elaine Jass, 17 years as a school psychologist and learning disabilities specialist; Doris Peskin, 15 years as an English teacher; Mauriel Witter, 13½ years as a supplemental teacher; and Katherine Yoder, for 12 years as a teacher of English and home economics at Princeton High School.

Others retiring are Robert Faherty, a custodian at the John Witherspoon School; Robert W. Sinkler, instructional aide at Community Park School whose duties included working with children with motor coordination handicaps; Santa T. Zallo, clerk-typist in the personnel office; Connie Aastad, food services; and John Henry Ford, school bus driver.

A PRESIDENTIAL CHAT
With Presidential Scholar, Arelia Gross, Presidential scholar and member of the class of 1963 at Princeton High School, spent 20 minutes last Thursday with President Reagan at the President's in-visitation. The subject of their conversation — Ms. Gross said the President did most of the talking — was the nuclear arms race.

During the conversation, the President accepted her petition for a nuclear freeze, which bore the names of 14 of the 141 Presidential scholars, but later he told the scholars in a speech that "Americans who came before you learned horrible lessons about taking the easy way out of challenges to freedom."

Alluding to his meeting with Ms. Gross, the President said "You have a responsibility and a right to speak out about your concerns," but "let us always remember that with that privilege, goes a responsibility to be right."

In an editorial this week, the New York Times referred to the incident and chided the President for the phrase "a responsibility to be right." The Times said students have

FIREWORKS!

Sunday, July 3, Fireworks will rocket into the sky on Sunday, July 3, celebrating not only the country's birthday, but also the Bicentennial Year of the Continental Congress met in Nassau Hall.

The annual Princeton Pops Concert and Fireworks, sponsored by the Princeton area chapter of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra League and the Chamber of Commerce, will be held on the Princeton University fields east of Palmer Stadium and Jadwin Gym.

Gates will open at 5:30 for picnickers, and the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra will gather on its mobile SoundStage — gift of the Robert Wood Johnson Jr. Charitable Trust — for a 7:30 performance. You may buy tickets in advance — $5 for adults, $3 for students and seniors and $1 for children under 18 — at the places listed below, or spend a dollar more in each category and buy them at the gate.

Parking is free at Jadwin and other parking lots off Washington Road. No picnicking in the parking area.

If you plan to picnic, you should take your own food. Popsicles and soda will be on sale, through the Greater Princeton Jaycees. Take blankets and camp-chairs, also, but leave your pets at home: none will be allowed in the field.

If it rains, the concert will be given in Jadwin Gym the same night (but no picnicking in the Gym) and fireworks will be set off after dark on Tuesday, July 5.

Buy tickets at most banks, branch banks and savings and loan offices in the Princeton area, Cox's Store, Ellsworth's liquor store in Princeton Junction, M. Epstein's, Karelia Imports, the Palmer Square kiosk, the business office of the Princeton University Store and Titles Unlimited.

If you have any questions, call the Chamber of Commerce office, 921-7676.

SCOUTS AND LEADERS

Sought in West Windsor. The Girl Scout Association of West Windsor-Plainsboro will take registrations for Brownies, Scouts, and adult leaders at the West Windsor Municipal Building, Clarksville and North Post Roads, on Thursday, June 30, from 7 to 8:30.

All girls, from first grade through high school, are eligible. Girl Scouts who have recently moved into this area are invited to transfer to a West Windsor or Plainsboro Troop at this time, and girls who were unable to get into a Troop last year are asked to re-register.

The Girl Scouting program is planned to help girls realize their potential through a wide range of activities, such as sports, art, camping and achievements of AAMH members and recognizes outstanding community support.

Summer Camp is an integral part of the program and many Girl Scouts from this area enjoy a week or more of year. Karen D'Amato and swimmer, hiking, outdoor cooking, and other camp vice awards; Robert Cook, landlady of the year; Selma Goore and Ed Kelleher, Scouts may attend Camp this year. Information will be available at the time of registration.

The Girl Scout program depends on Adult Leaders for its success and the West Windsor-Plainsboro Girl Scout Association needs volunteers to serve as troop leaders and assistant troop leaders. In the past, some girls have not been admitted to the Girl Scouts because of a lack of leaders. Although many of the Troop Leaders are mothers of Scouts, this is by no means a requirement. Any woman with an interest in working with Advancement of Mental girls is eligible. Training is Health, located at 145 available from the Girl Witherspoon Street, provides Scouts, and experienced support services for mentally handicapped adults. Areas of help and support.

For more information call Kay Ranallo, 799-0421, or Liss Picaro, 799-2273.

FOR TOXIC STUDIES

University Grant. A grant of $100,000 for the study of toxic waste pollution has been received by Princeton University from the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation.

The study, to be conducted by the University's Hazardous Waste Research Program, will look for better scientific data to serve as the foundation for toxic waste policies, and for cleaning up disposal sites.

One project will focus on the indoor air pollution that comes from contaminated groundwater. Inhaling volatile chemicals while taking a shower, cooking, or washing clothes and dishes in contaminated water may seriously threaten health, according to Joseph Highland and Robert Harris, co-directors of the program.

The second project will examine the way toxic chemicals migrate through soils, and how various factors affect the rate of this migration toward groundwater. These studies can provide guidelines for planning dump clean-ups that will protect groundwater without wasting money on excessive procedures, Dr. Harris said.

A third study will look for a more accurate and comprehensive definition of the word "hazardous" than the one now used by the Environmental Protection Agency. According to Dr. Highland, many industrial wastes now known to be toxic or hazardous are not covered by the EPA's present definitions.

Using the grant money, the researchers will do experiments they hope will "significantly increase" the accuracy of the toxicity tests that are used by the EPA to determine what wastes should be regulated.

"We are particularly interested in this research," said Scott McVay, executive director of the Geraldine Dodge Foundation, "because New Jersey produces more chemical wastes and has more hazardous landfills targeted for cleanup than any other state in the nation."

The Hazardous Waste Research Program at the University was started in 1979. Studies are conducted by

BUSINESS In Princeton

CONSTRUCTION STARTS
On Bank Building, Governor Thomas Kean broke a bottle of champagne on a steel girder last Wednesday morning at a champagne breakfast to signal the start of construction on the new corporate headquarters of United Jersey Banks.

The Governor addressed the gathering, which included New Jersey Banking Commissioner Michael Horn, representatives of area communities and leaders of New Jersey businesses and industries.

Construction of the new headquarters is scheduled for completion in late 1984. The building site is located on 11.9

THE FIRST OF 13 BUILDINGS is nearing completion at Montgomery Knoll, a professional office condominium designed by The Hillier Group and located on Route 206 four miles north of Princeton. Developer Sandra Persichetti stands alongside a typical 1900 square foot end unit which will be ready for occupancy in July. Though most of the units will be owner occupied, a few offices are available to lease.

by The Hillier Group, architects and planners. Three stories high, the exterior will be made of polished granite and reflecting glass.

Extensive landscaping will feature a reflecting pool, jogging and bicycle paths. Some 35,000 square feet of office space will be available for lease.

Patricia Huzar Ferrell of Mountainside has joined the advertising agency, Louis Costanza & Associates of Research Park as account executive.

Ms. Ferrell was formerly vice president, marketing, for Dowmar International, a firm specializing in timesharing and hotel development worldwide. Prior to that, she was director of marketing services for Helmsley Hotels, where she assisted in the development of the introductory national advertising campaigns for the opening of the Helmsley Palace and Harley of New York hotels. She also served as director of marketing services for Princess Hotels International and as junior account executive for Keyes, Martin & Company.

faculty and students of the departments of chemical and civil engineering. The Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs and the department of geological and geophysical sciences also participate.

FACULTY CHANGES DUE
Approved By Trustees. Twenty-one members of the Princeton University faculty have been promoted to high rank. Effective July 1, eight faculty members will be advanced to the rank of professor, 11 to associate professor and two to assistant professor.

Promoted from the rank of associate professor to professor were Froma I. Zeitlin, in classics; William B. Russell, chemical engineering; Steve M. Slaby, civil engineering; Forman S. Acton, electrical engineering and computer science; Frediano V. Bracco and Frederick L. Dryer, mechanical and aerospace engineering; David A. Crerar, geological and geophysical sciences; and Andras P. Hamori, Near Eastern studies.

The 11 assistant professors advanced to the tenured rank of associate professor were:

Thomas D. Kaufmann in art and archaeology; Eric F. Wieschaus, biology; Sandra L. Bermann and David L. Quint, comparative literature; Ahmed M. Abdel-Ghaffar, civil engineering; David M. Bromwich, English; Keith T. DeConde, physics; Jeffrey L. Stout, religion; Luis Fernandez-Cifuentes and Pietro A. Stauffer, Preceptorship; Francesca, Romance languages; Paul T. Roberge, Germanic and literatures; and R. Douglas Arnold, Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.

Promoted to assistant professor were Kenneth A. Dickinson, Ove a lecturer in politics, and James A. Sauls, an instructor in physics.

In addition, two professors were named to endowed chairs, and both are in the Department of Romance Languages and Literatures.

Jeffrey L. Gossman will hold the M. Taylor Pyne Professorship, and Sylvia Molloy, the Emory L. Ford Professorship of Spanish.

Three assistant professors were named to preceptorships. David M. Van Leer, of the English Department, has been named to the Donald Stouffer Preceptorship; the Emory L. Ford Professorship of Spanish.

emeritus status at the end of the 1982-83 academic year. Walter J. Kauzmann, the David B. Jones Professor of Chemistry, joined the Princeton faculty in 1946; Nobel Prize-winning economist Sir W. Arthur Lewis, the James S. McDonnell Distinguished University Professor of Economics and International Affairs, has been at Princeton since 1963; and Roger Warren Jones, a senior fellow in public and international affairs at the Woodrow Wilson School, since 1969.

Resignations. Associate Professor of Economics Robert M. Anderson will resign August 31 to accept an appointment as associate professor of economics and mathematics at the University of California, Berkeley. Assistant Professor of Geological and Geophysical Sciences J. Brian Evans will resign to accept a position at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Assistant Professor of English Harry J. Solo resigned January 31, and Assistant Professor of History and History of Science John W. Serrano will resign in June.

John W. Etchemendy, assistant professor of philosophy, will resign to accept a position at Stanford University. Two members of the Department of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering will resign: Professor Earl H. Dowell, to accept the position of dean of the School of Engineering at Duke University; and Assistant Professor Connie M. Weeks, to accept a position at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif.

IEEE AWARD FOR VIDEO DISC PIONEERS. Jon K. Clemens, left, and Eugene O. Keizer, scientists at RCA Laboratories, have received the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE) Vladimir K. Zworykin Award for "outstanding contributions to the development of an electronic disc system for recorded television programs." Dr. Clemens and Mr. Keizer played key roles in the development of the capacitance electronic disc system (CED) that uses a diamond stylus to sense video and audio information stored in the grooves of a specially made plastic disc.

The 11 assistant professors advanced to the tenured rank of associate professor were: Thomas D. Kaufmann in art and archaeology; Eric F. Wieschaus, biology; Sandra L. Bermann and David L. ## Route 92 Debate financial, ecological and social standpoints. Warning that once Montgomery Woods is developed, the only place the highway will be built is on the Princeton-Montgomery town line, he urged Committee to do everything in its power to prevent its construction. Taking a slightly different tack, Claudette Adams urged Committee to "mend fences with Montgomery." She spoke of the anger at Princeton that was evident at the Montgomery Planning Board meeting that approved the Calton Homes development.

She also produced two letters, written by Princeton Planning Board members in June and July of 1979 to Montgomery planners. The first notes the deletion of I-92 from the Montgomery Circulation Plan, asks for its replacement and talks of preserving it on the Princeton-Montgomery line. Later there seems to have been a change of mind, and the second letter seeks to resolve the differences with "appropriate officials of Montgomery."

Ms. Adams neighbor, Louis Little, the one Princeton resident who will lose his house to the straddle route of S-92, suggested that Commissioner Sheridan should disqualify himself from deciding this issue because there are affected lots in the area which were owned by his former law partner, John F. McCarthy Jr. He also suggested that if the DOT was willing to bend the highway to curve around Calton Homes, it could also bend it around the Herrontown hill.

Mr. Little supported Ms. Adams plea for cooperation between the two municipalities in resolving the issue. "Some way needs to be found to get around the emotionalism of the Montgomery Planning Board," he said. "We have a luxury here: a place to build a highway where there aren't yet any houses. All of us are willing to pay something for a compromise that makes sense."

Residents have until Thursday to decide whether or not to appeal the Montgomery Planning Board's decision.

Judith Nielsen of the Princeton Environmental Commission took a still different tack by pointing out S-92 will bisect the largest piece of remaining farmland in Cranbury to the ultimate loss of yet another piece of New Jersey agriculture. She also questioned whether the highway will relieve traffic or generate more of it, as freeways have in California.

Mayor Pike had scheduled a meeting with Commissioner Sheridan on Thursday, which has now been changed to Friday. It was pointed out that under state law DOT had 120 days in which to object to the Calton Homes project, but that evidently it chose not to. In addition, N.J. law says that the DOT "may" file a map showing a proposed roadway with the municipal clerk, something that has not been done for the route that straddles Princeton.

Attorney George Fisher, sitting in for the absent Township Attorney Edwin Schmierer, advised Committee that deciding whether or not to file an appeal in order to stay the highway "was not an easy issue." Committee appears to be buying time by taking the appeal, as well as maneuvering into position, should it decide to take the matter to a higher court.

PEOPLE In The News

Edith M. Caponi of Ewing Street plans to retire this month from the Princeton Regional Schools after 21 years as a cafeteria aid. For the past 10 years she was at John Witherspoon School.

Mrs. Caponi, 69, is a native of Princeton who attended St. Paul's School here. She began working in the food service field in the 1940s at the Planders Hotel in Ocean City. She also worked for a time at the Boca Raton, Fla., Hotel. She expects to spend her retirement traveling, gardening, being involved with senior citizen groups and enjoying her grandchildren.

Ulrich C. Knoepfelmacher, FitzRandolph Road, professor of English at Princeton University, is a recipient of a Humanities Fellowship Award from the Rockefeller Foundation for a project entitled, "The Laboratory: Redefinition of Childhood: the 19th Century and After."

Prof. Knoepfelmacher's name was inadvertently omitted from the mention of three other Rockefeller Foundation award recipients published in last week's TOWN TOPICS. As he notes, since there were 40 finalists altogether, out of 1500 applicants, to percent of that group were Princeton residents. This, he says, is a rather nice statistic since neither New York City or Boston did better.

Hamilton College lacrosse goalie Jeff Olsson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. Olsson of 115 Dodds Lane, finished 15th nationally in save percentage, according to final Division III statistics released by the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association. He stopped 66.4 percent of the shots he faced as the Continentals posted a 12-2 mark, the second best record in the 34-year history of lacrosse at Hamilton.

He is an economics major who will begin his junior year this fall.

Dr. Phyllis M. Frakt of Jefferson Road, associate dean of the School of Liberal Arts and Science at Rider College, has been appointed associate provost. The appointment is effective July 1 and is in addition to her duties as associate dean. As associate provost, she will also be a member of the President's Council.

Dr. Frakt, who also holds the rank of associate professor of political science, came to Rider in 1974 as an assistant professor. She is a specialist in comparative politics of Europe and the Third World. She received her B.A. degree in political science from Douglass College and her Ph.D. and M.A. degrees from Rutgers University.

Dr. Frank A. Kierman of Lawrenceville is one of four Rider College faculty members who were granted emeritus status upon retirement at the end of the 1982-83 academic year.

Dr. Kierman, a specialist in Chinese history, joined the Rider faculty in 1971 after having served as director of research in Chinese linguistics at Princeton University for four years. He earned his Ph.D. from the University of Washington.

Anthony Basile, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony R. Basile Sr. of Pennington and a student at the Arthur R. Sypek

Vocational School, has been awarded a grant to attend the career orientations for high school juniors at Rochester Institute of Technology this July.

Mr. Basile is a printing student at Sypek and is considering printing as a career. He will be a senior at Hopewell Valley High School this fall and will also continue his printing studies at the Sypek Center.

Catherine R. Keuffel, of 2664 Main Street, Lawrenceville, received a varsity letter in lacrosse at Bowdoin College, while Lea Erdman of 13 Gordon Way earned junior varsity numerals in lacrosse. Both have just finished their freshman year. Miss Keuffel is a graduate of Stuart Country Day, Miss Erdman of Princeton Day School.

Two Pennington residents have been named to the Dean's List at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute for the spring semester. They are Mark R. DeLuca of 108 Howard Way, a freshman majoring in chemistry, and Luc Yves Murphy of 138 King George Road, a sophomore majoring in physics.

William H. Short, FAIA, who specializes in preservation architecture, has been named an advisor to the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Mr. Short will serve as one of two New Jersey representatives chosen to advise the National Trust on statewide issues pertaining to historic preservation. The National Trust is the only national, non-profit, private organization chartered by Congress to encourage public participation and Mr. Short's "Cambodian in the preservation of sites, Diaries, 1979." The second buildings and objects significant parts I and II were cent in American history and chosen.

The winners will receive Mr. Short, a founding part-$500 for each story selected, ner of Short and Ford Ar-with an additional $50 each chitects, has received acclaim time a story is published in a for his leadership in the field newspaper. Ten newspapers of restoration and adaptive use. His preservation projects, notably conversion of the Guernsey Hall into condominiums, have won numerous design awards and have been widely published in preservation books and journals.

Because of his contributions to the profession of architecture in the area of historic preservation, he was elected to the American Institute of Architects' College of Fellows in 1982. Mr. Short also serves on the American Institute of Architects' and New Jersey Society of Architects Committee on the Preservation of Historic Buildings.

Mair Small, R.N., head nurse at Familyborn birth center in North Brunswick and a resident of Broadmead, has been accepted into the primary care nurse practitioner program in Ob/Gyn nurse-midwifery at the University of California in San Diego.

Mrs. Small received her B.S. in nursing at the University of Rochester in 1968. Her nursing experience has focused on public health and labor and delivery. For the past 10 years she has been an ASPO certified Lamaze instructor and has most recently taught childbirth classes at Familyborn; where she has worked since 1981.

Her role at the birth center has evolved from staff nurse to head nurse, primarily assisting at births and providing postpartum care and instruction. She is married to Ken Small, professor of economics at Princeton, who is leaving to teach at the University of California at Irvine.

Joyce Carol Oates and Edmund Keeley are among the writers whose works will be featured in a new project to bring fiction back to the pages of newspapers.

The two Princeton University faculty members are among 90 authors from 32 states and the District of Columbia who were winners in a national competition to select stories for the Syndicated Fiction Project. The project is a cooperative effort of the National Endowment for the Arts Literature Program and the PEN National Trust on statewide issues pertaining to historic preservation. The National Trust is the only national, non-profit, private organization chartered by Congress to encourage public participation and Mr. Keeley's "Cambodian in the preservation of sites, Diaries, 1979." The second buildings and objects significant parts I and II were cent in American history and chosen.

John A. Olszewski, a member of the Colgate University Class of 1984, has been named a Charles A. Dana Scholar in recognition of high academic achievement and effective leadership.

A 1980 graduate of The International School of Brussels, Rotsfort, Belgium, John is concentrating in computer and information studies at Colgate. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Olszewski, 81 Cleveland Lane. The Dana awards were initiated at Colgate in 1965 by Philanthropist Charles A. Dana as a means of recognizing "superior academic achievement as well as demonstrated leadership in the college community." John's award is based on outstanding performance during the 1982-83 academic year.

Hans Rosenhaupt, former president of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, was awarded the honorary Doctor of Letters degree by Lincoln University in Pennsylvania on May 1. The honor was conferred in recognition of his service to higher education and to the black colleges in particular.

Under Mr. Rosenhaupt's administration, the Woodrow Wilson Foundation was responsible for establishing teaching and administrative internship programs to strengthen the position of the black colleges, and for programs making graduate education more accessible to women and members of minority groups. The award was conferred in absentia and accepted by Mrs. Maureen Rosenhaupt.

Patricia Dinella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dinella of Terhune Road and a freshman at Haverford College, qualified for the Eastern A.I.A.W. Division III tennis tournament held at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge. She was the first Haverford coed to participate in a regional championship.

Miss Dinella, co-captain of Haverford's women's tennis team, was voted the team's most valuable player. She earned a 8-1 record and a 10-2 individual singles record for the combined fall and spring seasons. In October she placed second in the Philadelphia A.I.A.W. Division II singles tournament.

At Princeton High School, she played first and second varsity singles for four years and was a first team All-New Jersey Group II selection. She was ranked number one for 16-and-Under in 1983 for the New Jersey Tennis Association.

Marine 2nd Lt. William D. Delano, son of Anne K. Maple Street, and Anne Cum-Adriance of 729 Prospect Avenue, was commissioned in Princeton Junction. his present rank upon graduation from Officer Candidate School in Quantico, Va. He will now attend the 21 week Officer's Basic School, is a member of the St. Paul's School varsity rowing crew

Jeremy Stein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Stein of 132 Dodds Lane, and co-captain of the Princeton University men's gymnastics team this year, has been named the 1983 winner of the Class of 1916 Cup. The Cup is presented to the varsity athlete who achieves the highest academic standing in the class.

An alumnus of Princeton High School, Jeremy was a member of the gymnastics team for the past two seasons and specialized in competition on the rings. Majoring in economics, he was graduated with highest honors and received awards for an outstanding senior thesis and for attaining the highest ranking in the economics department. He was also elected to membership in Phi Beta Kappa.

He is the recipient of a National Science Foundation Fellowship with which he plans to pursue a doctorate in economics at M.I.T.

Marine Pfc. Robert D. Lownie, son of Carl and Cathrine E. Lownie of 86 Irwin Place, Lawrenceville, N.J., has graduated from Aircraft Firefighting and Rescue School and has been promoted to his present rank.

During the four-week course at the Naval Air Technical Training Center, Millington, Tenn., trainees studied the causes and types of fires, rescue techniques and emergency operations procedures.

Princeton Township Deputy Mayor Carl Firestone took part in a foreign policy conference for young political leaders sponsored by the U.S. Department of State and the American Council of Young Political Leaders in Washington, D.C. Speakers to the group at the State Department included Secretary of State Schultz. The second day was spent on Capitol Hill and featured Congressmen of opposing viewpoints discussing foreign policy, trade, and nuclear arms reduction issues.

Nominated for the conference by New Jersey Secretary of State Jane Burgo, Mrs. Firestone served on the Princeton Regional School Board before her election to Princeton Township Committee. She holds a Ph.D. in psychology from Princeton University and is currently active in Firestone Real Estate on Nassau Street.

Three area residents have attained Dean's List honors for the spring semester at Syracuse University.

They are, Nancy J. Frank, daughter of Mrs. Carol Edelman, 1043 Stuart Road; David F. Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Reed Jr., 21 Delano, son of Anne K. Maple Street; and Anne Cum-Adriance of 729 Prospect Avenue, was commissioned in Princeton Junction.

OBITUARIES

The Rev. Dr. Norman V. Hope, Archibald Alexander Professor of Church History, Emeritus, at Princeton Theological Seminary, died June 16 at the Mercer Medical Center. He was 75 years old and a resident of Ewingville, Pa.

Dr. Hope joined the faculty at Princeton Seminary as Archibald Alexander Professor of Church History in 1946 and served until his retirement in 1978, when he became professor emeritus. Prior to his appointment at Princeton he was first Guest Professor and then James Suydam Professor of Systematic Theology at New Brunswick Theological Seminary in New Brunswick, from 1938-1946.

An ordained minister in the Church of Scotland, he began his ministry as pastor of the Bushy West Church of Scotland in Glasgow from 1935-38.

A contributor to "A Dictionary of Practical Theology" and "The New Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge," Dr. Hope wrote numerous articles for "Theology Today," the Christian Century, Interpretation, and other religious journals. He wrote "One Christ, One World, One Church: A Short Introduction to the Ecumenical Movement" (1953) and translated "The Distinctive Elements in Christianity" (1957).

An active preacher and speaker, Dr. Hope served as supply preacher at many churches in the Northeast of Toronto, Canada, through Virginia. He was a frequent guest lecturer and preacher in colleges and universities in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

He is survived by his wife, Wanda Christoff, a son, Harold E. Christoff of West Trenton, and a brother, Edward Hope of Hove, East Sussex, England.

A family graveside service was held at the Ewing Church cemetery in Trenton, Dr. James L. McCord, President of Princeton Theological Seminary, and Monsignor Joseph C. Shemrock, pastor of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament in Trenton, officiated.

A memorial service was held at the Ewing Church cemetery in Trenton, Dr. James L. McCord, President of Princeton Theological Seminary, and Monsignor Joseph C. Shemrock, pastor of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament in Trenton, officiated.

Surviving are a son, Gerald Mills of Trenton; a daughter, Minnie Summers of Newark; 10 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

The service was held in the Martin Luther King Chapel of the First Baptist Church, with the Rev. Edward Smith, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Princeton Cemetery.

RELIGION

In Princeton

CELEBRATION PLANNED
For Anniversary of Church. During and after the worship service, Sunday, Nassau Presbyterian Church will celebrate the tenth anniversary of its founding on June 24, 1973.

The event was actually a reunion of a church that divided in 1847 when some members of old First Church, on the site of Nassau Church, sought more zealous expression of their religion and established Second Presbyterian Church, later called St. Andrews.

Reunion had been considered for some time, and in 1973, when both churches were without ministers, the time was ripe. Led by banners and choirs, a march of the two congregations from their respective buildings brought them together at the entrance to the University by Holder Hall and a procession into Alexander Hall ended in a colorful and moving service. A sunny day enhanced the festivities which concluded with a balloon-filled reception in Holder Court following the service.

The service this Sunday will repeat music and litany of the original celebration. Elsa Granade, formerly of St. Andrews; Arthur Link, formerly of First; and Jeff Saddington, of the first new members of Nassau, will participate.

Wallace Alston, Nassau Church's first minister, chosen by a committee of representatives from both previous churches, will preach, and a resume by Arthur Link of highlights of the life of Nassau Church will be recorded in the bulletin.

At a festive coffee hour afterward a show of slides taken during reunion will recall to participants "A Day to Remember."

As permanent mementos a stone plaque noting the event will be placed in the church portico and the pew used at St. Andrews by Woodrow Wilson, who was consecutively a member of both churches, will be placed on the main floor.

Visitors are invited to join the celebration.

SUMMER HOURS, EVENTS
At Kingston Church. Kingston Presbyterian Church will hold its regular worship service at 10 a.m. each Sunday morning, beginning this Sunday when the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated.

During the month of July, Kingston Presbyterian will host Wednesday evening picnics, open to all. Participants are asked to bring meat to grill for themselves and their family and something to share. A variety of activities is planned for all ages from three to 103. The picnics will begin at 6.

The church will hold a Vacation Bible School during the weeks of July 18-22 and 25-29. Beginning at 9 each morning and lasting until 11:30, there will be two Bible-centered weeks of singing, crafts and fun for three-year olds through those children who have completed the 4th grade. A Bible Camp will be held during the same period for 5th and 6th graders. The Camp will feature hiking, sports, nature exploration, swimming and other activities. Call the church office, 921-8896, for more details or to register.

BULLETIN NOTES

The Rev. Dennis L. Tarr, dean of the center city campus of Temple University, Philadelphia, will be the preacher Sunday at the 10 a.m. chancel service at the Princeton University Chapel.

Mr. Tarr is an alumnus of the University of Redlands, Calif., Princeton Theological Seminary and Rutgers University, and he has studied at the Maxwell School of Public Affairs, Syracuse University. He is a frequent preacher in churches of many different faiths. His sermon topic will be, "A Little Man with a Great Faith."

The Continental Orchestra and Singers will present a live concert of contemporary Christian music on Sunday, July 3, at 6:30 at Nassau Christian Center, 26 Nassau Street.

The 48-member group includes 36 instrumentalists (including a full string section) and eight vocalists. The group is currently on a 75-day tour of the United States, Western Europe and Bermuda. Blending contemporary gospel music, anthems and hymn arrangements, the program entitled "Praise His Name and See It Happen" will feature excerpts from a new musical on the life of Joseph called "Dreamer" as well as several special instrumental arrangements.

The concert is free, the public is welcome. For more information call Pastor Jesse Owens at 921-0981 or 921-2828.

Westminster Choir College begins the Monday night "Hymn Sing" series on June 27 at 8:30 in the Bristol Chapel on the Westminster campus.

The public is invited to join Westminster Summer Session students for an evening of hymn singing under the direction of a member of the Westminster faculty. Each week, the hymn selections are made by the conductor and follow a central theme.

The first sing will be led by John Kemp who has been head of Westminster's Church Music department and will be returning to a music ministry in the fall. The "Hymn Sing" will be held throughout July in the air-conditioned Chapel. Admission is free and hymn sheets will be distributed at the door.

Dale and Debbie Everett of Niagara Falls will be at Nassau Christian Center in a "Miracle Ministry" of healing beginning Sunday and continuing "for an indefinite period of time." They will be at Sunday services at 10:30 and 6:30 and weekday night services at 7:30 Tuesday through Friday. Nassau Christian Center is located at 26 Nassau Street. For more information call Pastor Jesse Owens at 921-0981 or 921-2828.

The Jewish Singles of the Windsors will have a pool party Sunday, July 3, at 1 in Twin Rivers. Call 448-7075 for reservations and passes. The group will have dinner afterwards, and all are invited.

The Princeton Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will sponsor a Family Preparedness Program on Sunday at 7:30. The program will focus on aspects of a family's food supply and how to make good use of summer produce all year long. Robert Dragert will discuss growing your own fruits and vegetables; Carol Goff will explain the fine points of canning, freezing and drying; and a third speaker will give practical suggestions for storing a one-year supply of food for a family.

The program will be held at the church at the corner of Alexander Road and Route 1. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Dr. Muriel Gardiner's Book, "Code Name Mary," Recalls Her Life as Heroine of the Austrian Underground in the 1930s

Living quietly among us, standing in line at the post office, passing on the sidewalk, are certain individuals whose lives have been truly out of the ordinary.

They are people who have had unusual adventures, been involved in heroic activities, lived life more fully than most. We might never know of them or their deeds if it were not for a happening or an event that has thrust them into the limelight. Such a person is Muriel Gardiner and such an event is the publication of her book, "Code Name Mary: Memoirs of an American Woman in the Austrian Underground."

The publication of the book in this country by Yale University Press several years after the central portion appeared in Austria and France has renewed speculation that Dr. Gardiner was Julia of the chapter in Lillian Hellman's "Pentimento" memoirs which was made into a movie starring Vanessa Redgrave. In it Hellman describes her life-long friendship with Julia, a wealthy American woman who "had left college, gone to Oxford, moved on to medical school in Vienna and had become a patient-pupil of Freud's."

Furthermore Julia is involved in illegal Socialist causes in pre-war Vienna.

The description clearly evokes but does not precisely fit Muriel Gardiner's own life. The "Pentimento" story goes on to describe a train trip Hellman made from Paris to Moscow in 1937 by way of Berlin to deliver a large sum of money concealed in a candy box at Julia's request for underground purposes.

Only One "Mary". After the publication of "Pentimento," when she was besieged with cables and letters pointing out the similarities, Dr. Gardiner wrote to the director of the Documentation Archives of the Austrian Resistance and ascertained that "Mary," her Austrian code name, was the only American woman actively involved in the anti-Fascist, anti-Nazi underground at the time. Although she and Hellman have never met, she thinks the link between them may have been their mutual friend and lawyer Wolf Schwabacher.

It was to Mr. Schwabacher's farmhouse in Pennsylvania that Dr. Gardiner moved from New York City in 1940 with her daughter Connie and husband Joseph Buttinger, leader of the Austrian Socialist underground whom she hid in her Vienna studio for three years. She later gave the farmhouse and much of the surrounding acreage to be the headquarters of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association but continues to live in the cottage she and her husband build on the Mack Brunswick, and became so interested in the process that she entered medical school with the intention of training as an analyst as a foundation for future teaching.

Youngest daughter of a well-to-do meat packing family in Chicago, Muriel Morris grew up in luxury, privilege and some loneliness. She developed a keen social and political conscience at an early age—she writes of organizing a suffragette parade at age 10 and at Wellesley College she founded the Inter-collegiate Liberal League, later called the National Student Forum.

She envisioned a life in education, but before studying literature at Oxford in preparation for teaching she spent a year studying at the American School of Classical Studies in Rome. She traveled all around Europe, sometimes, she writes, sleeping on a blanket by a lake before the time of sleeping bags. She went on archaeological digs in the Middle East and lived a life rich in music, literature and stimulating friends, while at the same time keenly aware of the political and social upheaval going on in Europe. her weekend cottage in the

For personal reasons which she glides over in the book, she decided in the spring of 1926 to group that sought to go to Vienna to explore the possibility of psychoanalysis with Freud. She was analysed instead by a pupil and co- and false passports back and league of Freud's, Dr. Ruth forth across the border between Czechoslovakia and Austria. After a round-up of the entire Central Committee of the Socialist Party, which miraculously spared its leader, Joseph Buttinger, she hid him for three years in a small apartment she had rented in order to be able to study undisturbed by her child.

She writes of purchasing a corset—the only one she ever wore in her life—in order to conceal as many as seven smuggled passports taped to her body. She tells of a three-mile hike up a mountain in the rain at night to deliver altered passports as means of escape to comrades who had made a slip in the precautions everyone had to observe or risk endangering themselves or others.

Modest Telling. These exploits and others are described in such an understated way in "Code Name Mary" they leave the reader with the impression that they are but the tip of the iceberg. After the Anschluss, the annexation of Austria by the German Reich in March, 1938, Dr. Gardiner succeeded in getting Joseph Buttinger and her daughter and a companion-nurse to safety, but she stayed on in Vienna for another three months, ostensibly to finish her medical studies.

However this was a period of even greater activity ranging for affidavits and providing funds to enable their comrades to leave the country. Five days after she left for Paris in June, 1938, she received a letter warning her not to return to Vienna, the Gestapo were searching for her and believed her to be a foreign agent.

In 1980 Dr. Gardiner was awarded the Austrian Cross of Honor, First Class, at a ceremony at the Austrian Consulate in New York. At the ceremony it was said that those who were present—and there were many who were films of the 1940s, director Taylor Hackford's drama is about two characters who haven't many options in life. Richard Gere plays Zack Mayo, a tough loner who wants to better himself by entering Naval Aviation OCS on Washington's Puget Sound. Debra Winger is one of the local "townies" who dream of marrying an officer and escaping their lower middle-class world. She and her best friend meet Gere and his best buddy (David Keith) at a dance, and the two couples begin their contrasting affairs.

Equally central to "An Officer and a Gentleman" is the basic training of Zack under the tutelage of a fierce black drill instructor, Louis Gossett Jr., who won an Oscar this past spring for his performance. As a man afraid of being loved, afraid of breaking his solitude, Gere (star of the current hit "Breathless") turns in a performance which confirms his reputation as the screen's newest sex symbol.

The co-feature with "An Officer and a Gentleman" will be Lawrence Kasdan's "Body Heat." A slick and moody thriller right out of the Cain-Chandler school of tough cinema which reigned in the '40s, it marked the directorial debut for Kasdan, whose credentials include the scripts for both "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "The Empire Strikes Back." The setting is steamy, sultry southern Florida, where William Hurt (of "Eyewitness" and "Altered States" fame) plays a smalltown lawyer who becomes involved with a rich man's neglected wife (Kathleen Turner). Before long, the pair is planning how to get rid of the cuckolded husband (Richard Crenna) and get hold of his money. Sparks fly, insurance claims are debated, friendships fray, and the lovers quarrel and part explosively. "Body Heat" will be shown each evening at 9:45 p.m.

American Boychoir School begins its 46th season this summer with two sessions. The first will be held July 3-16, the second July 17-30. Girls and boys ages 6-13 are offered an unusual combination of a recreational-sports camp and a musical experience. A few spaces remain in both sessions, either for day or boarding campers.

Camp Albemarle is under the direction of Anton Armstrong, a staff member for 13 years and director for the past four summers. Mr. Armstrong is director of the Grand Rapids, Mich., Symphonic Choir and an instructor of music at Calvin College. Also returning to the camp will be Barbara Barstow, instrumental teacher, Nancy Thorne, Orff-Schulwerk teacher, and Todd Desliger, camp program director. Campers have the use of the playing fields and swimming pool on the grounds of Albemarle, the 52-room mansion that houses the American Boychoir. Swimming lessons and a free swim are offered daily by a certified Water Safety Instructor. Campers also enjoy a wide variety of sports and activities as well as an arts and crafts program.

their own score or pick one up at the door.

The Messiah will be conducted by Frauke Haasemann, a specialist in vocal techniques and choral warm-up procedures. Ms. Haasemann is a member of the Westminster faculty and is the conductor of the Westminster Chapel Choir.

Soloists for this week's Sing will be Westminster faculty members Anne Ackley, soprano; Lois Laverty, alto; Thomas Faracco, tenor; and Allan Seale, bass.

Westminster's Summer Sing will be held every Tuesday night at 8 through July. Each week a different major choral work will be performed under the leadership of a Westminster conductor. The next sing, on July 5, will feature Mozart's Requiem conducted by John Kemp.

OPERA FESTIVAL SET
For June, 1984, Michael Pratt, conductor of the Princeton University Orchestra, and Peter Westergaard, director of the Princeton University Opera Theatre, have organized an opera festival for next June and obtained partial funding for their project.

Mr. Pratt and Mr. Westergaard held a special press conference on the stage of the Kirby Arts Center at The Lawrenceville School to announce that the festival, which they will co-direct, will open June 15, 1984 with a new production of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro." Merrill Lynch & Co. of New York City has given a $105,000 grant to the festival, which will cover half the first season's operating expenses.

The two directors plan to present professional opera performances in English and to feature some of America's ablest young singers. Performances will be given in the Kirby Arts Center Theatre, which seats 890, and will be scheduled to allow for picnics on the school grounds.

According to Mr. Westergaard, the operas will be chosen from the many masterpieces conceived for theatres the size of Kirby and which, he says, "cry out for the intimacy and immediacy that only a small house can give." In future seasons more than one opera will be presented, he said.

"The June Festival is based on the premise that it takes

BUCKS ART FEATURED
At Trenton Museum. Only one major American Impressionist painter devoted most of his art to depicting scenes of the poor and their environment. Thirty-four paintings by this artist are featured in an exhibition, "Robert Spencer, Impressionist of Working Class Life," in the main galleries of the New Jersey State Museum in Trenton through Sunday, August 28.

Spencer was born in 1879 in Nebraska but for most of his adult life, from 1906 until his death in 1931, he lived and worked in towns close to the Delaware River — Frenchtown and Lambertville in New Jersey and Point Pleasant and New Hope in Pennsylvania. Many of the mills and rural tenements he portrayed are renderings of scenes in these communities. Spencer's images of the poor and the lower classes have at times been likened to those of the "Ashcan School," who depicted the life of New York's lower classes. Thomas Folk, guest curator for the exhibition, points out in his introduction to the catalogue that "Spencer more sensitively portrayed the tedium and melancholy of the life of the poor than the artists of the 'Ashcan School.'"

EXHIBITS

Calligraphy by Alex Kerr will be on exhibit at Educational Testing Service, Lounge B, Conant Hall, Carter and Rosedale Roads, from June 23 to July 29. Hours are 9 to 11 a.m. and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. daily (closed weekends). The exhibit was organized by Franz G. Geierhaas, director of International Print Society, New Hope, Pa.

Mr. Kerr's exposure to calligraphy and the Chinese language began in the first grade at a small private school in Alexandria, Va. At age 12 his family moved to Yokohama, Japan, where he began to write with a brush under the tutelage of a fellow Chinese student age 15.

While at Yale he majored in Japanese Studies and continued to study Japanese at Keio University, Japan. From 1974-77 he majored in Chinese Studies at Oxford and studied Tibetan and Tibetan calligraphy as well. After Oxford he returned to Oomoto, Japan, to live.

News Of Clubs and Organizations

AT CITIZENSHIP INSTITUTE: Lisa Schkolnick, left, and Amy Hallgarth were selected by the Woman's Club as this year's delegate and alternate, respectively to attend the annual training institute in citizenship sponsored by the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Woman's Club has chosen Lisa Schkolnick, a junior at Princeton High School, to be a delegate at the Citizenship Institute at Douglass College this week, and Amy Hallgarth, a junior at West Windsor Plainsboro High School, as alternate. The Institute is sponsored by the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs for the purpose of providing training in good citizenship and to encourage awareness of the social and political problems of contemporary society.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad will meet Monday at 8 at the Squad House on North Harrison Street. President Shirley Cashill will preside.

St. Paul's Golden Agers will meet in the St. Paul School cafeteria on Saturday at 1:30.

Charlotte Garrett and Richard McLaughlin, seniors at West Windsor-Plainsboro High School, have received the West Windsor Lions Club's college scholarship award.

The award, given by the Lions for the past 20 years, is presented to a graduating boy and a girl from West Windsor Township. The award is in the amount of $250 and is to be used to further their education. The winners were selected from many qualified candidates because of their records of civic service, following the Lions Club's motto, "We Serve."

Muriel Gardiner

not-owed their lives to Muriel Gardiner.

Fascinating as these activities are to read about nearly 50 years later, they are by no means the sum and substance of her life. Married to Joseph Butlinger in Paris in 1939 and after some difficulty able to come with him to the United States soon thereafter, she and he became deeply in-involved in international refugee work, alternately making long trips to Paris for the International Rescue Committee. Their New York apartment became home to little English boys, Austrians, Germans, Hungarians and even Russians.

Dr. Gardiner initially worked as a psychiatric consultant at two New York nursery schools before taking her internship at Mercer Medical Center and residency at Marlboro State Prison. After further training as a member of the Institute of the Philadelphia Association for Psychoanalysis she became a full time practicing analyst. She was, she says, the first psychoanalyst in practice between Newark and Philadelphia in 1948.

After six years she gradually curtailed her practice and began teaching at Rutgers in the Graduate School of Social Work and at the Institute and at various agencies. For nearly 15 years she served as a psychiatric consultant on a child study team first in the public schools of Bucks County and then for the State Department of Education in Gloucester and Salem county schools. She considers this to have been the best and most important work of her life. It was a return full circle to her first interest in education, and she regarded it as preventive psychiatry, more appealing than trying to remedy already deep seated damage. During this period she edited and wrote several chapters of "The Wolf-Man by the Wolf-Man," about the Russian emigre who was a deeply disturbed patient of Freud's, so-called for his dreams about wolves, and from whom she herself had studied Russian while still in Vienna.

She also wrote a book called "The Deadly Innocents: Portraits of Children Who Kill," which far from being a collection of case studies are appealingly written biographies of youthful offenders who are victims as surely as those whom they murdered.

A Life Well-Written. At a publication party given in her honor by the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association, James Gaffney, director, spoke of Dr. Gar-diner as that "rare individual" whose "feats are the dreams of most mortals." He paid tribute to her humanism, sensitivity for people and love of nature. Her book, he said is a "well-written life account that is as rare as a well-lived life."

TWIN BOYS ARE BORN

At Medical Center. Twin sons were born to Joseph and Julie Ferrar of 1229 Dean's Lane, Monmouth Junction, on June 14 at Princeton Medical Center. The twins are among 11 boys and 10 girls born there during the week ending June 16. Sons were also born to Mark and Karen Galley, 8 Vahlsing Way, Robbinsville, June 11; William and Linda DeStefano, Box 229A RD1, Hopewell, June 12; Vincent and Eileen Cimino, 11 Pembroke Court, Lawrenceville, June 27; and Diane Dilemno, Box 27, Cedar Road, Whitehouse Station, both on June 13.

POST 76 STRUGGLING
With Pitching Rotation. Ever since Princeton Post 76 won its opening game in the Mercer County American Legion league, a nifty, 11-strikeout performance by veteran Dan Arendas in a 4-2 decision over Hightstown, the Princeton club has been struggling. In fact, the 76ers have lost their next five for a lackluster 1-6 start.

"We're off to a slow start," acknowledged first year coach Larry Bender, "but the season is a long way from being over."

True enough, but crunch time is already at hand. Post 76 will play four games in four days this weekend and when the last out has been called the club will be 11 games into a 27-game schedule. Unless the 76ers are able to get its pitching rotation clicking, which Bender views as the most serious problem confronting the team, the season could already have been lost.

Three of the upcoming games will be played at Post 76's home diamond -- Princeton University's Clarke Field. Trenton Post 93 will be here Thursday for a 5-45 contest, and Hightstown Post 148 and Ewing Post 314 will provide the opposition on Saturday and Sunday, both games starting at 1. Friday, Post 76 will be at Gilder Field, the home field for Bordentown Post 26.

In three games last week, Post 76 was outslugged by Mitchell-Davis, no longer the league's doormat, 15-12, on Saturday, edged, 3-2, by Hamilton on Friday, and tripped up, 12-10, by Broad Street Park the previous day. The results indicate that Post 76 has no trouble hitting the ball but its pitchers haven't been able to silence the opposing batters.

The key has been an injury to Arendas. The former West Windsor high school standout who batted .311 for the Princeton University freshman it a little easier for the victors team and led the Tigers in by committing four errors. homers with three, has Mike Petrone took the loss. sustained an elbow injury to his pitching arm.

"Arendas was scheduled to pitch against Broad Street Park when we scored 10 runs and I can guarantee you that nobody in the league is going to score 10 runs off Arendas," observed Bender.

A former Broad Street player himself, who was an assistant baseball coach at Mercer County Community College this past season, Bender estimates that the injury will cost Arendas three to four turns on the mound.

Double Loss For Bender. Saturday, Post 76 was ahead of Mitchell-Davis, 12-10, when M-D exploded for five runs in the eighth, combining a double, single, three walks, a sacrifice fly, another single by former Hun School standout Martin Summers and an error.

Chris Hunninghake had a pair of doubles for Post 76 and losing pitcher Mike Colston added another two-bagger among Princeton's eight hits. Colston also stroked a pair of singles to make his first game for the 76ers this season a memorable one at the plate. Arendas, Jeff Enslin, and Dino D'Angelo also singled for Post 76.

The day marked a double setback for Bender. He was slapped with a three-day suspension following an argument two days earlier with plate umpire Joe Caruso on a called strike to Brian Lenox. Caruso forfeited the game to Broad Street Park with one out remaining when he claimed Bender refused to leave the Trenton High playing grounds. Bender filed a protest but the outcome stood.

The previous day, Post 76 suffered a one-run loss to Hamilton when Hamilton's Chris Harding's two-out single in the eighth sent Jim Provenzano, who had tripled, home with the winning run.

The 76ers had scored both their runs in the fourth on an error and singles by Dan Arendas, Scott Ellis and Mike Carnevale. Mike Petrone's double was the only extra-base hit for Princeton. Bill Bastedo went the distance for the 76ers and took the loss. Jim Ebersson got the win.

In the Broad Street Park contest, Post 76 jumped to a 4-0 lead on Scott Ellis's grand slam in the first inning. Princeton added six more runs in the fifth on a three-run homer by Arendas, Enslin's RBI single and a two-run triple by Lenox.

BSP, meanwhile, was wielding a big bat of its own (each team had 11 hits) as it pushed four runs across in each of the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Princeton made

Did you know there have been 2 movies about sports which won the Academy Award as Best Picture of the Year ... Which 2 sports movies won the Academy Award? ... They were "Rocky" — about boxing — in 1976, and "Chariots of Fire" — a true story about the Olympics — in 1981.

When the first U.S. Open golf tournament was held in 1895, it was open to ANYONE who wanted to play ... That's where the name "Open" came from ... There were no qualifications for playing ... Despite being open to anyone, only 11 golfers took part in that first U.S. Open.

I'll bet you didn't know that you'll never have your back against the wall if your insurance is with S.D. & B.

Here's one that may surprise you ... Of ALL the pitchers in big league baseball history, who walked the most batters? ... Answer is Nolan Ryan who set a new career strikeout record this year — but it's not generally known that Ryan has walked over 1,900 batters in his career, and no other pitcher has ever come close to issuing that many walks.

ANDY'S MIKE'S WIN
In Women's Softball. The Princeton Women's Softball League completed its fourth week of play last week with a pair of one-sided scores, as Andy's Tavern blanked Army-Navy Store, 15-0, and league-leading Mike's Tavern crushed Conte's Bar, 16-2.

Andy's needed only five innings as the 15-run rule was invoked, but still recorded 17 hits and scored in four of the five innings, including seven runs in the first.

Pitcher Mary Foxx, who had two hits in four at bats and scored three wins, slammed the door against winless Army-Navy, tossing a no-hitter, the league's first this season.

Hitting well for Andy's (2-2) were Sue Presti who had three hits and three RBIs and Cindy Nelson, Donna Woodruff, Ann Dowling, Dee Ellis, Lisa Schmidt and Patti Dowling — all stroking two hits apiece.

Mike's also played seven runs in the first and added six more in the sixth as it banged out 19 hits. Lorraine Duthie tossed a three-hitter for the easy win. Mike's raised its record to 4-0, while Conte's (2-0) fell into a second-place tie with Andy's.

Sallie Toscano counted a grand slam among her two hits, while Grace Durland was a perfect 4-for-4 at the plate and scored three runs. Michelle Morgan rapped three hits for the victors, including a pair of triples.

Collecting two hits each were Dee Pearce, Kathy Shillaber and Elizabeth Zing. For Conte's, Barbie Falcon's two hits and one by Peggy Wood accounted for the three yielded by Duthie.

UPSET ENDS SEASON
Nautilus Finishes 4-2-2. The Princeton Nautilus Women's Soccer team ended its season last week in the Garden State League by tying the Freehold Flames and upsetting the Perennial league leader, Hillside Americans. Nautilus finished its season with a 4-2-2 record.

Against Hillside Nautilus was handicapped early on after a player ejection left it with only ten. Despite the setback, Nautilus was able to surprise Hillside on two goals by Clare Baxter to take a 2-0 lead at halftime.

Hillside came right back in the second half, scoring two goals on some crisp passing to knot the score but that was as far as the favored American got.

Nautilus grabbed a 5-2 win when Karen Parker scored on an assist from Carey Crutcher and Crutcher added two more unassisted goals.

Much of the credit for the upset belongs to the Nautilus defensive play of Tracey Parker, Julie Converse and Karen Petruska. Kari Spaeth returned to play keeper for the victors and had several outstanding saves to frustrate the Hillside attack.

Against Freehold, Crutcher scored on an assist from Debby Wickendham and Kris Veale on an assist by Jeri Balmer.

Crutcher and Melanie Nosal shared the goal tending duties. Later when Nosal switched to forward, she just missed scoring the winning goal when her shot bounced off the crossbar.

The Nautilus team will continue to practice informally during the summer before resuming league play in the fall.

Anyone interested in joining the team should call Anne Knudson-Fitzpatrick at 921-6985.

THREE ARE TIED
For Men's Softball Lead. Princeton Nautilus with a 9-2 victory over Downtown A.C. last week tied Mike's Tavern and Conte's for the lead in the Princeton Men's Softball League. All are 9-2, while PIASC and Hinkson's are tied for second at 8-3.

There will be doubleheaders on Sunday for each team starting at 2 at Community Park, Valley Road and Marquand Park fields. Some of the key matchups will be Nautilus vs. PIASC, Hinkson's vs. C Sq. C and Conte's vs. PIASC.

Nautilus retaliated in the same inning with six more runs to put the game on ice. Jamie Petrone, Ken Brovik and Mike Shillaber homered for Nautilus to spark the offense. Shillaber also contributing a triple. Jack Petrone doubled and drove in a pair of runs for the victors, as Greg Kline got the win.

Pacing the losers at the plate was Bob Kesios who was a perfect 3-for-3 and two RBIs. Jim Lennon added two hits off Kline.

The standings:

the tennis tournament schedule for this summer.

All tournaments will be held at the County's Outdoor Tennis Center, located off Edinburg Road in West Windsor Township at the 2,500 acre County Park.

This year will mark the first Mercer County Juniors'

Singles Tournament. The event will have four separate categories for boys and girls with trophies awarded to the finalist and semi-finalist in each category.

The schedule is: July 10-15, Men's Doubles Tournament; 17-22, Juniors' Singles Tournament; 24-29, Men's Singles Tournament; July 31-Aug. 5, Mixed Doubles Tournament; and 7-12, James E. Cryan Memorial Tournament.

Applications will be available prior to each tournament at the Outdoor Tennis Center and the Park Commission Offices on South Broad Street. The tournaments are scheduled to begin on Sundays depending on the size of the draw.

Most matches will be scheduled to begin Monday evenings at 6, and continuing through the week at 6 each evening, with the finals set for Friday evening.

For further information call the Outdoor Tennis Center at 586-9850 or the Park Commission Office at 989-6533.

FOR POOL PATRONS

LET'S TALK ABOUT

SUMMER STORMS & LIGHTNING DAMAGE
with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

Lightning is one of the most awesome forces in nature's arsenal of destructive powers. A lightning bolt may contain over 100,000,000 volts of electricity and measure 200,000 amperes. It is a power that is both vast and mysterious. A study of 1,000 claims undertaken by the Harvard, Illinois-based Lightning Protection Institute found in over 11 % of the cases lightning first struck a tree, then skipped or side flashed over to a house close by. The primary target of lightning are tall or isolated buildings, trees, telephone poles and other tall objects of wood, metal or other conductive materials.

Lightning is a major culprit and destroyer of trees. Trees which people care about most -- large, old shade and specimen trees of both sentimental and monetary value. It is more likely that a lone tree will be struck or the tallest in a grove, or most disliking of all, a tree close to buildings where wiring or plumbing could serve as a ground conductor. Lightning protection systems are a worthwhile precaution for any tree of historical interest or high value.

Shade trees within 10 feet of a building that have branches overhanging part of the roof should have lightning protection. Studies indicate that deep-rooted or decayed trees are more susceptible to lightning injury. A tree beside an avenue or a body of water may also face a greater danger of being struck. Different species of trees are also more liable to be hit by lightning. The more commonly injured species include poplar, pine, elm, maple, spruce, ash and oak. Some species, such as holly, honschastnut, beech and birch are seldom victims. If you are concerned about lightning protection and your trees, please give WOODWINDS (924-3500) a call. We'll be glad to advise you.

LIFE SAVING COURSE

At YMCA. The Princeton YMCA has announced two new course offerings for its eight-week Summer Session.

Red Cross Senior Lifesaving will be offered Tuesday evenings from 6:30-9. On Thursday evenings from 7-8, a beginning swim instruction course for adults will be held.

Other courses in the summer session, which begins Monday, will include Distance Cycling for Beginners, Oil Painting, Aikido, Youth Karate, and swim instruction for children. Registration will continue through the first week of classes, as openings last. Call the YMCA, 924-4497, for more information.

ZONING BOARD MEETS
Three Applications Pending. The Borough Zoning Board will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. to hear three applications involving residences.

Dr. Stephen M. Felton has requested a variance to construct an addition at 21 Wiggins Street and to use the house as both a doctor's office and a residence. William and Pauline Egan, 245 Library Place, seek permission to build an addition to their house.

Richard Altman has applied to install a swimming pool in the backyard at 29 Hamilton Avenue, and needs a variance for setback and coverage requirements.

Ten additional artists won honorable mention. Among them are Leonora Florian Bernard of Princeton, Judith Weller Hunt of Princeton, Betty Jane Lee of Princeton, and Dana Powsner of Princeton.

'AIRPLANE' ON VIEW

At Library. The Public Library will have a demonstration videodisc showing of the film "Airplane" starring Roland Hay and Julie Hagerty on Wednesday, June 29, at 10:30 a.m. and again at noon.

The 88-minute color comedy, a spoof on airline dramas in general, relates the story of how members of an airline's crew become ill with food poisoning and a passenger takes over the controls.

DRIVE UNDERWAY
For Disaster Relief Funds. The Emergency Disaster Fund Campaign for the Princeton Area Chapter, American Red Cross, seeks funds to continue providing emergency disaster relief.

Letters asking for donations have been sent to corporations, businesses, and community residents in the greater Princeton area. Notices have also been placed in newspapers calling the public's attention to this nationwide effort.

According to James Richmond, chairman of the campaign, 4343 disasters have occurred throughout the country in the last 10 months. These include major disasters, fires, transportation accidents and tragedies caused by chemical spills and environmental pollution. Red Cross has brought immediate aid to the victims of these disasters.

Although residents of the communities serviced by the Princeton Red Cross have not had a major disaster in recent years, Mr. Richmond feels this is all the more reason to help these victims who have been hit with hardship.

The American Red Cross has already spent $33 million to provide disaster relief services since July of last year. This emergency disaster campaign needs your support. Contributions may be made to the Princeton Area Chapter, American Red Cross, and should be designated "Emergency Disaster Fund." Checks should be sent to the Red Cross office, 182 North Harrison Street.

Rampage of Vandalism by Two Juveniles Causes Thousands of Dollars of Damage

Two days after it happened, Princeton police are still trying to add up the cost of a rampage of vandalism by two young juveniles that had police officers here shaking their heads at the scope of its violence and destruction.

In the Township, where there was extensive damage to Princeton University property and to ten parked cars, Juvenile Officer Jerry Offredo "guessed" the damage to be in excess of $5,000 and closer to $10,000. In the Borough, Chief Michael Carnevale declined to estimate the damage where more than 60 cars and 23 bicycles were vandalized. "It's going to be mind boggling," Chief Carnevale allowed. The cost to replace slashed tires alone was estimated at $6,000.

A 12-year old Borough resident and a 13-year old Kendall Park youth were arrested Sunday morning in Palmer Stadium by Sgt. David Potts and Ptl. Robert Nielsen. Both have been charged with multiple counts of criminal mischief and released to their parents, pending action by a Mercer County Juvenile Court.

Det. Offredo reported that the Kendall Park teenager had been staying overnight at the home of the Princeton youth. The parents of each, who did not

Stockman Meets with Homeowners over 92 Alignment

State Senator Gerald Stockman took the unusual step of meeting early last Saturday morning with a group of some 30 Herrington Road homeowners.

The residents are concerned about what seems to them a sudden rerouting of a section of the 92 Bypass so that it straddles the Princeton-Montgomery boundary. The new route would traverse a steep ridge on its way across the Millstone River and the Delaware and Raritan Canal to provide a way around Princeton for traffic trying to get from Route 206 to Route One and beyond.

They are seeking ways of pushing the alignment back into the Montgomery valley which is where it has been shown on Department of Transportation maps as a "preserved alignment" since 1972. A recent decision by the Montgomery Planning Board to grant preliminary site plan and subdivision approval to a 385-unit Calton Homes development and an agreement whereby the developer deeded some of his land at a minimal cost for a right-of-way for the highway are factors in the rerouting.

Sen. Stockman reported on taking part in a meeting $85,000 Grant Approved For Housing in Borough

An initial grant of $85,000, with the possibility of as much as $100,000 a year for a total of four years, has been awarded the Borough for housing rehabilitation in the John Street-Witherspoon Street area. The grant comes from the state's Department of Community Affairs, through its Neighborhood Preservation Program.

The award represents professional grantsmanship by Charles Nathanson, retained to guide the Borough through the application labyrinth. "He knows what the state is looking for," says Borough Council member Richard Woodbridge, who first produced Mr. Nathanson.

Plans for Expanded Nassau Inn Approved 9-2 by Planning Board

By a 9-2 vote Monday night, the Planning Board approved the Collins Development plans for an expanded Nassau Inn, setting conditions regarding use of the outdoor cafe and landscaping, and rejecting proposals to limit the height of the addition.

Peter Bearse and John VanPlantinga voted "no." On Tuesday morning, a citizen opponent stated that he would appeal the decision to Borough Council, and possibly beyond.

Throughout, the board was unanimous in its concern about the effect of Collins' plans on Princeton's sewers. Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike proposed that Collins be denied occupancy permits until the Sewer Operating Committee is convinced that four times as much infiltration has been removed from sewers as the normal amount of sewage Collins would put in.

George Olexa, secretary of the SOC, told the board that Collins must obtain sewer approval from the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection before the firm can even get a building permit.

Following the overall 9-2 vote, which came after about two and a half hours of comment from board and audience, the board settled down to a series of votes on various segments of the plan and on conditions.

In the most crucial one, Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley moved acceptance of the new addition to the Nassau Inn, to be built on the strip parking lot on the east side of Palmer Square East, and of the bridge spanning the street and linking the two parts of the Inn.

The vote was 8-3, with Elizabeth Hutter joining Mr. VanPlantinga and Mr. Bearse to disapprove.

Earlier, Mrs. Hutter had made two vain attempts to reduce the size of the addition. First, she asked that only 50 percent of the know their sons were out, have been fully co-operative, he said.

Township police were called at 6:13 Sunday morning by an observant Western Way resident, who spotted two youths damaging Western Way street lights. When apprehended, the two had a crow bar, two steak knives and a stick in their possession, police said.

"The observation by the resident really broke the case," commented Det. Offredo. "If the grab hadn't been made, it would have been awfully hard to prove anything."

A subsequent investigation revealed that 30 lights and the wiring of the baseball scoreboard at Princeton University's Clarke Field had been destroyed by a crowbar. Six windows in the Palmer Stadium press box, door locks and two telephones next to refreshment stands near stadium ramps were also destroyed.

In addition, ten cars parked in the Hibben Apartments lot off Faculty Road had their tires slashed or their windshields broken. One car had all four tires slashed, Det. Offredo reported. He estimated the replacement cost for the windshields alone at $2,000.

Over in the Borough, Det. Gerald Patterson was co-ordinating the police investigation with Det. Offredo. All day Sunday, Borough police conducted one investigation after another, as reports of vandalism came in throughout the day.

Chief Michael Carnevale reported tires slashed, windows smashed and convertible tops cut on more than 60 cars parked in lots on Prospect Avenue, in the Palmer Square area and on the university campus. Some spark plug wires were also cut.

Twenty-three tires of bikes parked on campus were sliced, as were pump hoses at a Nassau Street gas station. Police believe the two suspects were also involved in an attempted burglary of a coin machine in the Coin Wash at the rear of 259 Nassau Street. The attempt triggered an alarm, but the suspects had left the scene by the time police arrived.

Police place the time of the youths' vandalism in the Borough at 1:30 to 6 a.m. Part of their rampage was done on foot, part while riding bicycles, Chief Carnevale said.

Officers from both departments commented that there was no evidence of any drug or alcohol use by the two youths. Both Det. Offredo and Chief Carnevale declined to comment on what might happen when the two appear before a juvenile judge.

Housing Grant

According to Stuart Portnoy, in the Nathanson office, a three-month planning period now begins. A group of residents, representatives of the Witherspoon-Jackson Corporation, officials and probably banks, will decide what to do.

The thrust will be housing. Mr. Woodbridge said, in announcing the grant. The $85,000 could, for example, be the nucleus of a revolving loan fund with banks providing additional money. A private person who met eligibility requirements, might borrow to repair a home, for example. Mr. Portnoy said he did not know whether landlords would also be eligible.

The state must approve the final plan and will work with the Borough during the planning process, Mr. Portnoy said. He added that his department had "tremendous interest" in the Witherspoon-Jackson Corporation and would expect that group to participate in the decisions.

"It's a very unusual organization," he commented. Witherspoon-Jackson was formed several years ago to make it possible for black families to buy property in the Witherspoon-John-Jackson area. Henry Pannell is president. The Housing Authority of the Borough is also expected to play a part.

Because a final plan must still be approved, the grant actually represents approval of a pre-application, Mayor Robert W. Cawley told reporters Monday.

"This is a start," Mr. Woodbridge said. "We might now piggyback with the county, which could ask the state for money for county-wide rehabilitation."

He also cited the possibility of Small Cities funds, and Mr. Portnoy remarked that Small Cities money would dovetail nicely with the state grant.

Both Mayor Cawley and Mr. Woodbridge said that a walk through the neighborhood earlier this summer with Witherspoon-Jackson representatives impressed state officials, both with the area and with the representatives, and perhaps led to the success of the application.

MORE TIME GRANTED
By Institute. The Institute for Advanced Study has extended until December 31 its original 90-day deadline for opponents of Institute housing proposals to find money to buy out the development rights.

These opponents have dropped an acronym, PROSPER, used at the start of their efforts, and now group together as the "Friends of Princeton Open Space". They now have a contract with the Trust for Public Lands under which the Trust will develop a strategy for raising money to buy the easements that will protect the Institute's lands from development. Rosemary Blair, president of the Friends, declined to say how much the group will pay the Trust for its work.

Mrs. Blair says the group hopes to present a proposal to Institute trustees in September, and she suggested two or three ways in which the Institute might be recompensed.

In one scenario, a single corporate investor or several corporate donors might buy the easements and take the tax advantage. Another possibility is to use money from New Jersey's farm land bond issue. A third possibility is an outright grant from the Trust to the Institute, which the Friends would then have to raise money to repay.

James Sayen, of the Friends, said the group has offered the Institute $2 million for development rights, but "down the road, over eight or ten years, the figure is $8 or $9 million."

School Board Okays Salary Hikes For Administrators, Staff Members

Salaries for administrators and also for staff members who are not covered by any bargaining unit were approved last week by Princeton's school board.

Superintendent Paul Houston's new salary will be $59,900. Assistant Superintendent James McKenzie will receive $52,529 and Business Administrator-Board Secretary Judith Horner, $47,500.

Manager of Facilities Services William Karch's salary will be $42,000 and that of Barbara Walsh, Manager of Food Services, $34,500.

These raises ranged from 4.8 to 8.5 percent. The only exception is that of the Assistant Superintendent who received an increase of 16.2 percent because the board wanted to link his salary to that of the high school principal. Some of these salaries are tied to other contracts, like those of the secretaries, teachers or administrators.

This non-affiliated category also includes the personnel specialist and personnel secretary, the superintendent's secretary, the assistant board secretary, two members of the maintenance department and the athletic trainer-equipment manager.

Administrators, who do belong to a union, now have a two-year contract giving them a nine percent increase the first year and seven percent the second year. The board, at its own initiative, increased the differential that has always existed between the salaries of elementary school principals and the principals of the middle and high school.

In the past, the middle school principal received $2,000 more than elementary school principals; now, that post pays $4,360 more. William Johnson, Middle School principal, will receive $49,159 in the first year of the contract.

Before, the high school principal received $2,000 more than the middle school principal; now, the job will bring in $3,270 more and PHS Principal John Sakala will receive $52,429 the first year. For both middle and high school principals, the nine percent increase was calculated after the differential had been added.

Princeton's two remaining elementary school principals — Norma Gumbiner at Community Park and George Petrillo, now at Riverside — will both receive $44,799 in the first year of the contract.

At the high school, assistant principals Florence Burke, Virginia Euell and Norman Van Arsdale will all receive $43,164. The same salary will go to J.A. Seitz, assistant principal at the Middle School. Charles Huchet, director of Student Services, and Lloyd Taylor, director of Curriculum, will each receive $44,799.

Many, Mrs. Blair said, were out-of-town bird-watchers exploring the Institute Woods.

Early this fall, the Friends will launch a fund drive directed by Martha Brecht-Munn and Margaret Meiss. Other officers of the Friends are Laurence Norris Kerr, vice-president, and R. William Potter, treasurer.

Working with the Friends are the Sierra Club, the Battefield Preservation Society, the Delaware and Raritan Canal Coalition and the New Jersey Farmland Foundation. One of the first tasks in the fund drive, Mrs. Blair pointed out, is to cull the names of Princeton property-owners from the Sierra Club's 2,200 sewer ban," the mayor told reporters Monday. With developing Institute lands.

Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike and other officials, he traveled to Trenton last week to meet with Arnold Schiffman, the Water Quality official who, earlier this month, announced a ban on any sewer connections that would add to the flow into the Harry's Brook trunk sewer.

Mr. Schiffman learned on Wednesday that the Borough has not added more gallons than it has taken out, has financed $1 million in sewer work and has a program to make repairs. All this information has been put into a letter, scheduled for mailing this week to the Schiffman office.

He has promised to evaluate and report within a week.

"We had the impression the ban would be lifted," reported Borough engineer George Oleksa.

He said the Borough also learned that the ban on Harry's Brook connections is not total: it applies only to extensions. A single-family house is allowed to connect, and buildings with less than 2,000 gallons-per-day of sewage.

Pipes now pyramiding on various lawns are part of the repair work required to stop infiltration and inflow — 1 and 1 — in the watershed of the Harry's Brook trunk line.

Streets involved are Linden, Hawthorne, Nassau, Snowden, Shadybrook, Dodds Lane, Meadowbrook, Maple, Magnolia, Chestnut and North Harrison.

Kosen Brothers, the contractor, will probably take a month to six weeks to complete the work. The contract is for approximately $169,000.

Next: chemical grouting, at a cost of $300,000.

Governor Franklin Murphy's silver service.

In the second floor galleries, which formerly served as bedrooms for governors and their families, the Society has mounted an exhibit, "In the Name of Liberty: Signatures of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence." This is a rare collection of signatures of all 56 signers.

There is also a computer information station which serves as an interpretive aid for the exhibit. Visitors may also see a specially edited movie version of the Broadway musical, "1776."

A few of Morven's rooms have been reserved for meeting space, and the Society is making the historic site available to non-profit groups for meetings and special events and when possible, private gatherings.

The historic house and its new museum exhibits will be open to the public on Wednesdays from 10 to 4. Group tours, held on Tuesdays and Thursdays (some weekends are available), can be arranged by calling 683-0169. Student group tours of Morven or the Society's galleries in Newark can be made by calling the Society's education department at (201) 483-3939.

Admission to Morven, which includes a guided tour and all exhibits, is $2.50 for adults, $2 for children and senior citizens, and $1.50 per person for groups of 25 or more.

ROUTE ONE PROGRESS

Three Princeton Intersections. Princeton's three intersections with Route One—Harrison, Washington and Alexander—are on the state Department of Transportation list of projects to be "moved forward," the DOT announced last week.

The announcement was part of a progress report made last Thursday by the DOT and its Advisory Committees that are studying the Route One corridor.

At the three Princeton intersections, the DOT plans roadway realignment and grade separation. Although the alignments were not built six attached townhouses described, "grade on the corner of Humbert Street and Greenview Avenue will be discussed by the Planning Board in concept review separation at Route One and at the board's July 21 meeting.

Quakerbridge Road and a third lane between Quakerbridge and Alexander.

At the Motor Vehicle Inspection station, the jug-handle and traffic light would be eliminated. This intersection has been the site of fatal accidents when trucks have crashed into cars stopped for the red light.

These projects are to be "moved forward" so they can be eligible for some of the $250 million that became available when 1-95 was removed from the map. Originally, the DOT allotted $75 million of that money to Route One; however, that amount has now been increased to $95, just to make sure there is enough to take care of Route One. This "over-programming" includes the Princeton improvements.

Within the next months, DOT representatives will confer with each local government and planning board to discuss the ways local roads can interweave with Route One, and how developments will connect with the highway.

For their project, Thomas C. Fasanello and Gerald J. Fasanello will need variances related to coverage, lot size and setbacks. Architects Short and Ford have designed three-story houses with two bedrooms, three baths, living

Princeton Office of Merrill Lynch Presents Investment Options for IRA Rollover

If you are retiring or are considering what to do with the "lump-sum" distribution from the qualified retirement plan which may be coming your way, Merrill Lynch has a plan which may solve your problems. A Merrill Lynch IRA Rollover account offers you a way to defer taxation on the lump-sum distribution and to garner a special estate tax exclusion.

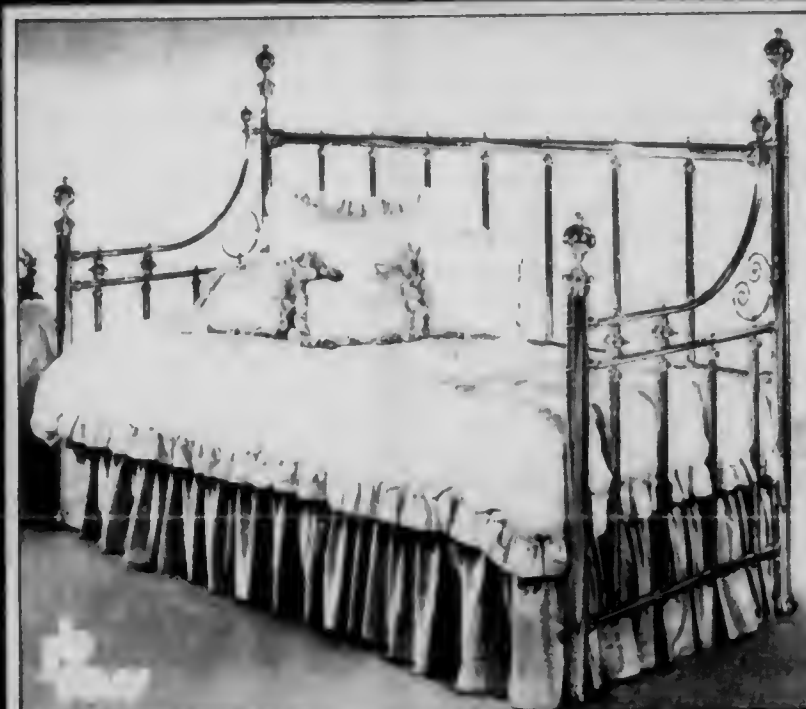

Discussion will include these topics:

- 1) Investment Flexibility
- 2) Distribution Flexibility
- 3) Special Estate Tax Exclusion

ATHLETES AND THE SENATOR: Study hard in college, even if you're there on an athletic scholarship. That was the word last week from Senator Bill Bradley (center) at a Rutgers seminar stressing the importance of academics for college athletes. methamphetamine January 18 to the undercover troopers outside Baker Rink on the Princeton University campus. Anthony J. Pirone, 35, of Hillside Road, was indicted for allegedly giving the same drug to the two undercover troopers on January 6 in the Alchemist and Barrister Restaurant on Witherspoon Street.

For an alleged sale to the two troopers in her home, Lynn M. Bertolino, 27, 282 John Street, was indicted for two counts of possession and distribution of methamphetamine and two counts of possession of the same drug with intent to sell.

The Grand Jury declined to indict Archie O. Servis, 26, who lives with Ms. Bertolino. He had been charged with conspiracy to distribute methamphetamine.

formerly considered by Mercer Christian Academy for a school and campus. The Academy was turned down by the Planning Board.

The cluster development is known as "Heatherstone." Plans show the existing house and pool, and the existing wooded area. A 30-foot buffer would be maintained along both major roads.

NO MORE BASKETBALL?

Fate of Court Discussed. It's noisy around the John Street basketball court, neighbors say, because it's regarded as a good place to hang around. And it turned out, during a meeting in Borough Hall Monday night, that many neighbors of the court would like to see it torn up and something else put there.

Around a dozen people who live on John and neighboring Clay Street, told Borough Council representatives that they didn't want more housing built where the court now is. The area is dense enough, they said.

Workshop space for the nearby Borough Housing Authority, and additional parking for residents of the Authority's Clay Street apartments, were both favored. A community room on the site, however, did not draw much support. It would be just as noisy with parties as the court is now.

Whatever is done, the court area will still have a sidewalk on two sides, and neighbors are largely resigned to the fact that people will hang out there no matter what is done.

Council representatives Barbara Hill, Richard Woodbridge and Joseph Blanc will now confer with the Housing Authority and the rest of Council. Incidentally, although Monday night's meeting was publicized, no youths were present. Neighbors say it's the young people who make the noise.

FOUR ARE INDICTED

On Drug Charges. Three Princeton residents and one from Hopewell were indicted last week on various drug charges by a Mercer County Grand Jury.

Assistant Mercer County Prosecutor William J. Flanagan reported that the charges stemmed from an undercover investigation by two female New Jersey state troopers during January, February and March in bars and restaurants in the Princeton-Hopewell Township area.

Joel B. Arrington, 30, 177 Jefferson Road, was indicted for allegedly selling

Princeton Bank Invites You To Drive In.

We'd like to share our continuing growth with you.

Our new multi-lane drive-in facility will be ready to serve you in the Princeton Shopping Center on July 8. Now our Princeton Shopping Center office offers you three convenient ways to bank: You can meet our friendly staff inside our office, you can bank 24 hours a day with our automated MAC® teller machine, and now you can save time by banking from your car at our new multi-lane drive-in facility.

To help celebrate the opening of the new drive-in, we're holding a daily prize drawing. Each day, for one month, Princeton Bank will give away a car tool kit or a highway emergency light, in a random drawing. Simply fill out a contest entry form, available at the new drive-in. No purchase is necessary, but you must be at least 18 years old to enter.

Drive in today to Princeton Bank's office in the Princeton Shopping Center just off of Harrison Street. See how convenient we've made it for you to bank with us, and be sure to enter our daily, month-long drawing.

Thomas J. Devlin, 22, of North Elm Street, Hopewell, was indicted for selling methamphetamine and look-alike drugs to the same to troopers.

On February 17, he allegedly sold the drug to the officers and on March 3 he allegedly sold another bag, which he told the officers contained methamphetamine. A police lab test revealed that the contents was starch.

TEENAGER IS TARGET Of Attempted Robbery. A 17-year-old Kendall Park youth was the victim of an attempted strong arm robbery while he was walking Sunday night on Franklin Avenue near Witherspoon Street.

Two black teenagers approached him, police said, around 9 p.m. and grabbed the victim by the arms, pulling him into a nearby bush. There he was punched four times in the face and stomach by his assailants who tried to take his wallet.

The suspects ran off towards Witherspoon Street, however, without the victim's wallet. Police said that they may have been frightened off for some reason. The victim went to the nearby Medical Center for treatment of his bruises.

The two suspects both had short Afro hair styles and were wearing lightweight, dark-colored jackets. There were estimated to be 18 to 19 years old. One was described as heavily built, the other as average.

TWO DRIVERS CHARGED With Driving While Intoxicated. Two drivers have been charged by Township police with driving while intoxicated.

Salim Taha, 28, 41 Spring Street, was located stuck in a drainage ditch early Sunday morning off Quaker Road. Mr. Taha told police that a car coming in the opposite direction had forced him to swerve his station wagon off the roadway. His car went through a barbed wire fence on the Updike Farm and traveled 195 feet before coming to rest. His car became stuck when he tried to exit the field.

Ptl. Robert Nielsen found Mr. Taha still in his car at 2:23. Mr. Taha told police he had been run off the road about 12:15 that morning.

He was forced to take a jury but did not require any balance and co-ordination test treatment, was later released, at the scene, after the officer pending his appearance in detected an odor of alcohol Township court.

Public Service Up?

A rate increase amounting to an 11 percent hike for consumers has been requested by Public Service Electric and Gas Co. The request is the same one filed with the New Jersey Board of Public Utilities last winter and dismissed by the board in February. PSE & G says it is faced with declining sales of electric power and gas, increased costs of construction and labor and the refusal of the board to grant previous rate increase requests. Fuel costs are not a factor, PSE & G said.

A company spokesperson said the main reason the utility needs the increase is that the sale of electricity dropped by 2.7 percent this January alone. Gas sales were said to be down by 5.7 percent so far this year. In February 1982 the board granted 72.7 percent of what PSE & G had requested.

perform at the scene and later charged with driving while intoxicated. He was released to his brother, pending his appearance in court.

THEFT REPORT

Diamond Ring Stolen. An antique, gold platinum diamond ring, valued at $4,000 to $8,000 was stolen last week from an office on Witherspoon Street.

The victim, a Princeton resident, told police she had been to a jewelry store and had placed the ring in her wallet in her handbag, which she had left on her office desk. Between 10 and noon Monday, someone removed the wallet from the bag. The victim also lost $15 and credit cards.

The other office thefts took place on Friday in the same building but in separate offices.

A Princeton resident lost $250 when her unattended purse was rifled between 1:30 and 3:45 while the second victim reported $40 taken from an unlocked desk drawer during the same time period. Sgt. Peter Hanley is investigating.

An elderly Princeton resident lost $60 the previous day while shopping at Davidson's Market on Nassau Street. She told police that two women had come up and offered to help her unload her groceries at the checkout counter. She refused their aid but later discovered the money had been removed from her wallet.

Last Wednesday morning while a Princeton resident was sitting on a bench on Nassau Street near the taxi stand, someone stole a brown bag of his which contained personal items. Police report the victim lost a pair of upper dentures valued at $300 and a pair of glasses worth $130.

Battery Stolen. A $70 battery was removed from a van owned by the Princeton YMCA while the van was parked in the Y lot during the weekend, and four hubcaps were stolen from the 1971 sedan of a Princeton resident while it was parked overnight last week in the Park Place lot.

A thief who broke into a car parked Monday in the Princeton Medical Center lot off Franklin Avenue was unsuccessful in his attempt to remove a radio from the car. Police report that he did take a cassette tape valued at $3.30 before departing.

Among two bicycles reported stolen last week by Borough police was a $175 Raleigh Grand Prix from an unlocked garage on Fitz-Randolph. A 10-speed Schwinn model was stolen at mid-week from an unlocked garage on Alexander Street. The bicycle was also not locked.

FOR SOLICITING...

Texas Man Charged. A 21-year old Arlington, Texas resident was charged last week by Township police for soliciting without a permit.

After police received a call late Friday afternoon complaining of a man trying to sell cleaning products in the Lake Drive area, Ptl. John Clausen responded and talked with the suspect, Stacy Maw. Mr. Maw denied that he was soliciting and claimed to be a resident of the area. Ptl. Clausen remained in the area and a short time later a resident came out and told the officer that Maw was the one who had tried to sell to him. Maw was charged and later released in $100 bail.

Solicitor Grabs Wallet. A 16-year-old Newark girl grabbed the wallet of a Maple Street resident Monday as he was about to pay for candy she was selling. According to police, the girl, who was soliciting candy sales for a Newark church group, grabbed the wallet and ran from the house.

On July 4. There will be a talk on the events of the Battle of Princeton and its significance Monday at 10:30 at the flagpole in Battlefield Park on Mercer Road.

The talk will be given by Richard W. Baker, Jr., president of the Princeton Battlefield Area Preservation Society, and the public is invited to attend. Clarke House on the Battlefield will be open and will be having the final day of its Costume Exhibit, created with the assistance of the Historical Society of Princeton.

CONFUSED? ON DRUGS?
Peer Program Will Help. Summer evenings, Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9, high school and college students from the Princeton area are invited to Corner House for Peer Support Group meetings.

In addition, there will be a student drop-in lunch every Friday starting this week, from noon to 2. With Corner House counselors as hosts, the lunches will give students an informal atmosphere in which to talk about common problems.

Bagging Newspapers.

To the Editor of Town Topics: Recently, when we stopped at the recycling station in Princeton Shopping Center to leave some old papers and magazines, we found two men with a truck picking up accumulated newspapers and magazines.

All of the newspapers and magazines, including those we brought, were in paper bags, a method of packaging that has turned out to be most convenient for the public-spirited citizens who support the recycling idea in Princeton. Everyone seems to have an endless supply of paper bags from the supermarkets.

I had hardly set foot on the ground before one of the men hurried over to point out Rule No. 3 (contained in a recently posted set of rules) that requires all papers to be tied in bundles, and that failure to observe this rule (i.e., further use of paper bags) would subject one to ticketing and a fine.

It isn't apparent why paper bags are anathema for this purpose. It is apparent, however, to me and probably to others in the community that tying strings tightly to make a neat bundle is much more difficult than placing the papers in a bag. Furthermore, most of us don't (at least we don't) have a copious supply of strong cord to tie around bundles, and if that method is mandatory, we are required to purchase the cord at the fancy prices charged in today's retail stores.

This latter objection to the bundle idea is perhaps the most important one in our minds, and it has caused us to decide that we will no longer participate in the recycling program, but will put our papers and bottles out for regular trash collection. Thus we can achieve savings in thought, patience, time, and gasoline.

JOHN H. ROE
961 Mercer Road

Editor's note: You may find some of your newspapers in the supermarket bags. Township Engineer Robert Kiser points out that there are two signs posted at the recycling shed. One refers to a Township ordinance against littering at the shed. Violate that, and you will be fined.

The other is simply a list of rules and regulations for the shed. The rules state that newspapers must be "bundled." There is no prohibition against bagging.

Mr. Kiser said that recycling firms pay less for newspapers in heavy paper bags, and presumably this is why the man who has contracted with the Township to handle recycling doesn't want people to put newspapers into bags. The engineer added that Township officials plan to meet soon with the re-cycler to discuss this and various other problems.

Re-routing of 92 (Questioned To the Editor of Town Topics: Below is a copy of a letter I have written to Department of Transportation Commissioner John P. Sheridan Jr.

I don't understand the haste in the sudden realignment of Route 92. I certainly don't think the residents of Princeton should be made to bear the brunt of a decision to shove the road into our area without proper consideration of all the factors.

The "preserved alignment" route, I understand, had been on file for many years, and I would think that procedure would be followed this time. The new route crosses or comes near the Transcontinental Gas Pipeline and requires dynamiting rather than deep drilling through diabase, one of the hardest geological substances, and the removal of the stone. Prof. Erling Dorf, long-time member of the Geology Department at Princeton University, can attest to the problems of working with diabase, and I suggest you speak to him.

As a resident of the northeast portion of Princeton since 1957, I can attest to the problems with regard to dynamite and diabase as it concerns the operations of Kingston, Trap Rock. I have records going back that far, when the firm was operated by Linus Gilbert, and repeated damage was done to my home and others due to the manner of operation.

There were many insurance settlements and an injunction against the quarry which forced it to close for 10 days and to be restructured so that it was properly terraced. New ordinances were also written with regard to the use of dynamite. Under the present owners things have been eminently more peaceable and friendly.

Your proposed route, with its possible cuts of 50 and 60 feet into this diabase, is much MUCH closer to all of Princeton and will require the smallest of blasting charges if you are not to tear apart the whole area. Blasting is not permitted within 50 feet of a gas pipeline. Does the new proposed route come closer than this? Have you any idea what could happen to that pipeline?

In addition, there are many viable wells and septic systems in the area, and blasting will most assuredly interfere with their proper operation and will probably cause destruction and the need to rebuild some of them. Blasting also causes damage to in-ground swimming pools and fuel oil tanks.

I have in the past alerted neighbors to these problems and will be only too happy to organize them on how to keep daily logs as to blasts and take photographs of ensuing damage and whom to call. I should think the residents and officials could band together in a class action suit for major settlements and perhaps delay and stop the whole operation.

I do hope upon reflection and further study you see fit to rethink the manner in which you are proceeding.

Beware Express Mail. To the Editor of Town Topics: Beware of Express Mail to New York! On Thursday, June 2nd, 1983, I had an important document to be delivered to an office in the Explorers Club in New York City. I sent it via Express Mail at 10:30 a.m. from the Alexander Road Post Office of Princeton, N.J.

The following Monday I received a telephone call saying it had never arrived, so I delivered a duplicate by hand on Tuesday morning. A phone call to the Lenox Hill Post Office in New York on Monday afternoon ascertained that the Express Mail piece was still there, and that they had "left a notice" at the address. That notice was never found by the addressee, and despite the phone call, the mail was never delivered. It was returned to me as "unclaimed" on June 14th. There was a notation on the envelope that a notice had been left (it was never found) by the regular mail carrier at 9:25 a.m. on Friday, June 3rd, probably before the Club doorman was on duty. No further attempt was made to deliver. For this I paid $9.35, which amount was finally repaid on June 22nd. In the meantime I had the cost of a special trip to New York plus several phone calls, and the consequences of non-delivery before a vital deadline would have been very great indeed.

I am writing this to alert others about the great limitations of this expensive service. A few years ago first class postage alone would deliver mail to New York City over night.

If your girlfriend just left you, and you're angry and confused, if you're on drugs and frightened, or if you just aren't quite sure who you are, Corner House counselors want you to come around on Wednesday nights and Friday noons.

All students between 14 and 20 years of age are welcome. Sharon Powell, Selden Ilick and Sharon Kershaw lead the program. There is no fee.

Corner House is in the Valley Road Building, northernmost entrance on Witherspoon Street, down one flight of stairs. Detailed information is available by calling 924-8018 between 9 and 4, Mondays through Fridays.

GROUP IS FORMING
For Victims of Sexual Abuse. A women's group is forming for adults molested as children and mothers of victims of child sexual abuse.

The notice of the group is from the Parents Anonymous State Resource Office, CMDNJ-Rutgers Medical School, Piscataway. For information call (800) 352-4720.

AWARDS ARE GIVEN
By Contact. Contact of Mercer County has awarded three of its volunteers for their service.

Ellen Freas was awarded the Humanitarian of the Year Award in recognition of her leadership in developing and expanding the Reassurance Contact program. As a result of her efforts, 76 senior citizens receive daily telephone calls to check on their safety and to offer a few minutes of friendship. Ms. Freas was also recognized for her many hours of dedicated service on the Contact Helpline as well as for her work on the Contact board of directors.

Philip P. Perkins and his daughter, Priscilla Bath, were honored for their service and leadership in the founding of the Contact center on Paxson Avenue, Trenton. Both worked long hours to ensure that the Contact Helpline would be staffed 24 hours a day without interruption. Both have taken leadership positions within the organization over the past seven years.

OPEN HOUSE PLANNED
At Canal House. The Lawrence Historical Society will hold an Open House on Sunday from noon to 4 at the Port Mercer Canal House on Quakerbridge Road. Admission is free.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony will be held at noon. There will be a slide show on the restoration of the house and a tour with caretaker Dorian Buchanan. There will also be an exhibit of canal era photographs.

LIONS LIST AWARDS
Elected Officers. Jeff Mershon has been elected president of the Princeton Lions Club, succeeding Nelson Orlin.

Newly elected vice presidents are Robert Wells, Julius Gross and Walter Obal. Martin Mains will serve as treasurer, and Thomas Johnson was re-elected secretary.

Forty awards were distributed at a recent meeting to members for their activities. Three special awards given by President Nelson Orlin were made to Nathan McKee, Pat Petrosini and Martin Mains. All have worked for the Lions for many years.

Mr. McKee was honored for organizing the Christmas party, the fund raising dinner and Bruce Perone was acknowledged for having organized the Lions participation in the Hospital Fete and for this year's Easter Egg Hunt.

INTERNS SOUGHT
By Watersheds Ass'n. Eleventh and twelfth grade or college age students who enjoy working with people and enjoy exploring the outdoors, are encouraged to apply for internships available at the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association this summer. Applicants for these Princeton Youth Fund sponsored positions must be Princeton residents. The two positions available are for a Summer Program Junior Instructor and a Naturalist Intern. Both will participate in a four day training-preparation session on environmental education, the resource issues, safety and program set-up.

The Junior Instructor will, under the supervision of the professional educator staff, spend the next six weeks helping to conduct the Watersheds' Summer

Environmental Education Day Camp for area youngsters entering grades 1 through 9. Junior Instructor responsibilities will begin July 5 and end August 19.

The Naturalist Interns will, after their training session and under the guidance of the Watersheds' Program Director, develop a trail guide for the newest trail on the Watersheds' 535 acre Reserve, lead family group nature hikes, and implement trail improvement projects. Naturalist Interns responsibilities will begin July 5 and end August 19.

For application information call Program Director Pam Paquette at 737-3735.

SELLERS FILM DUE
At Library. The Public Library will present the free film "The Wrong Box" starring Peter Sellers on Tuesday at 8.

The Victorian comedy concerns two brothers, elderly heirs, one of whom conspires to do away with the other. It is based on Robert Louis Stevenson's story. Everyone is invited.

CALLER SCHEDULED
By Country Dancers. The Princeton Country Dancers will hold a special dance Thursday from 7:30 to 10:30 at 185 Nassau Street.

Ricky Greenwald of Putney, Vt., will be the guest caller, accompanied by his piano and fiddle band. A regular caller in Vermont, he will feature New England square and contra dances.

Individuals may attend with or without a partner, and no experience is necessary.

CRAFT FESTIVAL SET
In Kingston. There will be a Crafts Festival in Kingston on Saturday, July 9, from 10 to 5. Sponsored by the Kingston Business Association, the festival will be on both sides of Main Street where artists of many talents will display their work. There will be potters, toy makers, jewelers, wood workers, quilters and others. Refreshments will be available and there will be entertainment.

BIG FAIR IS PLANNED
By South Brunswick. Middlesex County is celebrating its Tercentennial this year, and South Brunswick, as one of 26 communities in the county taking part in the festivities, has scheduled a major fair on the Fourth of July.

The fair will begin at 1 p.m. at the South Brunswick High School grounds immediately following the traditional July 4 Parade. Opening ceremonies will include a sky diver who will present an American flag that has flown over the U.S. Capitol to the Mayor of South Brunswick and a Tercentennial flag to the board of education.

The fair will feature hay rides, pony rides and games for children; arts and crafts exhibits and sales; rock bands, choral groups and performers during the day; and refreshments booths organized by the fair.

Sirloin for $2, Leg of Lamb for $1.75 All Yours this Thursday at Nassau Inn

The sirloin saute Delmonico for $2 is neither a typographical error nor a sign that the chef has slipped into the sauce.

It is the price of a small sirloin for lunch or dinner this Thursday in the Greenhouse and Tap Room at the Nassau Inn. Uninterested in sirloin Delmonico, you may order a filet of lemon sole saute, Meuniere, for one-twenty, or Vienna Schnitzel for one-twenty-five. In fact, any of seven entrees, whose price includes the complete dinner.

Of course, you won't be alone. "We expect large crowds" is the laconic prediction of the Inn's manager, Max J. Lowe, as he contemplates the 1937 menu.

It's the same menu offered by the Inn to its patrons 46 years ago, with the same prices. At that time, too, the Inn was closing in the summer for renovations.

With your sirloin—or leg of lamb for $1.75 or bluefish for $1.10—you'll get a complete dinner including, if you wish, shrimp cocktail, cold madrilene in jelly, broccoli Hollandaise, and pistachio ice-cream. Coffee, tea or milk—of course.

The closing of the Inn this summer for remodeling is "a burden and inconvenience," Mr. Lowe explained, "and we wanted to do something nice and close on a positive note. The community deserves this, after giving us their loyal patronage."

No reservations. The two dining areas will be open from 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Portions will be standard size. There is no catch.

According to a rumor, staff at the Inn might take this opportunity to stage a job action. The Inn is in negotiations—smooth ones, according to Mr. Lowe—with Local 741 of the Hotel, Motel and Restaurant Workers, and the contract expires at midnight this Thursday, two hours before closing time.

He's heard the rumors, too, but has had no word from workers or union. "I have a contract with the bargaining unit," is all he will say.

PRE-SCHOOL

The Waldorf Way. The Waldorf School Association of the Princeton Area announces the opening of its new nursery-kindergarten on Tuesday, September 6.

The school will be housed in studying reading, history, and the Johnson Park School on mathematics, to experience Rosedale Road and will be the esthetic, human, and open to children between the practical aspects of their ages of 3 and 6. The Waldorf work.

walks, puppetry, and modeling. Information about the July Camp and fall enrollment is available at 924-7428.

Teaching the first class this fall will be Caroline Phinney and Martha Rowse of Princeton. Mrs. Phinney, whose college training was in languages and literature, has teaching experience at all levels, but has been active in working with pre-school children for the past five years. She has taken special training in the Waldorf School pedagogy at Emerson College in England. She is known in this area for her work with puppets.

Miss Rowse, an artist and musician, has taught in pre-school programs in the Washington area for several years, and has recently completed a program of study at Emerson College.

The Waldorf School movement started in 1919 in Germany under the guidance of Rudolf Steiner. It now has over 200 autonomous schools worldwide, and over 60 in North America, many covering the grade range K-12. The academic programs are offered in a school environment rich in artistic and practical endeavors. Students are led in the course of the school work.

Collins

330-foot-long structure be allowed to go five stories high and the rest be held to four stories. When that was defeated, she lowered her request to 35 percent, and that was defeated also. In both, she was joined by Mr. Bearse and Mr. VanPlaninga.

The Planning Board accepted the bridge plan that shows archways over the sidewalks, as well as over the street. At the suggestion of Sydney Taggart, the board also told Collins to use stone-work, in addition to brick, wood and stucco, to conform to Palmer Square West.

Mr. Bearse, concerned throughout the evening about air-rights over the street — rights owned by the Borough — insisted that the terms between Borough and Collins be "a fair exchange in the public interest." He asked that money for the air-rights be used by the Borough to promote lower-income housing, but board counsel Alan Lavine told him this could not be binding.

"Would you take a brown bag in there?" asked Mrs. Taggart, referring to the terrace cafe on the north side of the Inn. It is included in the open space tally, and Collins has said it would be open to the lunching public, but it will also be a cafe for Inn customers, as it is now.

As zoning officer, Mr. Oleksa stated that if the cafe is used solely by the Inn, it no longer accounts as public open space; and must then meet the parking requirements of a cafe. Even if it goes off the open space rolls, Mr. Oleksa said, Collins has 10,000 more square feet in open space than the law requires.

The new cafe will have two levels, the upper one adjoining the north side of the Inn plan, and this Tuesday morning Mayor Cawley suggested, said he would begin that limiting the Inn's use of the process with an appeal to cafe to the upper level, where Borough Council.

customers could be served by Inn staff. On the lower level, there would be tables for anyone with a brown bag.

By a narrow 6-5 vote, this suggestion was adopted, although Mrs. Hutter protested that it was "divisive and exclusionary."

The board also voted to set up subcommittees for the review of plans for landscaping, sidewalks and lighting. Richard Henkel and Mrs. Taggart supported this idea.

"The present 'village green' is dull and unimaginative," Mrs. Taggart said flatly, "but Collins is running scared."

She woke up audience and board with a demand that the tiger be removed from Tiger Park, but this was not part of the final motion.

With only Mr. Bearse dissenting, the board agreed at the start that no one from the public would be allowed to speak who had spoken in one of the three previous hearings. Board chairman Hans K. Sander explained that board members had had no opportunity to discuss the application among themselves and needed time for that discussion.

The board also set time limits to public comments but allowed more time to R. William Potter, Edgerstone Road, who had been cut off at the close of the previous hearing.

Paraphrasing an 11-page statement, Mr. Potter declared that the entire project must be reconsidered because Collins and the board had not taken the recent Mt. Laurel decision into account.

Collins had "failed" to give assurances of financial ability to finish the job; there were no provisions for use of space rolls, Mr. Oleksa said, and inadequate consideration of questions like sewerage and traffic.

He warned of "a long lawsuit if you approve this the north side of the Inn plan," and this Tuesday morning Mayor Cawley suggested, said he would begin that limiting the Inn's use of the process with an appeal to cafe to the upper level, where Borough Council.

Mr. Lavine told him the Mt. Laurel decision, which requires municipalities to open the way for low and moderate-income housing, applies to governing bodies, not to Planning Boards.

Mayor Cawley counted for Mr. Potter 120 existing units of public housing in the Borough, 88 planned for the elderly and a new grant of $85,000 for housing rehabilitation in the John Witherspoon area.

Mr. Lavine also stated that, under the law, the Planning Board was "constrained" to approve the plan since the board had already given its preliminary approval — in December — with conditions which Collins had to meet. Financial assurances on Collins' part "will clearly be a condition," Mr. Lavine said.

In other public comments, Gerald Boswell, 46 Murray Place, characterized the public spaces as "meaningless — kids or what some people call 'undesirables' aren't going to be allowed on that terrace."

Constance Greiff, former Planning Board member, told the public that the Planning Board was the wrong forum for complaints about high densities. "Go to Borough Council," she advised, adding, "Collins did the best job you're going to get — keep that in mind."

BUSINESS

In Princeton

READY FOR PHASE TWO
At Carnegie Center. Ground-breaking for the new Princeton post office headquarters will launch Phase Two of the development of Carnegie Center, the Route One-and-Alexander complex. The post office, a one-story, 32-square-foot building, will be at the corner of the present Roszel Road and a new street to be called Carnegie Drive. It will be reached from Alexander Road.

Plans are now being made for a one-story research building across Roszel Road from the post office. This 45,000-square-foot structure — the first of its kind at Carnegie — will house two to four tenants in a triangle with entrances in the three corners.

Phase Two also includes United Jersey Bank's headquarters building, a four-story building with 136,000 square feet. The building was designed by The Hillier Group, Princeton. Eventually, Phase Two will comprise a dozen office and research buildings. About $2 million in road improvements are planned for this phase.

MORE, BY LINPRO

In Plainsboro, four more office buildings with a total of 44,000 square feet of space will go up in the Office Center at Princeton Meadows, Plainsboro, the Linpro developing firm announced this week.

The one-story buildings will contain suites ranging from 660 to 11,000 square feet which can be custom built to suit tenant needs. Initial occupancy is expected in September.

GULTON TO EXPAND

Acquiring Grinnell, Gulton Industries, Inc. has signed a letter of intent to acquire Grinnell Systems Corporation, a California manufacturer of computer graphics and image-processing systems. Terms have not been disclosed.

Gulton also announced this month that net earnings for the first quarter increased 60 percent to $948,000, or 30 cents per common share, on sales of $37,733,000. This compares with net earnings of $593,000, or 19 cents per common share on sales of $39,424,000 in the comparable period last year.

The firm designs and makes electrical and electronic components, equipment and systems for audio, defense, graphic display and industrial clients.

IN AN EMERGENCY...

Medical Firm Triples Business. Walk-in medical services with no appointments and fast patient turnaround have meant a tripling of monthly volume for the first year of Professional Emergency Services, Route One Alt., Lawrenceville.

"Modern medical practice leaves a real service gap for people with sudden illness or injury, and for employers looking for industrial health services," says Dr. Richard L. Levine, who established Professional Emergency Services in April, 1982.

Irene Cornish

"We treated 367 patients our first month. In April, 1983, we treated 1,002."

About half of the first-year patients were referred to the service by their employers, Dr. Levine says.

One out of every ten patients comes for treatment of an open wound or contusion. Other problems include sprains or strains, sore throats, respiratory problems, earaches, broken bones.

Some have come to the Service with heart attacks or bleeding ulcers, or have been brought by ambulance, suffering from burns or injuries sustained in an accident.

Having served almost 10,000 patients in his first year, Dr. Levine now hopes to open other centers in other parts of New Jersey.

AGENCY WINS AWARD

From Ad Club. Wenzel & Company of Pennington has received five awards for creativity in the annual Jersey Awards competition. The awards were presented by the Ad Club of North Jersey at the 15th Annual Awards Dinner held in West Orange. Representatives of The Art Directors Club of Philadelphia served as judges for the almost 1000 professional entries submitted by New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania advertising agencies.

"The Proof of the Pudding," a brochure prepared for Parker Printing of Trenton, won two first prizes, for special magazine insert and for photography. The magazine advertisement itself won first prize for color in a small space.

The Wenzel agency received both second place awards in the category of large space, color newspaper advertisements, for two of their clients, the Princeton Bank and the Bucks County Bank and Trust Company.

In addition to the two first place Jersey awards, the Parker Printing brochure also received a gold Neographic award from the Graphics Society of the Delaware Valley.

Scott Chace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Chace of Drakes Corner Road, set an all time record for goals scored in one season as a member of the University of Vermont's lacrosse team. He scored 35 goals in leading Vermont to a 10-3 season. He is a sophomore honors student at Vermont.

Several area residents have been named to the Dean's List at the University of Delaware for the spring 1983 semester. They are Kim A. Steckley of 158 Poe Road, who is majoring in psychology; Cynthia L. Woolston, 299 Walnut Lane, majoring in plant science; James F. Hurst, 50 Slayback Drive, Princeton Junction; and Susan L. Goldman, 113 Washington Crossing Road, Pennington, majoring in psychology.

Kathleen Blumenfeld, former Princeton photographer now living and working in Paris, has been in Princeton on assignment from Vogue magazine to photograph Dr. Muriel Gardiner of Pennington. Dr. Gardiner, who has just published a book about her experiences in the Austrian underground in the 1930s, was the subject of a feature story in the June 22 issue of Town Topics.

Mrs. Blumenfeld also interviewed Enoch Durbin, the Princeton University professor who has invented and is marketing a new tennis racket and who has developed various improvements to the internal combustion engine.

In previous issues of Vogue, Mrs. Blumenfeld has had photographic essays on scientific subjects and on Dr. Neta Bahcall, astronomer at the Institute for Advanced Study. The photographer still maintains a home in Princeton and comes here annually.

Robert A. Altman of Cherry Valley Road, vice president for school and higher education programs at Educational Testing Service, has been named chairman of the Mercer County Community College board of trustees. At the same time, Donald J. Loff of Cedar Brook Farm in Hopewell Township and vice president and senior account executive for Merrill Lynch in Princeton, was appointed to the MCCC board.

Dr. Altman has been at ETS since 1972 where he has directed a number of its operations, including the Graduate Record Examinations. He has been a member of the MCCC board since 1980 and has served as head of the finance and personnel committee. He is also past president of the Mercer County Community College Athletic Foundation Inc. and current member of the Mercer County Community College Foundations Inc.

Mr. Loff has been a tax investment specialist at Merrill Lynch since 1977. He serves on the board of the Chamber of Commerce which has awarded him two exceptional service awards. As an avocation he is involved in the breeding, showing and training of registered quarter horses and also has ownership interest in standardbred broodmares and racehorses.

Forty-four scientists have been given RCA Laboratories Outstanding Achievement Awards for contributions to electronics research and engineering during 1982.

Area residents who are recipients of individual awards include John G. Aceti of Princeton, for development of automated inspection systems for VideoDisc caddies, and Dr. Charles W. Magee, also of Princeton, for contributions to the field of secondary ion mass spectrometry.

Area residents who are recipients of RCA team awards include Dr. Roger C. Aliq of Princeton Junction and Dr. Dennis J. Bechis of Lawrenceville, for the development of advanced electron guns for color picture tubes; Lawrence D. Ryan of Princeton Junction, Robert J. Sirausa of Lawrenceville, and David L. Sprague of Plainsboro, for contributions leading to the development of a recommended industry standard for broadcast teletext in North America;

Also, Kenneth W. Hang of Princeton Junction, who was part of a team that implemented cost-effective techniques for the production of silicon epitaxial wafers and fully passivated power transistors and thyristors; Dr. Scott C. Blackstone of Hopewell, part of a team that developed a technology for deposition and control of borophosphosilicate glass films on semiconductor devices;

Also, Dr. Joseph Dresner of Princeton and Dr. James Kane of Lawrenceville, for optimization of material properties leading to high-performance amorphous silicon solar cells; Dr. Ronald E. Enstrom of Skillman, Dr. Arthur Miller of Princeton Junction, and Dr. Rabah Shabbender of Princeton, for the elucidation of measuring techniques useful in strengthening glass vacuum structures such as color television picture tubes;

And John P. Paczkowski of Kingston, part of a team that contributed to the development of gallium indium arsenide field-effect transistors for microwave and logic applications.

Dr. Susan Mandel Glazer, 4 Oaks Place, professor of graduate education and director of Rider College's Reading-Language Arts Clinic for children, has been nominated as a candidate for the board of directors of the International Reading Association (IRA).

Dr. Glazer is the only East coast nominee and the only one from an American college or university. An authority in the reading-language arts field, she is past president of the New Jersey Reading Association and has written numerous articles, pamphlets, book chapters and books on reading. In addition to coordinating Rider's Master of Arts program in reading-language arts, she directs the reading clinic for children of all levels between the ages of 6 and 16.

Robert B. Martin, professor of English, emeritus; Sean Scully, lecturer in the Council of the Humanities and Visual Arts; and John B. Taylor, professor of economics and public affairs. They are among the 292 scholars representing 22 academic institutions in the United States and Canada who will receive the Guggenheim Fellowships during the upcoming year.

An authority on medieval English and European music, Prof. Bent came to Princeton in 1981 from Brandeis University, where she had been chairman of the music department for three years. With the Guggenheim, she plans to work on a book on musical notation of the Middle Ages.

Prof. Kamin made national news in the 1970s when he helped expose the scientific scandal propagated by Sir Cyril Burt, who falsified evidence substantiating his theory that heredity rather than environment is the most important determining factor in human intelligence. His project in the next year will be a critical review of data concerning the possible genetic basis of schizophrenia and other forms of mental disorder.

A specialist in the field of Victorian literature, Prof. Martin has focused on the relationship between the social history and literature of that period. Among his publications are "Companion to Victorian Literature," "The Dust of Combat: A Life of Charles Kingsley," "Enter Rumour: Four Early Victorian Scandals," "The Accents of Persuasion: Charlotte Bronte's Novels" and "The Triumph of Wit: A Study of Victorian Comic Theory."

In September Mr. Scully will launch an exhibit of his abstract paintings in oil at the David McKee Gallery in New York City. He came to Princeton in the spring of 1978 and has held an annual appointment in the Visual Arts Program every semester since then.

Mr. Taylor has concentrated on synthesizing new developments in rational expectations with traditional macroeconomics models, thereby creating models useful for the analysis of monetary and fiscal policy. He joined the Princeton faculty in 1980 and holds a joint appointment with the Woodrow Wilson School and the Department of Economics.

several grounds." The mayor declined to elaborate while the action was still in the planning process. Princeton Township has 45 days from the publication of the Montgomery Planning Board approval following its June 13 meeting to file the suit—and the same is true for the Herrontown residents.

Louis Little is one of the residents who is most concerned with the sudden re-routing of 92, because it would wipe out his house at the end of Herrontown Road. Mr. Little has invested heavily in special equipment to make his home serve also as an office for his work with Commodities Corp. He says he has letters from DOT assuring him of the validity of the "preserved alignment."

He calculates that DOT would have to make a 30-foot cut through diabase for a distance of a mile in the side of the steep slope on which his house is perched, making a gash in the hill visible for miles. He can feel Trap Rock blasting from across the Millstone at his house whenever it occurs; how will the blasting affect his neighbors close by, or for that matter, Calton Homes, preserved by the new alignment?

He wonders who will buy a home in Montgomery Woods, as the Calton Homes development is titled, located as it is next to a highway, close by a sewage treatment plant and across a canal from Trap Rock? He speculates that Calton Homes and the other planned developments in that corner of Montgomery Township may be Montgomery's attempt to meet M.L. Laurel requirements and that there might be 1,000 units in all.

Carefully not pointing a finger, Mr. Little also questions whether there may have been a conflict of interest on

Mr. Sheridan's part which might have prevented him from signing the letter of agreement with Calton Homes that paved the way for approval by the Montgomery Planning Board.

Mr. Sheridan is a resident of Montgomery and a former law partner of John McCarthy Jr., who owns 43 acres on the Montgomery side of the line. With the realignment toward Princeton, Mr. McCarthy stands to gain 300 to 400 feet of added developable land, Mr. Little says.

"There are many acres available; why do they have to build it on the ridge?" Mr. Little asks. "It is lunacy on the surface of it. If we could just forget the boundary (between Montgomery and Princeton), it is obvious where the road should go."

Members of The First Baptist Church Honor Their Minister Upon His Retirement from 20 Years of Pastoral Leadership

Members of First Baptist Church held a banquet dinner last Saturday in honor of the Rev. Edward Smith, their pastor for 20 years.

It was a festive occasion, enlivened by flowers and fervent gospel solos, by tributes and testimonials, by the presentation of congratulatory cards by members of a grateful congregation. In attendance were fellow Baptist pastors from churches from New Brunswick to Philadelphia. The Rev. S. Howard Woodson Sr. of Shiloh Baptist Church, Trenton, was at one end of the dais of notables, the Rev. William Barrett, vice president of the New Jersey Progressive Baptist Convention, was at the other.

A friendly, somewhat stocky man, possessed of deep faith and a good sense of humor, he told his people Saturday that "this coming here to honor me humbles me greatly—and I am not one easily put into that position." He spoke of the future in this country and said, "There are decisions that must be made, and will be made, and we must hope they are made by God."

BULLETIN NOTES

The Rev. Marvin A. McMickle, minister of St. Paul's Baptist Church, Montclair, will preach Sunday at 10 in the chancel of the Princeton University Chapel. Dr. McMickle is an alumnus of Aurora College, Illinois; Union Theological Seminary, New York; and the Graduate School of Princeton Theological Seminary. His sermon topic will be "Between Courage and Caution."

"People have been good to us," the Rev. Mr. Smith says, citing the time that Western Electric gave him quantities of furniture left over from a refurbishing which he lined up in the basement and sold out within two days. The most recent project has been a $10,500 van to transport senior citizens and members of the church "who can't afford to live on Leigh Avenue any more." Purchasing the van involved a three year loan, once again paid for in one year."

The Rev. Mr. Smith is known to his congregation particularly for his qualities as a pastor. As Dorothy Alexander, organizer of Saturday's banquet, wrote in the program given to those who attended, "He has cradled and baptized our children, buried our dead, comforted the bereaved and visited our sick."

In taking on black Princeton Seminary students as assistants over the years, he has given them the opportunity to learn something of what is expected in the parish ministry. First Baptist Church did not belong to a convention 20 years ago, but he has aligned it with the National Progressive Convention of the American Baptist Church. Meetings of the New Jersey Progressive Baptist Convention were held at First Baptist, and he himself served for a time as president of the convention.

Civil Activities. He is proud of his 17 year membership in Princeton Rotary Club and of serving on the board of the YMCA. Ruefully he notes that although he has taken in well over 200 people through baptism or by profession of Christian faith, the membership hovers at 450. "We're losing rather than gaining," he says. There was a time when if he saw a white person going by he wondered where he or she was going in that predominantly black neighborhood. Now he knows; it is to home, but the young and the elderly black can't afford to live there any more. He says this has been the biggest change of his 24 year ministry in Princeton.

OBITUARIES

Moyné Rice Smith, a pioneer in children's theatre in Princeton and a teacher of English and dramatics at Miss Fine's School and Princeton Day School, died June 23 of cancer at her home in Hopewell. She was 76.

Much of Mrs. Smith's life was devoted to theatre and to helping children make plays. She acted in professional theatre in New York in the 1930s, and she acted in and directed many plays with the Princeton Community Players as well as The University Players and Theatre Intimate at Princeton University.

In 1946 she founded the Princeton Junior Community Players, the junior counterpart to Princeton Community Players, and was its director until 1959. Located first at Avalon and then at The Playmill, this was a theatre of workshops which she designed to give grade-school children of different neighborhoods and different schools, meeting together in appropriate age-groups, an experience in playmaking and playacting. The child's interest was the only membership qualification.

Nearly 100 children a year participated in putting on more than 200 simple productions before their parents and friends. They also presented six full length productions at McCarter Theatre, sometimes with Princeton Ballet Society, as a community service for the P.T.A. Children's Entertainment Series. Mrs. Smith also directed plays at Miss Fine's and at Miss Mason's schools and with groups at her home.

Her other career was as a teacher. She taught English, dramatics and speech at Oskaloosa High School, in Oskaloosa, Kansas, where she was born and raised. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Kansas, majoring in English and dramatics, she earned an M.A. in dramatic arts at Western Reserve University in 1932. She taught at The College of Emporia, Kansas, before coming to New York City to act in professional and amateur theatre.

Mrs. Smith joined the faculty at Miss Fine's School in 1959 and taught ninth and 11th grade English and Theatre Workshop there and at Princeton Day School for 14 years until her retirement in 1973. Writing in the Princeton Day School Journal in 1969, she described her elective Theatre Workshop as "No try-outs, no qualifications, no productions, no scenery, no props, no audience, no homework, no textbooks, no exams, no marks, no inhibitions."

It was her conviction that "If this kind of creativity were a part of each child's curriculum...a child might not have to go through the shyness, withdrawal, lack of spontaneity, frozen-voice-and-body of the middle years of growing up." Mrs. Smith was the author of "Plays and How to Put Them On," published in 1961 by Henry C. Walck, and "Seven Plays and How to Produce Them," 1968. Both books grew out of her experience with Junior Community Players.

She was married to Blackwell Smith in 1938 and they lived in Redding, Conn., and Washington, D.C., before settling permanently in Princeton in 1944. The Smiths lived for many years in the historic Clarke house off Mercer Street, which was subsequently bought by the State to be included in the Princeton Battlefield Park. After Mrs. Smith's retirement from teaching, they travelled extensively, exploring 10 Caribbean islands, Mount Desert Island in Maine and Cape Breton in Nova Scotia.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Deborah Cumming of Greenwood, S.C. and Jean McAllister of Mountainview, Calif.; a son, Kingston Smith of Palos Verdes Estates, Calif.; a brother, Richard Rice of Garden City, Kan., and seven grandchildren.

There will be no memorial service. Contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Pauline M. Hoagland Taylor, 64, of West Delaware Avenue, Pennington, died June 25 in Princeton Medical Center.

Born in Hopewell, Mrs. Taylor had lived in the Hopewell-Pennington area all of her life and was a self-employed beautician for 30 years. She was a member of the Bethel A.M.E. Church and a member of the Stewardess Board of the church.

Surviving are her husband, Lawrence Taylor; a daughter, Sheri Ann Taylor, and a son, Robert L. Taylor, both at home; a sister, Florence E. Adams of Ewing Township; and a grandchild.

The service will be held this Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Bethel A.M.E. Church, 246 South Main Street, Pennington. The Rev. Richard R. Blackstone, pastor, officiating. Burial will be Thursday at 10 a.m. in Fountain Lawn Memorial Park. Friends may call on Wednesday from 6 until time of the service at the church.

Contributions may be made to the building fund of the Bethel A.M.E. Church.

Theresa Nini, 77, of Princeton, died June 23 at the Merwick Unit of Princeton Medical Center. She was a lifelong Princeton resident.

Wife of the late Anthony Nini, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Beatrice D. Cicco of Kalamazoo, Mich., and Mrs. Jeanne F. Coker of Morrisville, three sisters, Mrs. Molly Parker and Mrs. Elvira Guadagno, both of Princeton, and Mrs. Katherine Menella of Somerville; three brothers, Michael Cuomo of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Frank Cuomo and John Cuomo, both of Princeton; and two grandsons.

A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church with burial in St. Paul's Cemetery.

Christopher S. Carter, 23, of Lawrenceville, died June 25 in Ewing Township.

Born in Suffern, N.Y., he had lived in Lawrenceville most of his life and graduated from Lawrence High School in 1978. He attended Jacksonville University, Jacksonville, Fla., where he was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. He was employed as an assistant in the analytical lab of American Cyanamid Company and was a member of the American Cyanamid softball team.

He is survived by his parents, Spencer D. and Sandra Wren Carter, and a sister, Lisa Carter.

The service was scheduled to be held on Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the Lawrence Road Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Norman S. Kindt, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Ewing Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to the Chris Carter Sports Award, Lawrence High School, or the Lawrence Road Presbyterian Church. Contributions should be sent c/o Judy Cave, 14 Lawnside Drive, Lawrenceville.

Madge Cota Kettenburg, 83, of Walnut Street, Hopewell, died June 25 in Hunterdon Medical Center. She was born in Potsdam, N.Y., and had lived in Hopewell for the past 43 years.

Survivors include her husband, Edward J. Kettenburg Sr.; four sons, Owen of San Jose, Calif., Edward of Fishlake, Mont., and Walter and David Kettenburg, both of Hopewell; three daughters, Gloria Bilger of Langhorne, Pa., Marge Ely in Europe and Amelia Gibbons of Ewing Township; a sister, Barbara Horton of Detroit; 28 grandchildren and 29 great-grandchildren.

The service was private. The family requests that donations be made to the Memorial Fund of the First United Presbyterian Church of Hopewell.

Norman L. Strong Sr., 71, of Pennington, died June 20 in Mercer Medical Center.

Born in Trenton, Mr. Strong was a lifelong Pennington area resident and a graduate of Rider College. He was a retired treasurer of Barber Brothers Steel Co. of Pennington with more than 30 years service. Active in establishing the Little League in Hopewell Township, he was a member and former elder of the First Presbyterian Church of Pennington and a member of Cyrus Lodge No. 148 F&AM of Pennington.

Surviving are his wife,

Claire Vansant Strong; a son, Norman L. Strong of Rhode Island; a daughter, Mrs. Nancy S. Totten of Alexandria, Va.; and six grandchildren.

A memorial service was held in the First Presbyterian Church of Hopewell, the Rev. Robert A. Beringer, pastor, and the Rev. Walter Coats, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pennington, officiating. Burial was in Highland Cemetery. Contributions may be made to the Hospice Program, c/o Mercer Medical Center, 446 Bellevue Avenue, Trenton.

Florence K. Eanes, 41, of Featherbed Lane, Hopewell, died June 20 in Mercer Medical Center.

Mrs. Eanes was born in Trenton and had lived in Hopewell for the past 15 years. She was formerly employed at Educational Testing Service and was a member of the Hopewell Colombettes, Council No. 1703.

Surviving are her husband, Thomas R. Eanes Sr.; two daughters, F. Katherine Eanes, at home, and Judith Ann Larson of Abilene, Texas; a son, Thomas R. Eanes Jr., at home; her step-mother, Elizabeth Welke of Ewing; and two sisters, Elizabeth Paraxismos and JoAnn Dringus, both of Hamilton.

Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated in St. Alphonsus Church with burial in Highland Cemetery. Contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society, 35 Lakewood Drive, Lawrenceville, 08648.

Kenneth Utter, 60, of Route 31, Pennington, died suddenly June 21 at his home.

Born in Hathboro, Pa., he had lived in Pennington for the past five years. A veteran of World War II, Mr. Utter was employed as a bartender at Patricia's Hishola in Hopewell.

Surviving are his wife, Florence Haydock Utter; two sons, Ronald D. Utter of Ewing and Kenneth G. Utter of Somerville; a daughter, Lydia K. Slayback of Utica, N.Y., and four grandchildren.

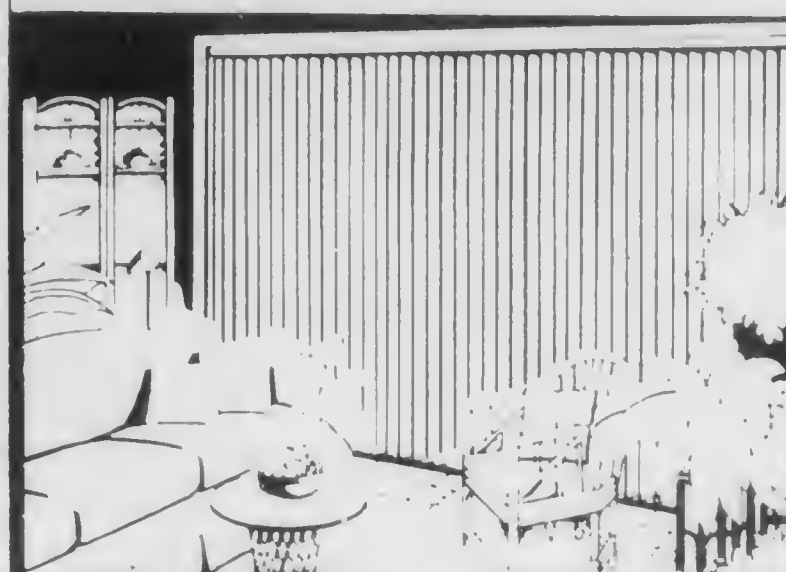

The service was held at a Hopewell memorial home, the Rev. Burton Parry, associate pastor of First United Presbyterian Church of Hopewell, officiating. Burial was private.

New Jersey is driving to STS

More and more New Jerseyans are driving to STS for all their car care needs. We're delighted but not surprised. We're an employee-owned company — so our managers and mechanics have a special stake in doing the job right. And as we've believed all along: If you give better service, charge fair prices and do great work, you're going to win over New Jersey.

Drive to STS for tune-ups and tires, batteries and brakes, wheel alignment, front-end work, shocks — whatever it takes to keep your car running smoothly.

Bainbridge House Exhibit Remembers the Summer of 1783 When Princeton Became the Capital of the Nation for 4 Months

In 1783 Princeton was a hamlet of 300 inhabitants, a stage coach stop midway between New York and Philadelphia with one church and three taverns.

Its 75 dwellings, mostly of brick, were confined to the north side of Nassau Street, along with a line of catalpa trees admired for their beauty as much as the air of the town was admired for its "salubrious" quality. Nassau Hall, the single building of the College of New Jersey, had suffered the ravages of the Revolutionary War, and the student body numbered only 40. The town itself had witnessed waves of troops, Continentals fleeing British, British fleeing Continentals, and even the French has passed through enroute to Yorktown.

It was into this setting 200 years ago this week that the Continental Congress fled for an interregnum that made Princeton the nation's capital for four months. As part of its year-long celebration of that occasion, the Historical Society has mounted an impressive exhibit at Bainbridge House entitled, "Obscure Village to Nation's Capital: Continental Congress at Princeton, June-October 1783."

The exhibit is highlighted by 11 pen and ink drawings by Gillette Griffin which capture the reactions of the town to the extraordinary events taking place in its midst. With verve and dash they depict the cramped accommodations and enhanced social life of the delegates, the shops and taverns that took full advantage of the high class patronage, and the hero's welcome given to George Washington, who arrived in late August to receive the gratitude of Congress and give advice on the establishment of a peacetime army.

Strives for Balance. According to Nancy Clark, director of the Historical Society, the exhibit is an attempt to balance the "famous man" approach to history with an emphasis on local events, to illuminate the large picture with vignettes of the small. Thus there is displayed silver made by a Princeton silversmith, Daniel Van Voorhees, along with a tankard made for John Witherspoon-president then of the College of New Jersey-and his own tumbler and decanter.

Famous men are there too. Portraits of Boudinot, Hamilton and Jefferson and other delegates to the Continental Congress are arrayed along with portraits of Princeton folk who took leading roles during the stay. That Congress came to Princeton when it was besieged by rebellious troops in

Obscure Village to Nation's Capital: The Continental Congress in Princeton, June- November 1783.

Philadelphia, rather than to say, Trenton, was largely due to the influence of Elias Boudinot, President of Congress at a time before the nation elected a president.

Princeton Connections. Boudinot was a native of Princeton where his father had been silversmith and postmaster. He was a graduate and trustee of the College and had married the sister of Richard Stockton of Morven, who in turn had married Boudinot's sister, Annis. But it was Col. George Morgan of Prospect who sent a letter on June 25, 1783, eagerly offering his farmhouse, farm buildings and meadows to Congress for its stay in Princeton.

"We esteem ourselves highly honor'd by the Confidence of Congress in the Choice of this Town as the Place of their Residence."

Princeton petition of June, 1783

On June 26, the first official day of Congress in Princeton, the citizens sent their own letter, deploring the "gross indignities" suffered at Philadelphia and with "utmost cheerfulness" pledging "their Lives and Fortunes to the Government under which we Live for the Protection of Congress in whatever way our Services may be required, whether in resisting Foreign Invasions or in quelling intestine Tumults."

A copy of this document, signed by "the Inhabitants of Princeton and its

Lack of Quorum. The lack of a quorum plagued Congress that hot summer as it plagues the Planning Board now. Scheduled to meet June 28, the first session did not take place until June 30. The first meetings were held in Prospect, later ones in the library or prayer hall on the second floor of Nassau Hall. Members drifted in and out of Princeton all summer, sometimes returning to Philadelphia.

James Madison wrote testily to Thomas Jefferson on August 30: "We are exceedingly crowded in this place; too much so both for our own comfort & for the dispatch of business. Mr. Jones & myself are in one room scarcely ten feet square & in one bed." But John Montgomery wrote Benjamin Rush that "Congress has been well Received at this Place and Every Exertion made by the good People for their comfortable accommodation."

Members found diversion in the social life of the transformed town. The three taverns, Hudibras Inn, site of an Historical Society dig when Firestone Library was enlarged several years ago, Jacob Bergen's and the Sign of the College, later the Nassau Inn, were places of commerce and conviviality, while Morven was the scene of banquets and balls.

"Sign of the Hudibras: Host to Congress" is the focus of the hands-on exhibit in the Children's Museum at Bainbridge House, which has been visited by platoons of school children since it opened last fall, and which is still on view.

NewStage at Intime Presents a Well-Cast and Directed Version of William Inge's 'Bus Stop'

WAITING AT THE "BUS STOP": Mary Martello (left) as the owner of a roadside restaurant in Kansas, gives big-sisterly advice to Elma the waitress, played by Shannon Daley. Both are in NewStage's production of William Inge's "Bus Stop", on Murray Theatre's stage for four performances this Thursday through Sunday.

A good way to cool off on hot nights is to see the play "Bus Stop," by William Inge, in Murray Theatre. Not only is the theatre comfortably air-conditioned, but you can almost identify with the group of chilled bus travelers stranded in a Kansas roadside restaurant while the highway to Topeka is being cleared of snowdrifts.

News Of The THEATRES

With "Bus Stop," NewStage at Intime opens its second summer season. The group may no longer be "new," but they are as good as ever. To those who saw their work last summer that should be good news.

"Bus Stop" follows the "Grand Hotel" formula of throwing diverse characters into forced companionship for a limited time — in this case, about five hours of a snowy March night. Thus we watch diverse stories unfolding simultaneously.

One story is the dilemma of Cherie, a pretty night-club singer, who has been forced into the bus against her will by the young cowboy Bo Decker. Bo heard her sing in Kansas City and made up his mind to marry her. It takes all the moderating influence of his traveling companion, the older ranch hand Virgil, to keep Bo's violent passions in check.

Then there is the oddball college professor, Dr. Lyman, who likes to adorn his speech with Shakespearean quotations, and who methodically engages the interest of the young waitress Elma with the practiced moves of an experienced lecher.

Driver Takes 'Walk.' A third story line concerns the owner of the restaurant, Grace Hoyland, and Carl, the bus driver. As the vehicle will be snowbound for several hours at least, he announces that he will go out for a walk, at about the same time that Grace, complaining of a sudden headache, retires to her room over the restaurant.

Completing the group is Will Masters, the personable sheriff, who is an interested observer of all the above. He gets actively drawn into only the Cherie-Bo wrangle, but he keeps a benign eye on everybody else too.

Like a good novel, "Bus Stop" can be enjoyed for its characters as well as its plot. Two of them are real innocents, though as different as can be — Elma and Bo. Elma believes in the goodness of people, and she is sure that love, once kindled, will last forever. Bo, after his cold, traumatic night, admits that he knows nothing about how to handle women. His little-boy apologies for his behavior are charmingly simple. The two truly independent souls — Will the sheriff and Virgil the ranch hand — are nicely drawn. Each is clearly sufficient to himself.

I doubt if Mr. Inge intended symbolism, and if he did he wisely played it down. The snowstorm brought these eight people together, and as it ends, most of the characters emerge from their own troubled night. Bo and Cherie find a promising dawn. Dr. Lyman escapes the nemesis which he seemed to be preparing for himself. Bus-driving is a lonely profession, and Carl has had a break. Grace has had what she says she needed. As for Elma, she knows more about life than she did earlier in the evening. She may even understand Juliet a little bit better.

Well-Directed. Sherry Long deserves several stars as director of "Bus Stop." She cast the play admirably, with the right people in all the right parts. And she has been brilliantly successful in keeping the different plot threads going at once. Wherever the attention may be focused at any moment, everyone else on the stage still lives his or her life — never obtrusively, but always actively and in character.

This is a good cast, and to none of them can I give a grade lower than A minus. My single A plus belongs to Mary Martello. Her role of Grace has no fireworks to set it off, yet Miss Martello convinced me that I knew what Grace is thinking whenever I looked at her — fine acting that doesn't look like acting.

The crucial role of Elma is a little easier to portray as her thoughts are all transparently near the surface. With naive honesty and youthful enthusiasm Shannon Daley does it beautifully.

Her beauty and vivacity make Lynn Dorsey a natural for the part of Cherie. She is at her best when interacting with another characters, as when fighting with or being reconciled to Bo. She is less successful in the monologue describing how she met Bo. Opposition helps her flint to strike fire.

Charles Brown, as he himself describes Bo, is "just a jerk" in Act One. Act Two finds him troubled and bewildered, and his eventual transformation in Act three is happily convincing. Laurence Capo does well with the flamboyant posturing of Dr. Lyman. Although I found his change of tactics a little hard to understand, the opening-night audience gave him a well-deserved hand on his final exit.

Virgil, who seems just a foil for Bo Decker through much of the play, becomes an individual to be remembered as played by Mark Donnelly. Steve Horner as the sheriff and Ray Pentel as Carl are both fine.

The restaurant interior designed by Brendan Moran typifies the high quality of the whole production. It is spacious and realistic, even to the authentic detail of a smoke smudge on the wall where the stovepipe apparently doesn't quite fit. Vicki David and Marie DeSantis's costumes and Brita Meng's lighting are quite excellent.

Welcome back, NewStage at Intime! "Bus Stop" will play four performances this week, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. The box office number is 452-8181.

—Herbert McAneny

HELP ME, BOGIE! Not even the ghost of Humphrey Bogart can help the Woody Allen character who always misses out with women. You remember — it's "Play It Again, Sam." The Woody Allen comedy of '69-70, now a summer theatre offering at The Franklin Villagers Barn Theatre in Franklin Township. It will play weekends starting Friday, July 8, and continuing through August 14. Dennis Freeland plays the Woody Allen movie critic hero and Phil Hochman is the ghost of Bogie himself. Donna Poler and Cliff Platt play the hero's best friends, and the beauties who drift across his vision — actual, or in his imagination — are Diane Jade Flecker, Sommer Hixson, Karen Hochman, Nancy DeMartino, Tricia Curran, Mary-Clare McCarthy and Chris Kramer. Sharon Schapow is the director and Jos Cohen has built the set. Information details are available from 201-873-2710.
BRASSY, RAUNCHY "Chicago," "Brassy, sassy and raunchy" is the way the New York Times described the musical "Chicago," and audiences can decide for themselves when it plays Rider College July 28-30 at 8 p.m. Derry Light, in a role somewhat different from that of Queen Guinevere, which she played at McCarter last season in "Camelot," will be Roxie Hart, a murdering chorus girl of the 1920s. Roxie and another murderer named Velma, are headline-hunters seeking to capitalize on pre-trial publicity, hoping for acquittal and enhanced stage careers. The story is told through a succession of vaudeville acts, carrying Roxie's career through the trial, her acquittal and her return to obscurity. The cast also includes Jack Gwinn and Scott Ward.

both films in Summer Cinema's third week of summer double-features, playing this Wednesday through next Monday, the Fourth of July.
"Chariots of Fire" is the one about the two British track stars who won in the 1924 Olympic Games. The film itself was a winner, taking the "Best Picture" award in 1981. Its companion in Summer Cinema will be the Australian "Gallipoli," about the 1915 slaughter in Turkey. The films will be screened in Kresge Auditorium in the Frick Chemical Building, Washington Road. "Chariots" will be shown each evening at 7:30 and "Gallipoli" at 9:45.
"Chariots" has Ben Vross as Abrahams, a Cambridge law student who runs because, for him, it helps to defeat the bigotry he feels as an English Jew. Ian Charleson plays Liddell, a Scottish minister who runs for the glory of God. "Gallipoli" is described as a celebration of Australian innocence and courage in World War I. It has two young farm boys who meet — at a provincial track meet, oddly enough — enlist, and travel 7,000 miles to uphold the honor of their country.

COMPOSERS STRING QUARTET is next in the Princeton Summer Outdoor Chamber Series at the Graduate College. The members are scheduled to play works by Beethoven, Hindemith and Debussy Wednesday, July 6, at 8:30.

MUSIC In Princeton

QUARTET TO PLAY

In Outdoor Series. The Composers String Quartet, one of the outstanding ensemble interpreters of both contemporary and classical chamber music, will give the second Outdoor Chamber Concert of the summer on Wednesday, July 6, at 8:30 in the main courtyard of the Graduate College, Princeton University.

The program includes Beethoven's Quartet No. 1 in F Major, Op. 18, No. 1, Hindemith's Minimax and Debussy's Quartet in G Minor, Op. 10. The Composers String Quartet has been Quartet-in-Residence at Columbia University since 1975. Its members are Matthew Rainaldi and Anahid Ajemian, violins, Jean Dane, viola and Mark Sherman, cello.

The concert is offered free and contributions are appreciated. No chairs are provided, thus blankets are useful. If the weather is questionable, call 924-2353 on day of the concert for information about location.

The next concert in the series will be The New York Camerata on July 12.

'SUMMER SOUNDS'

...The Return of. Jazz, rock, country and new — "Summer Sounds" is back, with another series of free weekly outdoor concerts on Thursday evenings at 7:30 in the amphitheatre of Community Park North.

If it rains on Thursdays, the concerts will be given that Friday; however, if it rains on July 7 or 14, the rain-date will be that Sunday.

Under the sponsorship of the Arts Council of Princeton and the Princeton Recreation Department, director Adam Spiegel has lined up the following:

The Groceries, July 7 is the kick-off concert. It will be the fifth Summer Sounds concert for The Groceries' mix of rock, ska and reggie rhythms. The Laurie Altman Quintet. On July 14, the Quintet will play original jazz. The group's first album, "For Now at Least," was listed by Billboard Magazine as one of the ten best new jazz albums.

Castle Browne Band. On July 21, this 10-year veteran of performance in the Princeton area will appear with its rock and roll.

Wood 'n' Strings brings, on July 28, an evening of country rock and bluegrass with an assortment of instruments in the cluding acoustic guitars, banjos, fiddles and mandolins.

Regressive Aid on August 4, plays polyrhythmic percussion music on bass, electric guitar and drums.

Crystal Silence, another Summer Sounds veteran, will close the series August 18. Straight-ahead jazz, funk, jazz-rock and fusion are the specialties here.

CONCERT, FIREWORKS

In Clinton. "A Blaze with Music," a concert with fireworks, will preview America's traditional birthday celebration at the Clinton Historical Museum Village on Saturday evening at 8 p.m.

Pentagon, a brass quintet, will be the featured musical group, with Edward Carroll and Steve Falker, trumpets, Joe Anderson, horn, Tom Mueller, trombone, and Warren Deck, tuba. The first half of the program will be devoted to works by Farnaby, Calvert, Persichetti, Scheidt and Bach. After intermission, there will be fireworks and music by Mouret, Scott Joplin, and the theme music from "Star Wars" by John Williams.

Pentagon was established in 1977, and includes principal members of the New York Philharmonic and Metropolitan Opera Orchestras, joined by leading brass chamber music specialists. They have performed in Rome, Florence, and Assisi, Italy, in addition to the U.S.

This year marks the fifth presentation of the annual fireworks concert sponsored jointly by Soclair Music Festival and the Clinton Historical Museum Village.

Tickets are priced at $6 each, seniors $5, and children under 12, $3. Folding chairs or blankets should be brought, and picnicking is permitted. Refreshments will also be available. In case of rain, the concert will be performed indoors at the Museum's Education Center opposite the Red Mill, and the fireworks postponed until the following Saturday night's concert on July 9.

For more information, call the Museum at 735-4101.

EVENTS LISTED

At Choir College. The Westminster Choir College summer Session has music events almost every evening through July. This week music lovers can enjoy free concerts and recitals and can participate in evenings of singing at the Westminster campus.

The final Summer Session faculty recitals for June are scheduled for this Wednesday, when Lois Lavery, Judith Nicolson, Thomas Faraco and Greg Fungfeld will give a voice recital at 7 in the Bristol Chapel. The performance will be followed by a violin recital by Mark Zaki, with accompanist David Davis, beginning at 8:30.

A choral group from Menlo Park, California, The Marantha Singers and Ringers, will appear in concert on Thursday evening at 8 in the Bristol Chapel. The concert is part of the choir's tour of the Eastern United States. Selected from the regular 120-voice youth choir of the Menlo Park Presbyterian Church, the 60-voice ensemble includes an 11-member handbell choir. Their conductor, Bill Mathis, is minister of music at their church and is currently music chairman of the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers.

The Choir College will celebrate the 4th of July with its Monday evening "Hymn Sing," this week conducted by Helen Kemp, a leading authority on children's choirs. The community is welcome to join Summer Session students for an evening of hymn singing beginning at 8:30.

The major choral work for the "Summer Sing" on Tuesday, July 5, will be Mozart's Requiem conducted by John Kemp. Singing begins at 8 and scores will be available at the door to any singers who would like to participate.

Music lovers who want to expand their knowledge of music for personal enjoyment or as a supplement to professional pursuits can still register for music workshops at Westminster. Courses in music education, church music, choral music, voice, piano, organ, and several special programs are offered weekly, through July. For more information about evening events and workshops, call the Summer Session office, 924-7416.

Princeton Area Residents Awarded Degrees and Diplomas

Area residents continue to be awarded diplomas at commencement exercises at colleges and universities across the country.

A large number of area residents have received A.B. and B.S. degrees from Princeton University.

From Princeton they are, David C. Blaxill, 270 Lambert Drive; Nicolas R. Donath, 40 Balcourt Drive; Hobart S. Earle, 540 Nassau Street; Peter J. Ellis, 436 Ewing Street; Thomas A.D. Eltinghausen, 24 Armour Road; Simina M. Farcasu, 73 Gulick Road; Lisa O. Fernandez, 74 Marion Road East;

Also, Henry F. Fischer, 369 Mercer Road; John B. Hennehan, 788 Shady Brook Lane; Theodore G. Hopf, 12 Murray Place; Lynn King, c/o Kayes, 93 Mercer Street; Brian M. Lee, 1028 Mercer Road; Elizabeth A. Mayer, 702 Old Georgetown Road; Christopher E. Morton, 766 Princeton-Kingston Road; Phoebe A. Myhill, 258 Moore Street; Christopher W. Price, 8 Wheat Sheaf Lane;

Also, Roxan F. Saidi, c/o Dr. P. Saidi, 141 Hunt Drive; Eric M. Slighton, 80 Cleveland Lane; Jeremy C. Stein, 132 Dods Lane; Mrs. Olivia Farar Wellman, 217A Halsey Street; Thomas C. Wexler, 100 Clover Lane; Patricia Ream Wright, 1106 West Drive; Mark R. Yim, 380 Franklin Avenue; and Heidi E. Zaininger, 9 East Shore Drive.

Other area residents who graduated from Princeton this spring are Dennis D. Clark, 50 Dublin Road, Pennington; Elizabeth B. Marshall, Seven Holly Lane, Lawrenceville; and Loring B. McAlpin, Opposum Road, Skillman.

Two Princeton graduates submitted additional information about themselves:

DIPLOMATE: Mark D. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Johnson of Princeton, listens as Dr. David L. Holmes, director of Eden Institute, reads the salutation on the diploma presented to Mark on his graduation from Eden's Vocational Education Program. Mark has been a student at the institute for autistic children and has been working part time at the WAWA Food Market and as a volunteer at Princeton Medical Center. Next year he will move on to the Raritan Valley Workshop.

Thomas C. Wexler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford E. Wexler of 100 Clover Lane, graduated with highest honors. An East Asian Studies major, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and was awarded the East Asian Studies Department thesis prize.

In July Mr. Wexler will leave for a year's stay in Japan, where he will be a Mombusho English Fellow, working for the Japanese government administering and supervising English language education in prefectural schools for the Japanese Board of Education. He is a 1978 graduate of The Lawrenceville School.

Christopher W.H. Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Price of 8 Wheat Sheaf Lane maried Mildred Wells of 25 Birch Avenue and the late Jesse Wells, has received a B.S. degree from North Carolina Central University. She is a graduate of Mercer County College and Princeton High School.

Three area residents have graduated from Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.

In addition to Amy Pettibone, shown with her parents and the Bucknell president, they are Mary L. D'Amico, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. D'Amico of Old Orchard Road, who received her bachelor of arts degree cum laude with a major in political science; and Remi S. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm D. Johnson of Alexander Road, who earned his degree with a double major in international relations and Russian.

A 1979 graduate of Montgomery Township High School, Miss D'Amico was a Dean's List student who spent a semester studying in Vienna. She was also a member of the University Chorale. Mr. Johnson is a 1979 graduate of Auburn, Ala., High School.

Graduating from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (RPI) this spring were Gregory Shepard of 12 Shadowstone Lane, Lawrenceville, who received the bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering, and Scott D. Brown of 4 Benford Drive, Princeton Junction, joined in geology and is planning a career in petroleum exploration. An outstanding athlete at Princeton Day School, he continued his football career as place kicker for the Tigers. He kicked the winning field goal against Penn last October and was subsequently named to the honor role of the Eastern College Conference. He served as president of Dial Lodge in 1982.

LET'S TALK ABOUT ATTRACTING SONGBIRDS

with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

Although songbirds hardly can be considered an edible crop, they are an important addition to any garden. Besides adding life to your garden, songbirds such as robins, starlings, flickers and purple martins eat large quantities of destructive insects and other garden pests. And seed-eating songbirds such as sparrows, jays and finches eat more than their weight in weed seeds every day.

You might consider investing in birdhouses that will attract the many varieties of songbirds, especially one that the purple martins will live in. These birds will consume hundreds of mosquitos a day. They like a multi-hole dwelling, as they live in colonies. The birdhouse should be white as to reflect the midsummer heat and should be mounted 15 to 20 feet in the air, well away from trees, houses and other obstruction. To prevent house sparrows or starlings from invading your martin house, cork each of the entrance holes until the martins arrive in spring. Once established a martin colony will return year after year.

Any question or concerns?? Call WOODWINDS (924-3500).

SHE EXCELLED AT BUCKNELL: Amy A. Pettibone was photographed with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Pettibone of Toth Lane, Rocky Hill, and with Bucknell University President Dennis O'Brien at her graduation. Here's why: she received the Louis W. Robey Prize to the senior woman who best exemplifies the aims of a Bucknell education; she was named to the dean's list every semester, five times with a perfect 4.0 average; she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, the Mortar Board honor society, and Alpha Lambda Delta freshman honor society. A member of the women's cross country team, she also served as a resident assistant. She is a 1979 graduate of Montgomery Township High School.

Larry McHugh Hoping to Strike a Blow for all Referees With Suit Stemming from Attack by Spectator in 1981

It was a tough call to make, but, characteristically, Larry McHugh did not hesitate. In deciding to take on the state's legal system two years ago, McHugh was batting one for two. McHugh made news in early May, when, as far as has been able to be determined, he became the first person in the state to receive worker's compensation while working as a basketball referee. In addition, he is in the process of appealing a judge's decision in a civil suit against the Lyndhurst, Hopatcong and Hackensack school systems, stemming from an injury he received March 13 (it was a Friday, notes McHugh wryly) while he was refereeing a state tournament basketball game.

His appeal is currently pending in appellate court.

SPORTS In Princeton

where a trio of judges will rule whether McHugh will have his day in court and a trial by jury. No date has been set for the hearing which McHugh feels may take six months or longer.

"I'm not looking for any financial recovery," insists McHugh, a 1968 graduate of Princeton High School. "I'm looking for a new law. I know that sounds noble but it has to be done."

"I don't think we as referees should be allowed to officiate without some sort of protection ... or at least an avenue of recovery. The law's never been tested and we have to test it."

A man of many hats -- part owner of the Country Squire, a men's apparel store on Nassau Street, an editor, writer of magazine articles, poet, scratch golfer and an accomplished fly fisherman.

BLOWS WHISTLE ON VIOLENCE: Princeton basketball referee Larry McHugh, injured in 1981 when struck by an unidentified fan while officiating a state tournament game, has taken his case to court. If he wins, McHugh hopes his victory will provide a legal recourse for other referees who are victims of game violence.

In addition to being a well-known basketball and baseball official in this area, McHugh is about to add another: crusader. "I'm trying to make it easier for the other guy," continued McHugh. "So my brother officials have some kind of recourse if they are the victims of a violent attack that takes place because of spontaneous activity between two teams on a court."

Hired by NJSIAA. To begin at the beginning, McHugh, who has been officiating at high school games for the past ten years as a member of the International Association of Approved Basketball Officials (IAABO) Board No. 93 of Trenton, had been contracted by the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) to referee the NJSIAA Group 2 regional basketball championship game between Lyndhurst High and Hopatcong High School. The contest was held at a neutral site, the Hackensack High School gym. Also assigned to the game by the NJSIAA was Norman Van Arsdalen, a vice principal and former athletic director at Princeton High School, who is a long time high school and college referee.

The game was decided by one point. Although emotions were high on both sides in the jam-packed gym, McHugh recalls there were no crucial calls at the end. He and Van Arsdalen were making their way to the dressing room when supporters from the losing team rushed onto the court.

Reported McHugh, "It was like a crowd scene. Someone took a swing at Van Arsdalen." As he was reaching out to Van to guide him to the locker room, someone, McHugh said, came up from behind him and struck him on the back of his head and neck. He never saw his assailant.

A police officer, one of four McHugh remembers seeing in the gym, picked up the dazed McHugh, who had fallen to his knees, and escorted him off the court to the locker room.

If McHugh had been able to identify his attacker, he could have initiated court action without delay. Ironically, his assailant was held briefly but was released by police when, according to McHugh, Hackensack Athletic Director Joseph Delatorre allegedly told police not to detain or jail anyone but to clear the gym as quickly as possible.

Six Months of Treatment: Besides physical injuries, McHugh sustained psychiatric injuries. Both required weekly chiropractic and psychiatric treatments for six months. He was forced to curtail his officiating schedule.

In similar attacks, commented McHugh, most officials have hesitated to come forward. They have taken the first step and reported the incident but have never followed through. McHugh decided to follow through.

He retained attorney Melvin S. Naro of the Princeton law firm of Jamieson, McCardell, Moore, Peskin & Spicer. A basketball referee himself, Naro is described by McHugh as among the foremost sports attorneys in the country who had recently testified at Senate subcommittee hearings on violence in sports.

Naro is also the attorney for the IAABO Trenton board. They decided to file a civil suit against the three school systems for failing to provide reasonable security and protection as outlined and required by the NJSIAA for neutral sites.

In order to recover any money under the existing law, McHugh said that he had to prove that a dangerous or hazardous condition existed such as a highly-waxed floor or a faulty staircase. Never had a crowd been deemed a hazardous condition.

"Our contention is when you jam 2,000 people into a gym and split each side in a high rivalry contest, it is a dangerous situation," said McHugh.

On January 28 of this year, Judge Hervey S. Moore Jr. of the N.J. Superior Court dismissed McHugh's contention that the three defendants had failed to provide adequate police protection and that a dangerous situation existed. Judge Moore ruled the three schools were immune from McHugh's suit under the N.J. Tort Claims Act.

Said Judge Moore in his ruling, "The property itself has no dangerous conditions whatsoever involved with them. Simply, it is a gymnasium, a game took place, a game was over, the referee was leaving and struck by an unknown individual and injury ensued. That's certainly not a dangerous condition within the meaning of the statutes."

McHugh conceded that Judge Moore was "legally correct" in dismissing the suit. "But I told Judge Moore that if he didn't think a dangerous or hazardous condition existed, how did he explain the high number of police and security hired for games like those played by Trenton High. It's obvious a dangerous situation exists. These were not two small teams. These were two teams fighting for a state cham-

What About Compensation? Although initially unsuccessful in their civil suit, NJSIAA and McHugh decided to also file a worker's compensation claim against the NJSIAA.

Generally, previous attempts to obtain worker's compensation benefits have failed because groups sponsoring state tournaments such as the NJSIAA have been able to claim successfully in court that the referee was not a member of the organization but merely an independent contractor. As such, referees are not obligated to accept game assignments.

At first, the NJSIAA took such a tact, said McHugh, denying he was an employee. Then in writing to the NJSIAA, Napol discovered something: the NJSIAA worker's compensation insurance policy for its staff also had a special provision inserted for NJSIAA licensed sports officials who officiated in state tournament games in any sport.

When NJSIAA officials still balked, we put pressure on them, McHugh recalled, by threatening to include them in our civil suit.

More pressure came from the IAAO, particularly from Vince McKelvey, President of Board 93. McHugh is grateful for that support. "He put himself out on a limb for me," The IAAO, an world-wide organization, wrote a friend-of-the-court brief, reinforcing McHugh's position.

The NJSIAA reversed itself and said, yes, Mr. McHugh had been contracted by them to work the Lyndhurst-Hopatcong game and was-for that game-an employee of the NJSIAA as he maintained in his claim.

On May 6, McHugh was awarded $4,230 as compensation for his medical bills and partial permanent disability. His referee's salary for the game was $42.50. The IAAO, said McHugh, is paying the cost of his civil suit appeal.

Was It Worth It? Aside from the protracted legal aspects of the case, where does the 33-year old McHugh stand now? Was it worth it?

His psychiatrist has told him that it is almost as if he is suffering from the rape syndrome: someone struck out in the dark, someone unidentified, leaving the victim with no recourse, no opportunity to strike back.

"If I had that opportunity, I might have felt better about it," confirmed McHugh. The incident, he says, has played upon his attitude and aptitude.

"No doubt about it. If the same situation should occur, I told the judge I might turn my back. I don't want something like that to happen again. "I've been a high school referee for ten years," observed McHugh. "I've refereed college games. I've also participated in the NBA (National Basketball Association) camp in New York City for two years in a row. My credentials are there. I'm recognized by my peers as a competent referee."

Since the incident, McHugh

reports that he has worked fewer games than he has in the past. "I've been slightly leery of the same situation taking place again," he admits.

Still, although the IAAO organization has supported him 100 percent, McHugh notes that he has not received any state tournament or college assignments in the last two years. "If I was competent then, why am I not competent now?" asks McHugh. "Why am I being swept into a political corner?"

POST 76 STRUGGLING
In Mercer Legion Race. Beset with pitching and fielding problems, Princeton Post 76 struggled through a 2-3 performance last week and is ninth in the Mercer County American Legion league with a 3-8 record.

The standings tightened last week when Mitchell Davis, the early surprise leader with a 7-0 record, proceeded to lose its next four and fell to second place behind Hamilton which is 8-3. Trenton, with a 5-0 win over Ewing Monday, climbed to second place at 7-3 while Broad Street Park, Ewing and Mitchell Davis are all bunched at 7-4.

Post 76 has three more games before the one-week break for the July 4 holiday and the annual league All Star game on July 9. Two of those games will be a contest with Broad Street Park this Wednesday at 7:30 at Veterans Park and a meeting Thursday at 5:30 with league-leading Hamilton Post 31 at the 76ers home field-Princeton University's Clarke Field.

His team is hanging in contention by its finger tips but Post 76 manager Larry Bender is still optimistic about the season. "The way I figure it," says Bender, "the maximum amount of losses for any team to get into the playoffs is 12. We've got eight; we're not that far away. We've got to start winning." The regular season champion gets an automatic bye in the playoffs and the next four in the standings engage in a playoff to meet the top team for the league championship.

"We Can Win It." If Post 76 is one of the five teams from the 10-team league that qualify for the playoffs, Bender maintains, "We can win it. I know we can. The key is if we get Arendas (Danny Arendas, the team's top hurler, who has been kept from the mound with a sore hand) back and then are able to get Bill Bastardo back in his normal rotation.

"After the July break we have 13 games left. I think Arendas and Bastardo can win 11. There's no doubt in my mind," said Bender.

Arendas, who played on the Princeton University freshman team this spring, has already missed three starts, Bender pointed out. "That's three wins. Nobody can touch him; it's unbelievable to see him play."

Right now, Post 76, Bender concedes, is struggling and the reasons are mainly two: pitching and fielding. "We just don't have the pitching," he says. His mainstay has been 16-year old Dino D'Angelo and he plans to use 15-year old Dave Arendas, Dan's younger brother, who also competes in the Babe Ruth League.

Bender tested Dan Arendas' arm last week in a game with Bordertown. He pitched two innings and struck out four but was throwing at three-quarter speed and told Bender his hand was still sore.

While Bender was trying to patch up his mound staff, the team fielding deteriorated. "We've made a total of 41 errors," fumed Bender. "We had seven in our last game with Ewing." Seventeen have been at the vital shortstop position. Outfielders have lost track of fly balls.

The puzzled Bender could only attribute the ragged play in the field to a lack of concentration. "I'm going to make some changes," he promised.

The team's hitting, one aspect that has been solid from the start, has gotten even better. The team batting average climbed to .295 from .250 last week.

Bender is convinced he has the hitting and the pitching (if Arendas returns) to knock off any team in the league and become a playoff contender. "Next week," he observed, "we'll find out."

Ewing Post 314 on Sunday pounded out 15 hits to hammer Post 76, 13-7, scoring in five of the nine innings.

Mike Colston had three of Princeton's 11 hits, including a double, the lone extra base hit, and drove in a pair of runs to pace the 76ers at the plate. John Villani rapped two hits and drove in a run. Princeton, however, failed to support losing pitcher Dino D'Angelo by committing seven errors in the field, nor could Princeton silence the big Ewing bats.

DH Tom Elder, who relieved winning pitcher John Capuano in the seventh when Princeton scored three runs, homered and tripled for the victors. Ken Nelson contributed a pair of doubles. Tom Gavin had three hits and three RBIs, and Kier Harvey chipped in with three hits. All were members of Ewing's fine high school nine this spring.

The previous day, winless Hightstown pushed 12 runs across in the third inning to offset an 8-0 Post 76 lead, but the 76ers rallied with three runs in the fourth and nine more in the sixth en route to a wild 20-15 victory. In all there were 32 hits and six errors, five by Hightstown.

It was a day for fattening batting averages. Dan Arendas had four hits to pace Post 76 including the game's only home run. He drove in five runs. Brian Lenox had four singles, John Villani, two.

Scott Ellis and Chris Hunninghake connected for triples, while Mike Colston, who got the win, his first against no losses, rapped a double and drove in three runs. Jason Petrone had four RBIs, Ellis two.

The previous day, Bordertown plated five runs in the fifth inning to break a 1-1 tie and went on to defeat Post 76, 6-4. The big blow for Bordertown was Jim Bell's bases-loaded triple.

Princeton plated three runs in the sixth but the rally fell short. Petrone's two-run triple was one of six hits collected by 76er batters; Colston doubled and Hunninghake, Mickey Carnevale, Villani and Ellis singled but PHS hurt its chances with four errors. D'Angelo took the loss.

In the first of four games in four days, Trenton's Post 93's Steve Swiderski clubbed Princeton into submission with a triple and two singles and three runs batted in as Trenton won, 7-1. Again, four errors in the field hurt the losers.

Hunninghake doubled home Princeton's lone run, as Bill Feus was charged with the loss. Among Princeton's five other hits were three singles by Lenox and one each by Mike Petrone and Colston.

Post 76 began the week with a 4-3 victory over Hopewell Post 339, as winning pitcher Bill Bastardo limited the losers to three hits.

Princeton scored three runs in the fifth when Hunninghake, Colston and Carnevale all drove in runs.

THREE TEAMS TIED

For Men's Softball Lead.

After being rained out last week, Princeton Nautilus continued its streak by defeating P.I.A.S.C., 12-10, and P.M.C., 8-4, in a doubleheader on Sunday. Nautilus now has won six in a row and is tied for the league lead with Conte's and Mike's Tavern.

Conte's and Mike's also swept doubleheaders Sunday to keep the league deadlocked. Each club is 11-2.

In the first game, Nautilus fought back after P.I.A.S.C. had jumped to an early 8-0 lead. Nautilus scored four runs in each of the third, fourth and sixth innings to decide the contest. Leading hitters for Nautilus were Jud Petrone and Jeff Grover. Each was a perfect 3-for-3 at the plate with five runs scored and three RBIs between them.

Also contributing to the offensive surge were Pat Kahny, Scott Porreca, Mike Shillaber, Dave Shillaber and Kevin Phox. Kahny, Porreca, and Mike Shillaber had two hits apiece while Phox and Dave Shillaber had two RBIs. Leading hitters for P.I.A.S.C. were Mario Devieneczi (3-for-4), Greg Hamer, Mario Mangione, Jamie Robertson and Bruno Perna.

In the second game, Nautilus was powered by the Shillaber brothers, who each clubbed home runs. Also contributing to the offense were Brent Robinson, Jim Lennon and Kevin Phox, who combined for six hits. Jeff Grover, pitching for the first time this season, picked up both wins on the mound.

The standings:

CONTE'S STAGES RALLY

For 5-0 Softball Lead. The Princeton Women's Adult Slow Pitch Softball League finished its fifth week of play last week with Conte's Bar edging Andy's Tavern, 12-11, and Mike's Tavern routing Army-Navy, 25-1.

Army's got off to a good start and was ahead 11-0 going into the bottom of the fourth inning. Hitting for Andy's were Susan Packer, Cindy Nielsen

(4-for-4 overall), Mary Fox, Donna Woodruff, Sue Presli, Lisa Schmidt, and Patti Dowling.

At the end of four, the score was 11-3, as Conte's tallied on hits from Jackie Rock, Monica Greenland, Missy McCloskey and Barbie Falcone. In the bottom of the fifth, Conte's scored seven runs. Leading the rally were Peggy Wood (3-for-3, 2 triples), Cynthia Lucullo, Laine Ivan, Greenland, and McCloskey. After Conte's tied the score at 11 in the bottom of the sixth on a wood triple and Lucullo RBI, there was no scoring in the seventh, and the game went into extra innings. Andy's failed to score in the top of the eighth, but in the bottom of the inning, Conte's loaded the bases with no outs. Andy's cut down one runner at the plate, and the next batter fanned. Conte's was not to be denied, however, as Rock drove in Nancy Pese with the winning run. Carol Ann Mazzella was the winning pitcher.

Mike's scored 18 runs in the first inning and had 24 hits overall, as the 15-run rule was invoked after five innings. Pacing the attack were Michelle Morgan, Grace Durland, Sallie Toscano, Dee Pearce (4-for-5, home run, 7 RBIs), Karen Parker, and Cathy Talarick. Lorraine Dutchie was the winning pitcher. Army-Navy got its run when Theresa Poltyn drove in Karen Piper.

The standings:

Team	W	L	Pct
Mike's Tavern	5	0	1.000
Conte's Bar	3	2	.600
Andy's Tavern	2	3	.400

ORANGE, RED LEAD

In Summer Lacrosse. Orange and Red have taken the early lead in the seven-team Princeton Summer Lacrosse League with two victories each.

Orange defeated Green, 8-2, getting two goals from Tom VonOehsen and one each from Nate Poage, Stuart VonOehsen, Bob Campbell, Mike Shannon, Eric Jensen and Rich Drobner, and stopped Navy, 10-3, as Shannon scored three, Jensen and Tom VonOehsen two each. Pat Lackey, Charlie Reeves and Tom Taylor scored for Navy. In the Green contest, Dave Paragavan and Jerry Steinscored for the losers.

The Varsity brothers led Red to a 11-0 win over Blue, Alex Varsfeld netting four goals and Peter a pair. Jim Delang and Peter Scott also scored twice for Red and John Hamel scored a single goal. Scott Waterman's three goals paced Blue, which also received two from Jeff Henkle and one from Dave Karch. Delang with four tallies was high scorer in Red's 11-1 romp over Gold. Joel Holmes added three scores, Alex Varsfeld two, and Peter Scott and Pete Varsfeld one each for the victors. Grant Cooper accounted for the lone goal by Gold, a team comprised of old-time players and their sons.

In other games, Gold nipped White, 9-8, and Blue outlasted Green, 7-6, despite a standout performance by former PHS player Todd Breithaupt.

Phil Clippenger with three goals and Cooper with two led Gold to its first win. Eric Bylin, Bruce Turner, and Irv Bromley added single tallies. Bryce Chase Jr. led White with three goals. Steve Maggio had two and Peter Smith and Stewart Smith one each.

Breithaupt in addition to scoring five goals, the most for one game this season so far, had also scored the apparent tying goal at the end of the game before the officials ruled the game had ended two seconds earlier. Jerry Stein had Green's other goal.

For victorious Blue, Scott Waterman was high with three and while Piv. Babu added two and Jeff Kenkel and Andy Dickerson one each.

HEAD-TO-HEAD

Corn Tops 3 Seasons. Princeton-cased Sweet Jersey Corn demonstrated why it is the number one ranked team in Mercer County Women's Softball League last week, as it defeated 3 Seasons, its major rival, in a double header, 1-0, and 5-3. The two teams had been undefeated in league play going into the contests.

The first game went into extra innings scoreless, as good defense on both sides prevailed. Each team had the bases loaded at one point, but could not score.

In the top of the 8th, the Corn retired 3 Seasons in order, and in the bottom of the inning, Grace Durland and Sandy Hibbs singled, and Dee Pearce doubled. With one out, Rookie Andrea Perrine entered the game as a pinch hitter, drove the ball over the 3 Seasons' left fielder's head for the game winning RBI, as Durland scored.

In the second game, 3 Seasons jumped out in front, scoring three runs in the bottom of the fourth. In the top of the fifth, Beth Muzyska's single, an error, and a single by Clare Baxter scored two runs for Corn.

Going into the top of the sixth, Corn put the game away by scoring three runs on hits by Durland, Hibbs and Pearce and an RBI by Perrine. Baxter was again the winning pitcher. Sweet Jersey's record in the League is now 8-0.

FINAL RACES HELD

In Bicycle Time Trial Series. The last race in the N.J. Time Trial League series held Sunday, a 5-miler at Skillman, saw Mary Martin set a new women's course record of 13 minutes, 15 seconds.

Joe Weingart won the men's section in 12:55. Both are members of the Princeton-based Century Riding Club.

In the final standings, Martin won the women's point competition with 12 points, and the women's all round championship (5, 10 and 25 miles.)

Carol Tate of CRC won the Women's All-Rounder for 5 and 10 miles, while Marie Bologna, another CRC

3 WIN GOLD MEDALS

In Jr. Olympic Track Meet. Brian Williams, Lia Moore, and Gail Hughes won gold medals last week in the AAU State Junior Olympic Track and Field Meet held at the Lawrenceville School.

Brian and Lia captured the bantam boys and girls 50-meter race and finished second in the 100 meter. Gail Hughes jumped 16-1/4 to win the junior girl's running long jump.

Mike Riddick captured silver medals in the 100 meter dash and as a member of the Andy Jacobs, John Thompson and Doug Gibson relay team.

2 PROGRAMS OFFERED

By Recreation Department. The Princeton Recreation will offer a seven-week summer slimnastics program, "Aerobic Expression," beginning July 18 and ending September 2.

Classes will be held from 9 to 10 or 10:15 to 11:15 on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings in the Princeton High School gymnasium. Lani Morrison, the originator of "Aerobic Expression" will lead the class.

The fee is $15 for Princeton residents, $30 for non-residents. Registration forms are available in the Recreation Office, and the deadline to register is July 13. For additional information, call 921-9480.

Splashercise Begins. Splashercise, an exercise program for senior citizens, will begin next Saturday, July 9, at 10 a.m. at Community Park Pool. Water is a good place to exercise because it puts less strain on muscles.

The fee for the six-week program is $5. To register, call 921-9480.

In honor of the occasion, the trustees of the College of New Jersey commissioned Charles Willson Peale to paint a portrait of Washington to replace the one of King George II that had been torn through by a cannonball as it hung in Nassau Hall during the Battle of Princeton six years earlier. The Peale portrait hangs in the Faculty Room still.

On September 24 the College of New Jersey held its Commencement Day Exercises in the Presbyterian Church near by Nassau Hall. Never before or since has there been such a graduation. Across a platform erected at the pulpit end of the church were not only the trustees and the graduating class, but also the whole of Congress, the French minister and George Washington, the commander-in-chief.

Included in the audience were two future presidents of the country, seven signers of the Declaration of Independence, nine signers of the Articles of Confederation and 11 signers of the Constitution. The valedictorian was Ashbel Green, later president of the College.

As the summer drew to a close, it was clear that Congress would not prolong its stay through winter, although the redoubtable Col. Morgan tried his best to persuade them by drawing up an extensive list of all the houses available. In October there was one last round of banquets and festivities upon the arrival of the Dutch minister, Peter John Van Berckel. News also arrived via a colonel of the First New Regiment on horseback that the Treaty of Paris had been signed at Versailles.

The sometimes acrimonious debates on the future location of the capital had been resolved in favor of a permanent site on the Potomac, but Congress would divide its time between Annapolis and Trenton until the capital was built. Federal City Road in Lawrence Township owes its name to the fact that it was the northeastern boundary of the proposed site when the Delaware rather than the Potomac was to be the location.

On November 4, 1783, just after Thomas Jefferson arrived to take his seat, Congress adjourned at Princeton, not to meet until November 26 in Annapolis. Washington and his retinue departed on November 9, and the "obscure village" settled back into its former routine. Princeton was no longer the nation's capital.
